INTRODUCTION

ISL343 - Introduction to Islamic Theology is a two-credit unit course available in the second semester of first year for the B.A. Islamic Studies programme. The course gives you a clear picture of what the science of Islamic Theology ('ilmu 't-Tawhīd) is all about. It gives you insight into the development of sectarian movements and their doctrines, and the roles played by prominent theologians in the development of the Muslim creed. You will also be introduced into fundamental doctrines of Islam as derived from Qur'ān and Hadīth which are the two primary sources of Islamic system of belief. The course also gives you insight into some Muslim catechism in use in different Islamic territories.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN IN THIS COURSE

The general aim of this course is to introduce you to 'ilmu 't-Tawhīd. It points out the theological traces in the Qur'ān, the sacred Book of Islam which formed the nucleus of the science. Then, it provides the internal and external factors which helped in building up the structure of the science. This is followed by further clarification of the concept and traces of theological debates among early Muslim groups. Rationalism in Islamic belief system and consequential emergence of orthodoxy are thereafter presented respectively. Biographies of prominent Muslim theologians of the Jabriyyah, Qadariyyah, Rationalism, Shi'ism and Sunnism inclinations are also included. You shall also be familiarised with issues dealing with divine Unity and Justice, created-ness and eternity of the Qur'ān, possibility of vision of the Divine Being and various views on anthropomorphic words or expressions found in the Muslim scriptures. Issues of eschatological nature or belief in the unseen or what happens in life after death are also part of what you will learn in this course.

COURSE AIMS

There are fourteen units in the course and each unit has its objectives. You should read the objectives of each unit and bear them in mind as you go through the unit. In addition to the objectives of each unit, the overall aims of this course are to:

- (i) introduce you to the origin and development of the Science of Islamic theology called 'ilmu 't-Tawhīd or 'ilmu 'l-Kalām in the Arabic tongue
- (ii) familiarise you with the fundamental theological principles in Islam with references to their bases from the Islamic sacred sources and views of various schools of thought

- (iii) acquaint you with prominent Muslim theologians and the roles played by them in giving shape and disseminating the science.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Based on the general aims of this course, some objectives of the course as a whole are set out. These are the things you should be able to do by the time you complete the course. If you are able to meet the objectives, you would have achieved the aims of the course. Therefore on your successful completion of this course, you should be able to:

- explain the religious, social, and political factors responsible for the emergence of Islamic theology
- highlight the role internal and external factors played in the development of Islamic theology
- discuss the emergence of Mu'tazilism (the thorough going rationalists) and other sectarian tendencies in Islam and the doctrines distinguishing them from other Muslim theological schools
- discuss the emergence of Sunnism (i.e. Islamic orthodoxy), and give account of the contribution of its prominent scholars
- highlight and discuss the contributions of prominent Muslim theologians to the science of Islamic theology.

WORKING THROUGH THIS COURSE

You have to work through the study units in the course. This course is broken into four modules. Under each module there are a number of units. There are fourteen units in all. You are to read the units and related materials given at the end of this guide, including others that you might lay your hands upon. You will benefit a lot from this course if proper attention is given to the exercises and assignments given at the end of each sections and units respectively. Submission of each assignment is very important.

COURSE MATERIALS

Major components of the course are:

1. Course Guide
2. Study Units
3. Textbooks and References
4. Assignments File
5. Presentation Schedule

STUDY UNITS

There are 16 units structured into 4 modules in this course. They are listed below:

Module 1 Origin, Tawhīd, Īmān, Nubuwwah and Risālah

- Unit 1 Definition and Origin of Islamic Theology
- Unit 2 Significance of Belief in Unity of Allah (Tawhīd) as an Article of Faith
- Unit 3 The Concept of Īmān
- Unit 4 A`n-Nubuwwah anda`r-Risālah

Module 2 Development of Muslim Firqah

- Unit 1 The Jabarites, the Qadarites, the Murjites and the Muslim Majority's Opinion on Predestination
- Unit 2 The Kharijites (Khawārij)
- Unit 3 The Shī'ah
- Unit 4 Extremist Shī'ites (Gulātush-Shī'ah)

Module 3 Al - Mu'Ta Zilah Andal - Ash'Ariyyah) (the Mutazilites and the Ash'arites)

- Unit 1 The Emergence of the Mu'tazilah and their Fundamental Doctrines
- Unit 2 The Prominent Mu'tazilites and More of their Views
- Unit 3 Ash'arism and Its Fundamental Doctrines
- Unit 4 Biography of Al-Ash'arī and His Short Creed

Module 4 Al-Ghaybiyyāt - Belief in the Unseen

- Unit 1 Angels, Spirit and Jinns 86-93
- Unit 2 Eschatological Issues I: Death; Questioning, Torment and Enjoyment in the Grave 94-100
- Unit 3 Eschatological Issues II: Resurrection, Last Day and Its Horror 101-109
- Unit 4 Eschatological Issues III: Sin, Record of Deeds and Recompense 110 -118

TEXTBOOKS AND REFERENCES

Every unit contains a list of references and further reading which are meant to deepen your knowledge of the course. We hereby provide a list containing some of them. Try to get as many as possible of those textbooks and materials.

ASSIGNMENT FILE

In this file, you will find all the details of the work you must submit to your tutor for marking. The marks you obtain from these assignments will count towards the final mark you obtain for this course. Further information on assignments will be found in the Assignment File itself and later in this Course Guide in the section on assessment.

ASSESSMENT

Your assessment will be based on tutor-marked assignments (TMAs) and a final examination which you will write at the end of the course.

TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENTS (TMAs)

Every unit contains at least one or two assignments. You are advised to work through all the assignments and submit them for assessment. Your tutor will assess the assignments and select four, which will constitute the 30% of your final grade. The tutor-marked assignments may be presented to you in a separate file. Just know that for every unit there are some tutor-marked assignments for you. It is important you do them and submit for assessment.

FINAL EXAMINATION AND GRADING

At the end of the course, you will write a final examination, which will constitute 70% of your final grade. In the examination, which shall last for two hours, you will be requested to answer three questions out of at least five questions.

COURSE MARKING SCHEME

This table shows how the actual course marking is broken down.

Assessment	Marks
Assignments	Four assignments, best three marks of the four count at 30% of course marks
Final Examination	70% of overall course marks

PRESENTATION SCHEDULE

The Presentation Schedule included in your course materials gives you the important dates for the completion of Tutor-Marked Assignments and attending tutorials. Remember, you are required to submit all your assignments by the due date. You should guard against falling behind in your work.

HOW TO GET THE MOST FROM THIS COURSE

In distance learning, the study units replace the university lecture. This is one of its great advantages. You can read and work through specially designed study materials at your own pace, and at a time and place that suits you best. Think of it as reading the lecture instead of listening to the lecturer. In the same way a lecturer might give you some reading to do, the study units tell you when to read, and which are your text materials or set books. You are provided exercises to do at appropriate points, just as a lecturer might give you an in-class exercise. Each of the study units follows a common format. The first item is an introduction to the subject matter of the unit, and how a particular unit is integrated with the other units and the course as a whole. Next to this is a set of learning objectives. These objectives let you know what you should be able to do by the time you have completed the unit. These learning objectives are meant to guide your study. The moment a unit is finished, you must go back and check whether you have achieved the objectives. If this is made a habit, then you will significantly improve your chances of passing the course. The main body of the unit guides you through the required reading from other sources. This will usually be either from your set books or from a reading section. The following is a practical strategy for working through the course. If you run into any trouble, telephone your tutor. Remember that your tutor's job is to help you. When you need assistance, do not hesitate to call and ask your tutor to provide it.

1. Read this Course Guide thoroughly, it is your first assignment.
2. Organise a study schedule. Design a 'Course Overview' to guide you through the course. Note the time you are expected to spend on each unit and how the assignments relate to the units. Important information, e.g. details of your tutorials, and the date of the first day of the semester is available from the study centre. You need to gather all the information into one place, such as your diary or a wall calendar. Whatever method you choose to use, you should decide on and write in your own dates and schedule of work for each unit.
3. Once you have created your own study schedule, do everything to stay faithful to it. The major reason that students fail is that they get behind with their course work. If you get into difficulties with your schedule, please, let your tutor know before it is too late for help.
4. Turn to unit 1, and read the introduction and the objectives for the unit.
5. Assemble the study materials. You will need your set books and the unit you are studying at any point in time.
6. Work through the unit. As you work through the unit, you will - know what sources to consult for further information.

7. Keep in touch with your Study Centre. Up-to-date course information will be continuously available there.
  8. Well before the relevant due dates (about 4 weeks before the dates), keep in mind that you will learn a lot by doing the assignment carefully. They have been designed to help you meet the objectives of the course and, therefore, will help you pass the examination. Submit all assignments not later than the due date.
  9. Review the objectives for each study unit to confirm that you have achieved them. If you feel unsure about any of the objectives, review the study materials or consult your tutor.
  10. When you are confident that you have achieved a unit's objectives, you can start on the next unit. Proceed unit by unit through the course and try to pace your study so that you keep yourself on schedule.
  11. When you have submitted an assignment to your tutor for marking, do not wait for its return before starting on the next unit. Keep to your schedule. When the assignment is returned, pay particular attention to your tutor's comments, both on the Tutor-Marked Assignment form and also the written comments on the ordinary assignments.
  12. After completing the last unit, review the course and prepare yourself for the final examination. Check that you have achieved the unit objectives (listed at the beginning of each unit) and the course objectives (listed in the Course Guide).

FACILITATORS, TUTORS AND TUTORIALS

The dates, times and locations of these tutorials will be made available to you, together with the name, telephone number and address of your tutor. Your tutor will mark each assignment. Pay close attention to the comments your tutor might make on your assignments as these will help in your progress. Make sure that assignments reach your tutor on or before the due date. Your tutorials are important; therefore try not to skip any. It is an opportunity to meet your tutor and your fellow students. It is also an opportunity to get the help of your tutor and discuss any difficulties encountered on your reading.

SUMMARY

In this Course Guide, we have provided you a general overview of ISL343: Introduction to Islamic Theology in which students pursuing Diploma in Arabic and Islamic Studies programme must earn two credit units. The course aims and objectives and what learners will gain working through the course material and its study units are stated clearly at the onset. We have also provided you a list of textbooks and references for your further reading. As an inference in the Guide, to develop an active interest in the Course is a prerequisite for its successful completion. Assess yourself through the self-assessment exercises (SAEs). You will equally be assessed for grading purposes through the tutor-marked assignments (TMAs). Thus to do well in the course, you must get yourself organised and try to conform to the presentation schedule.

We wish you success in the course.

1.0      INTRODUCTION

The Islamic theology is the science which studies religious doctrines and provides logical proofs in defense of faith. It also deals with refutation of innovations made by the groups that deviate from the orthodox creed. It may also be described as the study of the nature of the Divine Being and other Islamic religious creeds. Its religious terminology is 'Ilmu 't-Tawhīd which will be explained to you after the next few paragraphs.

Many factors, which are either internal or external, contributed to the emergence and development of this science. Some of the factors, which are internal, emanating from Islam and the Muslims themselves, are hereby presented for your reading and digestion in this Module.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define the concept of theology in Islam
- identify some theological points in the Qur'ān
- discuss the role of the Ṣaḥābah in the emergence of Islamic theology.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Definition of Term

Ilmu t-Tawhīd is the technical term for the study of theology in Islam. 'Ilm (pronounced Ilimi by West African Muslims) is an Arabic word which connotes science while the variant lexical meaning of the word of a`t-Tawhīd which is also Arabic includes unification in words, deeds, etc. It derives from the verb wāḥada from which you also have other derivatives such as wāḥdah (unity), Wāḥid or Wāḥed (being unique, singular, matchless etc.). This also denotes that Being which is Unique and Incomparable in His existence, the almighty Allah.

In the Arabic lexicon, the first letter (waw) of the Arabic word wāḥad is interchangeable with (alif) and thus it becomes aḥad. This is the word that is used for Allah in the Sūratu `l-Ikhlāṣ, Chapter 112 of the Holy Qur'ān. It means that Allah, the most High is Unique and Incomparable in His Being and Attributes. There is no one like Him, either in His Being or Attributes, and even remotely conjoined with Him. Ilmu` t-Tawhīd connotes Islamic Theology. It studies various beliefs in Islam and probes into the origin and development of theological schools.

At-Tawhīd (Islamic Monotheism) has three aspects (1) Unity in the Being of Allah, (2) Unity in the Worship of Allah, and (3) Unity in the Attributes of Allah. These will be extensively dealt with in a separate unit below.

Ilmu `l-`Aqīdah (Creed), and Uṣūlu d-Dīn (Bases of Religion) are two other terms interchangeably applied with Tawhīd when the science of Islamic theology is intended. Specialisation in this science is mostly offered in Faculties or Uṣūlu d-Dīn Units in countries where Islamic Universities are established.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

- i. Discuss the term ilmu `t-Tawhīd.
- ii. Give the terms applicable to Islamic theology.

3.2 Internal Origins of the Emergence of Islamic Theology

(1) Qur'ānic Origin

The Qur'ān, as is well-known calls to absolute monotheism and upholding of other five Islamic articles of faith. It deals with the major sects and religions that were widespread during the time of the Prophet Muhammad. It refutes their principles and points to their falsehood. For instance, in 45:24, it mentions the materialists who rejected God, Prophets and religion in its entirety and refutes their arguments by saying, “they have nothing to prove their claim and they are only making conjectures”. It discusses polytheism in all its ramifications and condemns it unequivocally. In 4:48 it says those who associate partners with God have fabricated fatal sin, and in 4:116 it says they have gone far astray. In 4:48/116 it says “shirk” (associating partner with God) is the most unpardonable sin. In 5:17&72, it condemns those who claim divinity of Prophet Īsā (Jesus) and says they are infidels. It also corrects the idea of sonship of Prophet Īsā and says in 3:59 ‘the likeness of Isa to Allah is truly as the likeness of Adam. He created him from dust, then said to him, be, and he was. On Trinity it says in 4:171 O people of the Book, exceed not the limit in your religion nor speak anything about Allah but the truth. The Messiah, Īsā, son of Maryam, is only a Messenger of Allah and his word, which he communicated to Mary and Mercy from Him. So believe in Allah and His Messengers, and say not three. Desist, it is better for you. Allah is only one God. To Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth. Also sufficient is Allah as having charge of affairs.

Furthermore, the Holy Book argues with those who did not believe in the Day of Resurrection and the Day of Judgment when they asked “Who will give life to the bones when they are rotten? It replies: “Say, He will give life to them who brought them into existence at first”. It also contains issues of predestination and free will and it commands the Prophet to deliver the messages from his Lord and to debate with his opponents when it says in 16:125 “call to the way of thy Lord with wisdom and godly exhortation and argue with them in the best manner.

Of course Muslim theologians pursued this Qur'ānic injunctions and examples by going into debate with the opponents of Islam, widening the range of their defense whenever the antagonists widened the range of their attack. Eventually, this led to the emergence and development of speculative theology of Islam known as Ilmu `l-Kalām.

(ii) The Role of the Ṣahābah

(Companions of the Prophet Muhammad) after the demise of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, the Muslims began to raise questions on seemingly contradictory points of the new religion with the view to studying and harmonising them. This phenomenon is not peculiar to Islam but general to all known religions. Initially, all religions are based on simple but strong doctrines on which adherents will all agree and believe without any tendency for criticism or philosophy. Then, there will follow the period of criticism, reconsideration and application of logical and philosophical rules. The theologians would thus seek the aid of logic and philosophy to strengthen their viewpoints and buttress their ideas. This was the case with Judaism, Christianity; and Islam was not an exception.

For instance, the early Muslims believed in predestination of both good and evil. They believed that whatever man did have been predestined for him by God. Their belief in that was total and unflinching. But as time went by, a group of Muslims appeared who collected the verses that are related to the issue in the Qur'ān and Hadīth studying and criticising them. They discovered that there was a verse, which reads:

Those who disbelieve- it is alike to them whether thou warn them or warn them not, they will not believe. (Q.2:6)

This verse and others like it indicate that some people have been destined to be unbelievers and yet they are requested to believe. On the other hand, the Qur'ān is full of verses, which show that nothing prevents any person from believing. He is completely free to make his choice between belief and unbelief.

How will it be possible to harmonise all these verses? Has man freedom of choice or has he been predestined to do certain things? These and other questions are raised on these issues. They were studied thoroughly and with the application of both logic and philosophy. This led to the emergence of various views and schools of thought, which shall be fully examined later.

(iii) Politics and Issue of Succession to the Prophet (S)

Differences of opinion on who should succeed the Prophet in the leadership roles he was playing while he was alive also led to differences of opinion in religious matters. Thus, political parties became religious sects. From the party of Ali emerged the Shiites. Those who disagreed with referring their disputes to arbitration panel (tahkīm) among his soldiers formed themselves into a party called khawārij while those who resented dispute among the Muslims were known as Murjites.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the various factors responsible for the emergence of Islamic theology emergence.

3.3 External Influence Responsible for its Growth and Development

The factors enumerated below can be said to be the external sources contributing to the growth and development of the science of Islamic theology (ilmu `t-Tawhīd):

- (i) The new converts to Islam from other religions such as Christianity, Judaism, atheism and others manifested the doctrines of their old religions in a new form in their new religion.
- (ii) The Mu ‘tazilites took up the defenses of Islam against the attacks of Jews and Christians and equipped themselves with philosophical weapons so as to enable them combat them on their own ground.
- (iii) The need for theologians to use philosophical and logical arguments in defense of faith compelled them to study it and refute their wild claims.
- (iv) Being inspired by the new faith, the Muslims of Arabia underwent a career of conquest of one country after another, and wherever they went, they carried Islam along with them. The Persians embraced the religion and became new converts to Islam. The Persians as a nation were superior to the Arabs and they, especially the upper class among them, could not shake off their own heritage. They developed an idea of superiority complex and introduced many new elements and ideas of their own into Islamic culture. They were responsible for introducing mystic tendencies and theory of divinely appointed Imām in Islamic thought.

- (v) When the Muslims flourished in trade and commerce, they came in close contact with the Indians. As a matter of fact, Indian culture, especially Buddhism and Vedaism and their mystic tendency exerted a significant influence on the development of Muslim philosophy, especially Islamic mysticism. It was during the Abbasid period that the Indian ideas reached the Muslims first.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Enumerate, with explanation, some of the external factors that may be regarded as contributing to the emergence of Ilmu `t-Tawhīd (Islamic Theology).

4.0 CONCLUSION

Thus we conclude that ‘Ilmu `t-Tawhīd is the term for Islamic theology. ‘Ilmu `l‘Aqidah, (Study of Creed), Uṣūlu `d-īn (Basis of Religion) and ‘Ilmu `l-Kalām, are other terms interchangeably used for the science. The science originated from the Qur’ānic discussion of the Islamic articles of faith, the views of the atheists, polytheists, Jews and beliefs of the Christians. Debates by the Companions on seemingly contradicting issues in the Qur’ān and crises arising from the question of who would succeed the Prophet Muhammad after his death further contributed to the emergence of the science. Converts to Islam from Christianity and Judaism, the need for theologians to use philosophical and logical arguments in defense of faith, and the influence of the Persian and Indian cultures are external factors that helped the growth of the science.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit traces the origin of the Muslim theology to the Qur’ān and the early Muslims who were Companions of the Prophet Muhammad. It suggests that its subsequent development was not due to single but different factors both internal and external. It concludes that the external factors should not be regarded as the sole source of the Muslim theology. They merely helped its growth and development at a later stage.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Define Islamic theology and highlight its origin.
2. Islamic theology emerged from internal factors. Discuss.
3. Expatriate on the external origin of the Islamic theology.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

You have been told in unit one that ‘Ilmu `t-Tawhīd, is one of the terms for the science of Islamic theology. You have also been told that the word Tawhīd signifies belief in the Unity of Allah. Let us quickly remind you that the significance of this word is like the significance of the formula of testimony to the unity of Allah Lā ilāha ilā Allah. Since this term Tawhīd occupies a very important position in Islam and Islamic theology we shall now discuss it again in some details.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- explain the significance of the term Tawhid as meaning belief in the unity of Allah
- explain this belief in Unity of Allah as it relates His divine Being
- expatiate on worshipping Him alone
- discuss the belief as it relates to Unity of Allah in His Attributes
- enumerate some of the benefits/impacts the belief will have on the believer.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Unity in the Being of Allah (Dhāt/Ulūhiyyah)

The faith in the unity of Allah is to believe that Allah is unique in his Being, incomparable with originated thing and without any partners; He has no wife, nor children; neither does He have mother or father;

He is not a part of any other being, nor any other being is a part of Him.

The Jews believed Uzair (AS) to be the son of Allah, while the Christians believed Jesus (AS) to be the son of Allah. The word of Allah, the Most High, has contradicted both of these beliefs as falsehood: “The Jews call Uzair a son of Allah, and the Christians call Jesus the son of Allah. That is a saying from their mouth; (in this) they but imitate what the unbelievers of old used to say. ... How they are deluded away from the truth!” (Q.9:30).

The pagans of Makkah designated Angels as the daughters of Allah. Allah (SWT) condemns their false belief, thus: “Yet they make the jinns equal with Allah, though Allah, did create the jinns; and they falsely, having no knowledge attribute to Him sons and daughters. Praise and glory be to Him! (He is) above what they attribute to Him!” (Q.6:100).

Some polytheists considered creatures, such as Angels, Jinns or some mankind to be merged in the Being of Allah (SWT) which they call Hulūl. Some considered Allah to be merged in everything of the universe called the theory of unity of creation (wahdatu l-wujūd, everything is He). Allah the most high has condemned all such false beliefs in the Holy Qur’ān: “Yet they attribute to some of His servants a share with Him (in His god head)! Truly is man a blasphemous ingrate avowed! (Q. 43:15).

These verse of the Qur’ān are a proof that Allah (SWT) has no wife, nor children, nor mother nor father, and neither is His Holy Being merged in any object (animate nor inanimate); He is not a part of any other thing, nor any other thing in the universe (animate or inanimate) is merged in His being (SWT). Neither is any other thing part of the being of Allah, nor any creature is born from Allah’s Nūr (light); nor any creature a part and portion of His light.

When the Messenger invited the pagans of Makkah to believe in Allah who has no partners, they asked him about the genealogy of the being towards which he was calling them, of what He is made, what does He eat and drink? From whom He has inherited and who will be His successor? In answer to these queries Allah (SWT) revealed Chapter 112 of the Glorious Qur’ān (Sūrat Al-Ikhlāṣ).

“Say, He is Allah, the One and Only; Allah, upon whom all depend; He begets not, nor is He begotten; and there is none like Him” (Q.112:1-4).

As established by the passages of the glorious Qur'ān and the Traditions of the Prophet, it should be borne in mind, while considering the unity of being of Allah (Tawhīd). He is occupying Glorious Throne high above. But His knowledge and power encompasses everything.

As against believing in the unity of Allah in His being in the above manners, it is heretical to believe that someone is the son or daughter of Allah or to say that some among His creation is a part and portion of His Being or to consider that the Being of Allah is present in everything and everywhere. All such notions are called polytheism (shirk).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain belief in the Unity of Allah as it relates to His divine Being.

3.2 Unity of Allah in Worship

As an outcome of belief in unity of Allah in His essence, it follows that every form of worship should be for Allah only and no one else should be joined in it. In the Holy Qur'ān the word worship, is used in two different meanings. Firstly, it is used in the form of adoration or devotion as narrated in the verse: “Adore not the sun and the moon but adore Allah who created them if it is Him ye wish to serve.”(Q.41:37).

Secondly, worship is used in the sense of obedience and subordination as in Q.36:60): “Did I not enjoin on you, you children of Adam, that ye should not worship Satan? Certainly he was to you an avowed enemy.” In the first sense, worship includes every form of prayer and actions similar to it, such as standing with folded arms, bowing down, prostration, oblation and offering charity, sacrifices, circumambulation (as of Ka'ba), seclusion (I'tikāf), retreat (Khalwah), and supplication (Du'ā'), seeking help and succour (Istighāthah), seeking protection, and pleasure, placing trust and reliance (as in Allah), fear and love. Every form of the above mentioned acts of worship should be for Allah alone. If a single form of worship as noted above is performed for any other except Allah it would amount to polytheism (shirk).

In the second sense of worship, viz., obedience, service and subordination, Unity of Allah in worship will be that in all worldly dealings obedience and subordination should be one of the Commands of Allah alone and His laws. To ignore the commands of Allah and follow the commands or laws of others, be it one's own passions or of one's own ancestors, religious or political leaders, Satan or anything evil, in the same manner will be polytheism in worship, just as it is polytheism to include any creature in the worship of Allah. Allah declares in Q.25:43: “Have you (O Muhammad) seen him who has taken as his god his own desire?” In this verse to follow one’s own passion is called making passion one’s own god which is declared as polytheism.

Also note passage in which Allah declares obedience of Satan or following him polytheism: “But the evil ones ever inspire their friends to contend with you. If you were to obey them you would indeed be pagan. (Q.6:121)

“If any do fail to judge by the light of what Allah has revealed, they are no better than unbelievers. In Q.5: 45 - 47, Allah has referred to those who do not judge according to the Commands and the Laws of Allah as wrong doers and rebels. In other words, to follow the laws of others in preference to the Commands and Laws of Allah, is also considered shirk, unbelief and a rebellion.

Keeping in view of these two aspects of the meaning of worship, the Unity of Allah in worship would mean that every form of worship i.e. Prayer, fasting, pilgrimage, poor-due, charity, bowing down and prostration, offerings and oblation, circumambulation, retreat supplication, beseeching, seeking help and making complaints, obedience and servitude and subordination are reserved for Allah alone. In any of the above modes of worship, to join any creature along with Allah will be polytheism in worship.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

What does belief in unity in worshipping Allah mean to you?

3.3 Unity of Allah in His Attributes

The Unity of Allah in His attributes comprises unalloyed belief in all His attributes as described in the Qur’ān and the Hadīth and that in all His attributes Allah is unique, incomparable and peerless.

The attributes of Allah are countless and so many that it is not possible to enumerate them, or to comprehend them in imagination. Allah declares in Q.18:109):

“Say (O Muhammad to Mankind), “If the sea were ink (with which to write) the Words of my Lord, surely, the sea would be exhausted before the Words of my Lord would be exhausted, even if we brought (another sea) like it for its aid.”

And He also declares in Q.31: 27:

“And if all the trees on the Earth were pens and the sea (were ink with which to write), with seven seas behind it to add to its (supply), yet the Words of Allah would not be exhausted. Verily, Allah is All-Mighty, All-Wise.”

In the above two verses “Words mean Attributes of Allah. According to the two verses you should never be surprised that the Attributes of Allah are really as unlimited that the pens made out of all the trees in this world and the ink of the ocean cannot write about all of them.”

Here, as an example, we will discuss only one attribute, from which assumption about other attributes can be made; about how true are the sayings of the Holy Qur'ān based on reality. One attribute of Allah is of hearing, Who always hears. Consider how Allah is hearing the supplications, complaints, whisperings and conversations of millions of human beings simultaneously, not for some days or some months or some years but has been doing so for thousands of years and in taking decisions separately for every individual, He never felt any difficulty or fatigue. Imagine how, during the Hajj at the plain of Arafat, where between two and three million people continuously supplicate before their Creator; Allah hears the complaints of every individual, and is acquainted with the wants and desires of every one and is aware of the secrets of the hearts of every one and then according to His plan, makes decisions separately for every individual. He never forgets, nor is there any oppression and neither does He feel any difficulty. Moreover even at the same time, apart from those at the plain of Arafat, Allah is hearing the conversations, supplications, complaints etc. of millions of people around the world.

All this is about one species: man, “inhabiting the universe.” Similar is the case of the Jinns who like human beings are busy in the worship and service of Allah. It is not known how many jinns, at any one time are busy beseeching Allah, Who is listening to them, Who fulfils their wants and desires. Apart from the jinns and human beings there are other creatures of Allah viz. angels who are continuously busy in praising and sanctifying Allah Who is hearing them also.

Apart from the jinns, human beings and angels there innumerable other creatures that inhabit the land whose number is known to Allah. All of them are engaged in praising and sanctifying Allah Who listens to them. Similarly countless other creatures living in oceans and the rivers and flying in the air are all praising and sanctifying Him.

The blessed being of Allah is listening to the prayers of each and every one of them.

Apart from the living creatures other objects in the Universe such as stones, trees, sun, stars, earth and sky, mountains and even the smallest particles in the Universe are engaged in praising and sanctifying Him, and to which Allah is attentive.

It is said that apart from this world of ours there are many other objects in the Universe in which several other creatures live. If this were true then Allah is also hearing their prayers. Consider, Allah is hearing such countless animate and inanimate creatures praising and sanctifying Him and this does not tire Him nor keep Him from His other works nor does it affect the smooth functioning of the Universe.

The reality is that just one attribute of Allah viz.: “One who listens” is such that to understand it fully is not only far off but even to imagine it is difficult. From the study of this just one attribute of Allah namely “Hearing” may be assumed the incomprehensibility of understanding His infinite other attributes such as: the Sovereign, the Creator, the Provider, the Bestower of forms, the Exalted in Might, the Supreme, the Seer, Aware of all, the Knowing, the Wise, the Compassionate, the Generous, High in Dignity, the Subsisting, the Great Forgiver, the Merciful, the Great One, the Strong, the Approver, the Watcher, the Laudable, the Powerful, the First, the Last, the Acceptor of Repentance, the Kind, the Independent, Blessed art Thou and Dignified and Bestowed of Bounties etc. and then ponder over the two above-mentioned verses of Sura Al-Kah’f and Sūra Luqmān as to how Allah the Generous has spoken the Truth. To include any other creature in all the Attributes or in any one of the attributes will be polytheism in regard to His Attributes.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

- i. Discuss the uniqueness of Allah in His Attributes.
- ii. Illustrate belief in the uniqueness of Allah in His attributes with one example.

4.0 CONCLUSION

Tawhīd as technical term connotes monotheism which signifies unity of Allah in His Being, in worshipping Him and in His attributes. It is heretical to believe that someone is the son or daughter of Allah or to say that some among His creation is a part and portion of His Being or to consider that the Being of Allah is present in everything and everywhere. All such notions are called polytheism (shirk).

The Unity of Allah in worship would mean that every form of worship is reserved for Allah alone. The various ways by which people join any creature along with Allah in worshipping Him will be polytheism in worship.

The Unity of Allah in His attributes comprises unalloyed belief in all the countless description of Allah in the Qur'ān and the Hadīth and that in all His attributes Allah is unique.

5.0 SUMMARY

The impact faith in the unity of Allah in His essence (dhātihi), in worshipping Him, and in His works, attributes (sifatihi) will have on the faithful is hereby summarised as follows:

- (i) Steadfastness: “Allah will establish in strength those who believe with – the word that stands firm in this world and in the Hereafter.” Thus, whether it is the storms of the false faiths, assaults of grief and sorrow, or cruelties of tyrannical rulers or evil men, nothing can shake the conviction of a believer in the Unity of Allah. The much needed steadfastness required to answer properly the questioning of the Angels, Munkir and Nakeer, in the grave shall also be found in him.
- (ii) Safety from Superstition and Respect for Mankind: Polytheism involves human beings in many superstitions: fear of gods and goddesses, of natural phenomena, of Jinn, of tyrannical rulers etc. Conviction by the Unity of Allah makes man free from these fears and grants him freedom, body and soul.

“We have honoured the sons of Adam, made them ride in-land and on water-ways and provide them beneficial sustenance, and we place them above many of our creatures.”

- (iii) Faith in Unity and Equality of Mankind: Allah the One created Adam from clay and all the other human being from Adam. All of them have equal rights. The entire mankind is of one class before God; all the human beings should bow down before the one Creator, should obey the Commands and the Laws of the one Being, and consider themselves as servants of the one Being Allah.
- (iv) Spiritual Peacefulness: There are thousands of signs present within man to testify to the Unity of Allah. Everything in the Universe supports this Unity of Allah. From his very births man is created a Unitarian. In the Holy Qur'ān Allah declares:

“So (Oh Muhammed) set your face towards the religion of pure Islamic Monotheism, (Hanifiyyah i.e. to worship Allah Alone) Allah’s “Fitrah” (human nature), with which he has created mankind. (Q. 30:30)

1.0 INTRODUCTION

The term Īmān (meaning faith or belief) is very significant in Islam. It is the pivot around which the rest of the principles and pillars of the religion revolves. In other words all other deeds of man are a waste or at a loss for lack of Īmān. Thus the word occupies a special position in Islamic theology. This unit therefore welcomes you to a detailed discussion of the term presenting the view-points of the various schools of Islamic theology.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- relate the significance of the term Īmān from the view-points of the various Islamic schools of theology and their bases
- give the basis for the stand of the various schools
- explain the relationship between Īmān and Islam
- highlight the legal implication of Islam and Īmān as in the context of Qur’ān and Ḥadīth
- evaluate whether Īmān accepts increase or decrease.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 View Points of the Sunnis (i.e. Muslim Majority; the Ash'arites and the Maturidites)

Three schools of Islamic theology have given divergent view-points on the concept of faith in Islam. These are stated for you here as follows:

According to the Ash'arites' majority and the Maturidites, Īmān implies conviction in the heart (a`t-Taṣdīq al-Qalbī), submission, to be pleased and to accept the mission of the Prophet Muhammad (S). Conviction in this regard without submission is not Īmān. Thus whoever knows the mission of the Prophet Muhammad but refuses to submit to it is an infidel. Allah (SWT) says: "They know him as they know their children but a group of them conceals the truth knowingly. Belief in the unity of God, Apostles and Angels, Obligation of observance of Salat and prohibition of adultery are examples of the Prophet's mission.

To have faith in those Prophets on whom there is consensus of opinion and those in whose prophethood there is disagreement; the prominent Angels the Prophets mentioned in the Qur'ān is another example of the mission of the Prophet. In this regard, denial of the prophethood of any of the Prophets by a Mukallaf will lead to been declared an infidel. The common man may however not be declared an infidel unless he had earlier on been taught. Abstention from all filthy acts like adultery or fornication, theft and the likes of these grievous sins should be perceived as parts of the prohibitions in the prophetic mission.

In this regard, utterance of the Shahadatayn is conditional to the application of mundane judgments. Since conviction is in the heart it then implies there must be proof for interacting with the person like a believer. Thus whoever has faith in his heart, but refuses to utter it in words without any excuse or refusal, is a believer in the sight of Allah but an unbeliever in mundane judgements. The dumb and he who dies shortly after his confessional statement are to be regarded as believers in both. The intransigent is an unbeliever in the sight of Allah and in the sight of men. But whoever affirms openly but denies in his heart is an unbeliever in the sight of Allah, a believer in the sight of men as long as we cannot see any act of infidelity from him such as desecration of the Mushaf (the Glorious Qur'ān).

This discussion of making confessional statement is in respect of an unbeliever who wants to embrace Islam. The children of believers are born believers even if confessional statements are not uttered by them.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Examine the concept of Īmān from the point of view of the Asha'rites majority and the Ma'turidites.

3.2 Proof that Īmān Means Conviction only and that Declaration and Actions are not Parts of its Reality

- (i) Divine words which say: "It is they who have faith inscribed in their hearts". "...And his heart is at peace with faith". "And when faith enters into your heart". The Holy Prophet (SAW) says: "O Lord make firm my heart on the religion". All these are evidence that the place of faith is the heart. In other words, faith is in the heart while actions are performed by the parts of the body.
- (ii) Linguistically, Īmān connotes conviction and there is nothing to prove that the word has implication of conviction, proclamation and action.
- (iii) The opposite of Īmān is kufr which implies intransigence. Since its place is the heart then the place of its opposite which is Īmān should be the heart.

Furthermore the proof that the significance of Īmān is exclusive of confession are: divine words which say "except one who is compelled and his heart is at peace with Īmān. This shows that lack of confession cannot necessitate negation of Īmān.

This school of theology also buttresses the view that deeds are not part of reality of Īmān with the following:

- (i) Allah's mention of deed after mentioning of Īmān which implies they are not the same. He (SWT) says: "Those who believe and do good deeds..."
- (ii) His command of action after establishment of faith: "O ye who believe fasting is ordained on you...."
He (SWT) joins faith with disobedience when He says: "Those who believe and do not cover their faith with wrong doing..."
- (iii) The coming together of Īmān and sins "those who belief and do not mix their faith with injustice; and if two parties among the believers fight each other".

- (iv) Īmān being made conditional for the validity of deed thus implying difference of the conditioned from the condition. Allah says “whosoever do good deeds and he is a believer shall never be denied of his reward”.
- (v) Prophet’s limitation of his explanation of Īmān to conviction in his reply to Angel Jibril’s question.
  - This school of thought is seen as the best concerning concept of Īmān in Islam.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Buttress the stand of the Orthodox on the concept of Īmān with quotations from Qur’ān and Ḥadīth.

3.3 The School of Thought of Abu Hanifah and His Followers

In the opinion of Abu Hanifah and his followers, Īmān (faith) implies conviction in the heart and pronouncement of the Shahādatayn (the twin formula of testimony to the unity of Allah and apostleship of the Prophet Muhammad (at-taṣḍiq wa `l-iqrār).

Īmān is thus a name given to actions of the heart and the tongue. In other words, verbal attestation of faith is a part of reality of Īmān, whoever fails to make the statement at least once in his life time will not be adjudged a believer, neither by Allah nor by the believers. It is the dumb who is exempted because he has excuse for not making it.

Abu Hanifah and his supporters buttressed their view with the prophetic saying: “I have been commanded to fight people until they utter Lā ilāha illallah.” And he who utters Lā ilāha ilallah has himself and his wealth protected except with right and his judgement is left with Allah.

In refutation of this, it is said that the Ḥadīth only meant that application of Islamic rules upon a living human being in this world is conditional to the pronouncement of the formula. Consequent upon it is safety of blood and property not necessarily salvation in the hereafter; because deeds of the tongue have no effect in the hereafter. “Whoever disbelieve after his belief, unless by compulsion, while his heart is at peace with faith”, and “certainly the hypocrites are at the bottom of the hell-fire” are two Qur’ānic passages confirming that the act of the tongue has no effect in the hereafter unless they emanate from the right belief.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Which opinion do you see as more sound between that of the Ash‘arites and that of the Hanifites on the concept of Īmān and its basis, and why?

3.4 The Views of the Kharijites, the Mu’tazilites, the Jurists and the Traditionists

The Kharijites, Mu’tazilites, and some Jurists and Traditionalists give the concept of Īmān as accompanying conviction of the heart and proclamation of the Shahādatain (Lā Ilāha illallāhu Muhammad Rasūlullah with action.

The Kharijites maintained that conviction, proclamation and action constitute three parts of faith; and that they are of the same category. Whoever lacks any of the three parts should be considered a kāfir.

As for the Mu’tazilites, they maintained that absence of conviction of the heart and proclamation in words renders one kāfir while lack of action puts one in between Īmān and kufr (i.e. manzilah bayna manzilatayn). He is called by them a fāsiq who will be perpetual in hell fire.

They buttress their point of view with the following:

1. That the disobedient shall abide in hell while a Mūmin shall not. “He who disobeys Allah and His Messenger, then goes beyond His limits shall enter hell and abide therein. He (SWT) also says: “Whosoever kills a believer intentionally shall have hell as his reward abiding in it.
2. Disappearance of faith in the face of disobedient action. The Holy Prophet (SAW) is reported to have said “An adulterer ceases to be an Mūmin when he is committing adultery.”

The majority debunked this claim by saying that what is intended by mashī’ah in the passage is shirk; and what is intended by qatl is its legitimisation; and that the intention in the perpetuity in hell is prolonged stay; and that the Hadīth only negated perfect faith. This is supported by the Prophets statement: “Whoever proclaims lā Ilāha illallāhu will be admitted in Paradise even if he fornicates or steals whether Abu Dharr likes or not”.

The Jurist and the Traditionalists are of the opinion that all these divisions/parts (action, speech and thought) are not of the same category. He who lacks conviction in his heart (tasdiq) lacks faith which will result to Salvation in the hereafter. Lack of Īmān on which mundane judgements are based follows lack of declaration (Iqrār). And where action is lacking perfect faith lacks. “Surely the faithful ones are those who when Allah is mentioned, their hearts tremble and when his sign is read to them, it increases them in faith...” These are indeed the true faithful ones. And also Allah says: “Surely the believers have succeeded... These are they that shall be the inheritors of Paradise...” And the Holy Prophet (SAW) says: faith is seventy (70) plus, while modesty is part of faith”.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Examine the three components of Īmān according to Kharijites, the Mu'tazilites, the Jurists and the Traditionalists.

3.5 Relationship between the Words Islam and Īmān and its Legal Implication

- This discussion on the word “Islam” is only to explain its linguistic and legal significance and its relationship with Īmān.
- Linguistically, Islam means submission openly and secretly.

On its legal implication there are diverse opinions.

In the Ash'arite's school of thought, Islam means open compliance with the message of the Prophet (SAW). In other words, it connotes submission to the Commandments and the Prohibitions manifested in the utterance of the two formula of testimony i.e. (Lā Ilāha illallāhu, Muhammad Rasulullah). As for other deeds, like Ṣalāt, Zakāt and Ṣiyām, mere recognition of them by a Mukallaf when asked about them can be accepted as adequate compliance and submission.

- The Maturidites and some Ash'arite authorities maintain that Islam is inner conviction. They based their view on the sayings of Allah: “Is he whom Allah has expanded his bosom with Islam...” Thus verbal declaration is only a proof and deeds are only complimentary. The supporters of the first opinion however replied that the verse implies acceptance of Islam.

Islam and Īmān are both used as synonyms in the Qur'ān. Allah (SWT) says:

“We brought out from it those who were Mūmins (believers), we found not there in except a house of the Muslims”.

“My people, if you believe (have Īmān) in Allah, then put your trust in Him if you are Muslims”.

“Do not die except as Muslim”. And “Whoever seeks a faith beside Al-Islam, it shall not be accepted from him”.

Thus both Īmān and Islam have been used to signify both apparent and inner submission while the religion as a whole is intended.

They are also both used as antonyms. Allah says:-

“The Arabs say we believe (Īmān), say (O Muhammad): you do not believe but say we submit (Muslims) until the faith enters into your heart” and He says “It is they in whose hearts is faith”

In a Ḥadīth, the Prophet (SAW) was asked by Angel Jubril concerning faith: he replied: faith is to believe in Allah, his Angels, his books, his messengers, the last day the Qadar (predestination).

Then the Prophet asked about Islam and he said: Islam is the shahadatain, Ṣalāt, Zakāt, Ṣiyām, and Hajj:

On the other hand Īmān is used to imply inner conviction while Islam is used to imply outer submission. Also, both were used interchangeably i.e. that Islam signifies outer and inner submission while Īmān implies inner submission.

The Prophet (SAW) was asked “which of the deeds is best?” He replied: Islam. Then he was asked: “Which Islam is the best? He answered: Īmān (faith). Therefore Īmān (faith) is in the heart, and it is the best of the deeds whether carried out by the tongue or through action by the parts of the body.

Both were also used in their linguistically connotations i.e. that Īmān means to be convinced with anything, truth or false. Allah says: “And he who disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah...” and He says: “...Those who believe in falsehood and disbelieve in Allah...”

And Islam is used to mean absolute submission. Allah says: “They say we worship your lord and the lord of your fathers Ibrahim, Ismael, Ishaq, the one lord, in whom we all submit.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Find the extent of the relationship between the terms Islam and Īmān. Give their legal implication from the Qur'ān and Ḥadīth.

3.6 Increase and Decrease of Īmān

The Muslim theologians are divided into three schools, on whether Īmān increases or decreases;

1. From the Ash'arites point of view Īmān increases and decreases by increase and decrease in the observance of religious duties and obligations. They based their opinion on reason (aql) and revelation (naql).

They argue that, for instance, Īmān of the Prophets, the Angels and the Rightly Guided Caliphs and Īmān of those addicts to transgression and sinners cannot be said to be equal; they vary in degree. And says Recitation of His signs to them make their Īmān to increase. It also says: "so that they may add faith to their faith" Q. 48:4); fear them, and it added to their faith; and "as for the believers, their faith was caused to increase and they received glad tidings.

They also referred to the statement credited to the Prophet which read: The faith of Abubakr is greater than those of the Ummah altogether. And when ibn Umar asked him (SAW): "Does Īmān increase or reduce? His answer was: "Yes, it increases until it enters the faithful Paradise; and it decreases until the person enters hell". Even though, he will not be there perpetually.

Thus it is evidenced in the Qur'ān and Ḥadīth that Faith increases; and whatever can increase in degree, can also reduce.

2. From the point of view of Abu Hanifah and many other theologians Īmān does not accept increase or decrease. They argue that since Īmān connotes faith based on certainty and submission its increase cannot be imagined because there exist no other grade over certainty. Its decrease cannot be imagined as well; because reduction in certainty becomes conjecture and doubt; and this will result in lack of Īmān.

They maintained that "increase" in the verses on which other theologians based their views are relative to the issues in question in their contexts. Religious duties are revealed piecemeal on several occasions. The verses thus only described the attitudes of the companions when they were receiving training in revelations brought to the Prophet. Increase in faith as used in the Hadīth thus connotes “deeds”. For instance, “Allah will not waist your faith” in Q.....” connotes Ṣalāt observed facing the Mosque of Jerusalem.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Does Īmān increase and decrease?

4.0 CONCLUSION

According to the Ash‘arites’ majority and the Maturidites, Īmān implies conviction in the heart (a`t-Taṣdīq al-Qalbī), submission, to be pleased and to accept the mission of the Prophet Muhammad (S). In the School of Abu Hanifah and his supporters, both conviction in the heart and verbal declaration of the tongue are indivisible components of the reality of Īmān. The Kharijites, the Mu’tazilites, the Jurists and the Traditionalists maintain that Īmān consists of three components, viz conviction, declaration and action. Islam and Īmān are sometimes interchangeably used, but in reality, while Islam implies open submission to the commandments and prohibitions of God, Īmān implies inner conviction manifested in the utterance of the shahādātayn. In the opinion of the Ash‘arites, Īmān increases by increase in the observance of religious duties and decreases by decrease in the observance of religious obligations.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit opens with a detail presentation of the concept of Īmān from the point of view of the Ash‘arites’ majority and the Maturidites providing the Qur’ān and Hadīth basis of the stand of the school. This is followed by the view-points of the Hanifites and its basis and those of the Kharijites, Mu’tazilites, the Jurists and the Traditionalists.

Other related matters expatiated upon includes relationship between Islam and Īmān and their legal implications and whether Īmān accepts increase or decrease.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. “According to the Ash‘arites and the majority view, Īmān implies inner conviction with the mission of the Prophet Muhammad alone. Elaborate on this statement.
2. Write notes on the concept of Īmān from the view-points of:
  - a. Abu Hanifah and his supporters
  - b. the Kharijites, the Mu’tazilites, and others.

3. Discuss the relationship between Islam and Īmān showing their legal implications in the Qur'ān and Ḥadīth.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

You will agree with me that a divine religion is as a matter of necessity brought to humanity through God's messengers and prophets. In this unit you will be presented with an elaboration of this important aspect of theology. Since this is a pertinent point to introduce you to the three categories which the understanding of articles of faith in Islam are usually classified, let us clarify that first before we proceed further.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- analyse the three categories to which the articles of faith are usually classified and apply it to the concept of prophethood and apostleship in Islam
- give account of the significance of belief in the Apostles of God and His Messengers
- explain the terms Nabiyy and Rasūl
- identify the necessary, impossible and possible qualities of the Messengers
- highlight the significance of miracles in the mission of the Messengers of God.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 The Three Categories to which Articles of Faith in Islam are usually classified

The understanding of the articles of faith is usually classified into three categories; the wājib (necessary), the mustahil (impossible) and the jāiz (possible). The wājib (necessary) is that the nonexistence of which cannot be apprehended by the intellect ('aql) that is, the intellect cannot affirm its nonexistence, as boundary to a body (jirm), i.e. its taking up a certain measure of space (farāgh). An example of a body is a tree or a stone. Then, whenever a person says to you that a tree, for example, does not take up room (mahall) in the earth, your intellect cannot affirm that, for its taking up room is necessary thing, the absence of which your intellect cannot affirm.

The mustahīl (impossible) is that the existence of which the intellect cannot affirm; Then, whenever anyone says that such a body is bare of motion and rest at the same time, your intellect cannot affirm that, because being bare of motion and rest at the same time is an impossibility, the occurrence and the existence of which the intellect cannot affirm, and whenever it is said that weakness ('ajz) is impossible in God, the meaning is that the occurrence or existence of weakness in God is unthinkable; so, too, with the other impossibilities.

And the jāiz (possible) is that the existence of which at a time, and the nonexistence at another, the intellect can affirm, as the existence of a child for Zayd's. When , then, someone says that Zayd has a child, your intellect acknowledges the possibility of the truth of that; and whenever he says that Zayd has no child, your intellect acknowledges the possibility of the truth of that. So the existence and the nonexistence of a child of Zayd are possible; the intellect can believe in its existence or in its nonexistence. And whenever it is said that God's sustaining Zayd with a dinar is a possibility, the meaning is that the intellect assents to the existence of that sustaining (rizq) at one time and to its nonexistence at another.

On these three distinctions, then, is based the articles of belief; and these three are necessary for every mukallaf [one who has a task imposed upon him; in this case of religious duty, male and female, for that upon which the necessary is based is necessary.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Identify, with brief explanation, the three distinctions on which the articles of belief in Islam are based.

3.2 The Significance of Belief in Apostles of God and His Messengers

Belief in Apostles of God and His Messengers is a principal article of faith in Islam. Thus every Mukallaf must believe that Allah sent Messengers to humanity from among them, giving good tidings of His reward and warning of His punishment. This is inclusive in Q.2:285, one of the passages that enumerate the Islamic articles of faith. Whoever denies it is considered an infidel.

The Sunnis maintain that the sending of Apostles belongs to the category of that which is possible in God. He sent them out of the mercy and grace He has for His servants because of its benefits for them and not by way of necessity.

The Mutazillah, on the other hand, considered sending of Apostles as incumbent on God. This is based on their principle of salah wa 'l-aslah which means justice demands that God ensures what is salutary to humanity here on earth and in the hereafter on it. You will however see that this contradicts the principle that Allah does what He wills and no compulsion on Him whatsoever.

It is also incumbent to believe in the truthfulness of the mission of the Prophets, take them as role model and comply with their teachings. It is also incumbent to believe in the books sent to them as revelation from God; and that they generally were provided with divine protection and miracles to support their mission.

Although their number is unknown because Q.40:78 says: “We narrated the story of some of them to you and We did not narrate the story of some of them”. It is incumbent to believe specifically in twenty five of them who are mentioned in Qur’ān. The meaning of Chapter 6: verse 82 reads:

That was the reasoning about us which we gave to Abraham (to use) against his people: We raise whom we will, degree after degree; for thy Lord is full of wisdom and knowledge. We gave him Isaac and Jacob: all (three) we guided: and before him we guided Noah and among his progeny, David, Solomon, Job Joseph, Moses and Aaron: thus do We reward those who do good; And Zakariya and John and Jesus and Elias: all in the ranks of the righteous: And Ismail and Elisha and Jonas and

Lot: and to all We gave favor above the nations.

Others to be included in this belief are Idris, Hud, Shuayb, Šālih, Dhu `l-Kifl, Adam and Muhammad.

It is also compulsory to believe generally in the revealed books and particularly those mentioned in the Qur'ān i.e. Zabur, Taorat, Injil, and the Qur'ān. And it is necessary to confess that the most excellent of created beings, absolutely, is our Prophet Muhammad; and there follow him in excellence the rest of the Endowed with Earnestness and Patience (ulū'l-'azm; see Qur. 46: 34); they are Ibrahim, Musa, Isa, and Nuh. The correct view is that they are five along with our Prophet and four after him. They are so called because they exercised patience and endured persecution of their people and more hardship than others. And it is said too, that the Endowed with Earnestness and Patience are more numerous. And there follow them in excellence the rest of the Apostles, then, the rest of the prophets, then the Angels.

And it is necessary to confess that God has aided them with miracles (mu'jizāt) and that He has distinguished our Prophet in that he is the seal of the Apostles, and that his law (shar') will not be abrogated till time is fulfilled. And Isa, after his descent, will judge according to the law of our Prophet. It is said that he will take it from the Qur'ān and the Sunnah.(al-Fudālī).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

How many Messengers did Allah raise for humanity? Mention the names of some of them.

3.3 Significance of the Terms Nabiyy and Rasūl

A Nabiyy (Prophet) is one to whom law is revealed whether commanded to deliver the law or not while a Rasūl (Messenger or Apostle) is one to whom law is revealed and commanded to deliver it. Nabiyy is therefore wider in sense than Rasūl. In other words, every Rasūl is a Nabiyy while not every Nabiyy is a Rasūl.

In another opinion, the two imply the same meaning and have been defined as One sent by God to deliver the message revealed to him. The first definition is however the most acceptable. Allah says: "Rasūl and Nabiyy were sent before you". Further when the Prophet (S) was asked about the number of the Anbiyā, he replied 124,000; then he was asked: How many of them were Rasūl? He replied 313".

Thus Rasūl is One who received law and was commanded to deliver it while Nabiyy was One who received law but not commanded to deliver it. In other words, Rasul received a new book containing new divine law or abrogating part of law existing before it while a Nabiyy only supports law of his predecessor. Revelation to a Rasūl is usually through Angel Jibril while revelation to a Nabiyy could be through a voice or a vision.

They were all men, best in intelligent and morals among their people, wisest and best in opinion, safe from blemishes of paternal and maternal lineage, harshness and scaring defects and immoralities.

Are Risālah (Apostolate) and Nubuwwah (Prophet-hood) divine gift or through acquisition? It is maintained in Islam that Risālah and Nubuwwah are gifts from God. He grants them to whom He pleases among His servants. They are His special grace to the chosen ones among His creatures. He chooses for His mercy that He wishes and He knows best whom He should saddle with His message.

Risālah is hence to choose a servant of God for receiving divine revelation and be instructed to deliver it. Nubuwwah is to choose a servant of God for receiving divine revelation whether with or without instruction to deliver it.

Saint-hood could however be through acquisition or divine gift.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Differentiate between the two terms Nabiyy and Rasūl. Can the two be acquired?

3.4 Necessary, Impossible and Possible Qualities of the Messengers

The Messengers are emissaries between God and His creatures delivering His commandments and prohibitions; and promises and threats; and teaching the things that are hidden to them and which they need such as the principles of occupations and different kinds of worship and attributes of the Creator, the Almighty and matters relating to the heavens and heavenly bodies.

It is thus necessary that they should have qualities that will guarantee the objective of their mission. Thus all human perfect qualities are necessary for them. This includes veracity in all their sayings (Ṣidq), infallibility (ʿiṣmah), that is, their being preserved from falling into muḥarrām or makrūh (things forbidden or disliked) and (amānah) trustworthiness.

Others are qualities of tablīgh (conveying to the creatures that they were commanded to convey); and faṭānah (intelligence). These four things are necessary qualities of Apostles in the sense that the lack of them is unthinkable.

The opposites of these four are impossible in the Apostles, that is, Lying (kidhb), Unfaithfulness (khiyānah), in a thing forbidden or disliked, Concealment (kitmān) of a thing they have been commanded to convey, and Stupidity (balādah). These four are impossible in them, in the sense that the existence of them is unthinkable.

The last of the articles relating to them is the possibility of the occurrence of such human conditions in them as do not lead to defect in their lofty rank. And the proof of existence of veracity in them is that if they were to lie, then information from God would be a lie, for He has guaranteed the claim of the Apostles by the manifestation of miracles at their hands. For the miracle is revealed in place of an utterance from God, “My servant is truthful in all that he brings from Me.” (al-Fuḍālī).

And as for the proof of trustworthiness, that is, their being preserved internally and externally from forbidden and disliked things, if they were unfaithful in committing such things, we would be commanded to do the like. But it is impossible that we would be commanded to do a forbidden or disliked thing, “For God does not command a vile thing” (Q7: 27).

And as for the proof of intelligence, if it were failing in them, how would they be able to establish an argument against an opponent? But the Qur’ān indicates in more than one place, that they must establish arguments against adversaries. And such establishing of arguments is only possible with intelligence.

And the proof that they can fall into human accidental conditions is that contained in reports about their lofty rank; and that occurrence of illness in them for example, is for the sake of increase in their lofty rank, and that others may be consoled, and that the thoughtful may know that the world is not a place of recompense for the lovers of God; since if it were, why should something of the vexations of the world befall the apostles?

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Enumerate the Necessary, Impossible and Possible Qualities of the Messengers with their proofs.

3.5 Miracles

Miracles are abnormal matters or events occurring from a Prophet when challenged by opponents of his mission alike of which the opponents will be unable to produce. It is called Mu'jizah in the Islamic theology.

Mu'jizah belongs to the category of possible qualities. The inimitability of the Qur'ān and stories of miracles of Prophets are proofs of possibility of miracles. It is a manifest of power of God to bring things about in an extra-ordinary manner and out of natural rule or through a special means which may be beyond our comprehension. But its impact will occur from the hands of a Prophet.

The proof of verity of divine message by Mu'jizah is incontrovertible in the opinion of the majority of theologians whether such Mu'jizahs occurred during or before the time of the Prophets. Men who were with the Prophets witnessed them with certainty. So also are reports about them, generations after generations.

Miracles of Prophet Muhammad: Allah (SWT) supported Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) with several miracles. Report of some, like the Qur'ān, reached us in succession. There is unanimity about others the details of which differs among groups and individuals, such as reports of pebbles uttering glory of God in his hands, stones and trees that greeted him and water that flew from his glorious fingers.

Whoever denies the inimitability and miraculous nature of the Qur'ān and reports of miracles in the holy book is regarded a kāfir against whom deterrent measures may be taken. On the other hands denial of other extra-ordinary occurrences will only make a person intransigent.

Meanwhile, Qur'ān is the greatest of all the miracles. It is the living miracle. Its inimitability remains a challenge that will never be faulted. Sharī'ah rules and rational sciences were derived from it. It contains reports of past peoples and nations. It is divinely protected from interpolation and alteration. It challenged the eloquent poets and orators and they failed to produce a kind of it. They thus resorted to taking of arms and shedding of blood. It thus became evidence of the Prophet's mission and the ultimate miracle.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give an Islamic stand on the concept of miracle.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The articles of belief in Islam are based on three distinctions, viz: wājib (the necessary) jāiz (the possible) and mustahīl (the impossible). All schools of Islamic theology maintain that belief in Prophet of God and His Messengers is a principal article of faith in Islam. The Sunnis however hold the view that sending of Apostles to man by God belonged to the categories of possible things (i.e. out of His mercy, not as a matter of necessity). The Mu‘tazilah, considered it wājib (i.e. necessary) based on their principle that justice demands that God ensures what is salutary to humanity.

The most acceptable opinion is that a Nabiyy (Prophet) is one to whom law is revealed whether commanded to deliver the law or not while a Rasūl (Messenger or Apostle) is one to whom law is revealed and commanded to deliver it. God honours with both whom He chooses; they are not acquired; it is only saint-hood that can be acquired.

Qualities of Veracity, Infallibility, Trustworthiness and Intelligence are qualities necessary in them (wājib). The opposites of these, viz. Lying, Betrayal of trust, Concealment of message and Stupidity are impossible qualities in them (mustahīl). Occurrence of such human accidents in them as do not lead to defect in their lofty rank is possible (jāiz).

The proof of verity of divine message by Mu‘jizah is incontrovertible in the opinion of the majority of theologians. Whereas whoever denies the miraculous nature of the Qur’ān and reports of miracles in the holy book is a kāfir, denial of other extra-ordinary occurrences reported from Prophet Muhammad will only make a person intransigent.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit opens with an explanation of the three categories to which articles of faith in Islam are classified. It expatiates the significance of the creed and highlights the divergent views of the theological schools. It gives an idea about the number and names of some of them buttressed with references to sacred texts of Islam. The distinction between a Prophet and an Apostle and the question of whether they were through divine grace or acquisition are clarified. A discussion of the wājib (necessary), mustahīl (impossible) and jāiz (possible) qualities in them is also included. The unit is concluded with a brief examination of the concept of miracle.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Discuss the significance of the terms Nabiyy and Rasūl.
2. Write a short note on miracle with particular reference to the miracles of the Prophet Muhammad.
3. Examine fully the three categories to which faith in Islam are usually classified.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

As you should have expected, there were people who usually engaged in religious pursuits and discussions as early as the time of the Prophet Muhammad.

The Ahlu ‘l-Suffah (known as the People of the Platform in the Mosque of the Prophet in Medina) could be cited as an example. This group generally did discuss matters religious applying reason where needed. It may not be out of place to mention Ali, Ibn Mas‘ud, ‘Aishah, Mu‘ādh ibn Jabal along with them. Perhaps the report that the Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) once met some Companions arguing on the issue of Qadar and discouraged them refers to them.

In this unit, three early theological movements associated with discussion on predestination shall be presented to you.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- identify the Jabarites and highlight their views on predestination
- identify the Qadarites and highlight their views on predestination
- highlight the Muslim Majority's opinion on predestination
- discuss what is regarded as grave sin and its consequences.

3.1 The Jabariyyah (Jabarites)

In the pre-Mutazilite era, before 105 A.H./732 A.D., certain Muslims held the belief that what man will be or do on earth has been predetermined by God. So, no matter how pious or impious he was on earth, the decree of God on him would prevail. In fact, his uprightness or otherwise was regarded as manifestation of God's will. That somebody was a saint or a sinner was therefore not his own making but what God wanted him to be.

To such people, man is so weak that he cannot take any action independently. He is nothing more than a puppet in the hands of God Who manipulates him the way He likes. People of such belief often supported their stand with quotations from both Qur'ān and Ḥadīth. An instance of such quotation is Qur'ān chapter 35 verse 8, which says 'verily God leads astray whom He pleases and guides to the right path whom He pleases'; and Chapter 10 verse 26, which says 'God calls to the abode of peace and guides whom He wills into the right path'; and Chapter 42 verse 14 which also asserts that 'God elects for Himself whom He pleases and guides unto Himself who turns to repentance.

An example of quotations from the prophetic traditions (Ḥadīth) is the one which says 'what hits you could not possibly have missed you and what misses you could not probably have hit you, the pens have been raised and the papers are dry'.

Another Ḥadīth stipulates that 'a man during the process of his growth in the womb gets his life span and where he would be after death by the decree of God ever before he was born'.

Since God creates man, since God directs his actions, he has no choice but to behave according to what has been predestined for him.

The people who believed in predestination are known as the Jabarites.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who were the Jabarites? Provide some Qur'ān and Hadīth passages they cite to support their views.

3.2 The Qadariyyah (Qadarites)

The opponents of the predestination argued that certainly, God does not do evil and does not condone evil practices. That is why He punishes evildoers and rewards righteous people.

God does not create anybody to be rich or to be poor; success or failure, wealth or poverty is as a result of each man's advantages and initiatives. God does not create anyone to do evils. If He were to do this, it would be injustice on His part to turn round and punish evildoers. Furthermore, God does not guide certain people aright and lead others astray. If He were to do this, it would amount to arbitrariness and partiality on His part.

Thus the opponents asserted that man has his own volition, independence and free will to do what he likes and be rewarded accordingly, good or bad, depending solely on his choice and freewill. Because of the emphasis they laid on freewill of the people thus negating the control of God on man, the opponents of predestination were called Qadarites.

Surprisingly, the opponents of predestination used the word Qadarites for the upholders of predestination. The Qadarites refused being called this epithet because the Prophet once said that the Qadarites are enemies of God.

According to the promoters of free will, God has given man the faculty to reason and differentiate between what is good and what is bad. Besides that, 104 holy books have explained elaborately what is good and what is bad. Furthermore, that was the purpose of sending 124000 prophets like Ibrahim, Musa, Dawud and Isa to different peoples and nations at different times; and also that was why Prophet Muhammad was sent as the last of the prophets. They go further to say that that is why the Qur'ān asserts that everybody will be responsible for his own deeds. Qur'ān 17 verse 15 says: 'he who receives guidance receives it for his own benefit and he who goes astray does it at his own risk. No bearer of burden will bear the burden of another nor would we give out punishment to any group of people until we have sent an apostle to give warning’.

To argue further that God does not predestine anybody to do evil, promoters of free will, the Qadariyyah quotes Qur’ān chapter 41 verse 46 which says ‘ whoever is righteous benefits his own soul and whoever does evil does it against his own soul. Your Lord is never unjust to His servants’.

They also point to Qur’ān chapter 76 verse 3, which says: ‘God has certainly shown man the way, it’s for him to accept or reject’. They therefore reject the arguments put forward by their opponents and assert that anything contrary to their view is misinterpretation.

The pre-determinists who were surprisingly supported by the majority of the Muslims rejected the argument of free-will group saying that the latter were dualists who had set up the human being as a co-creator with God by believing that human beings can initiate their own actions and thereby determine their own fate. Some of the protagonists were; Ma’bad al Juhani, a citizen of Basra who was killed in 699 AD. Another was Ghaylan ibn Abd al Malik al-Dimashqi who was killed in about 743 AD. So also was Shabib al Najrani, who was killed almost during the same period.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who were the Qadarites? Provide some Qur’ān and Hadīth passages the quoted in support of their views.

3.3 The Muslim Majority’s Opinion

From the Sunni point of view, it is incumbent upon every Mukallaf (one on whose religious duty is imposed) to believe that it is possible for God to create good and evil; to create Islam in Zayd and unbelief in ‘Amr, knowledge in one of them and ignorance in the other.

It is also incumbent upon every Mukallaf, to believe that the good and the bad of things are by act of Destiny (qaḍā’) and act of Decree (qadar). And there is a difference of opinion as to their meaning. It is said that Destiny (qaḍā’) is the will of God and the eternal connection of that will (azali), and Decree (qadar) is God’s bringing into existence the thing in agreement with the will. So the Will of God that is connected eternally with your becoming a learned man or a Sultan is destiny, and the bringing of knowledge into existence in you, after your existence, or the Sultanship in agreement with the Will, is decree. And it is said that Destiny is God’s eternal knowledge and its connection with the thing known, and Decree is bringing things into a man after he enters existence.

Furthermore to the Sunnis, this belief belongs to the category of things the doing of which is only possible for God. By this, they assert that there is nothing incumbent upon God. He creates faith in Zayd, for example, and gives him knowledge out of His grace without there being any - لا - necessity upon Him. Hence the saying: كل نعمة منه فضل، وكل نقمة منه عدل (God's rewarding the obedient is a grace from Him, and His punishing the rebellious is justice by Him). Obedience does not advantage Him nor does rebellion injure Him. And these acts of obedience or rebellion are only signs of God's rewarding or punishing those described by them. The ones whom He wills to draw near to Himself, He helps to obedience, and in Him who's abandoning and rejecting He wills, He creates rebellion. And all acts of good and bad are by the creation of God, for He creates the creature and that which the creature does as He has said (Q37: 9): "and God has created you and that which ye do". (al-Fudali).

And the proof that possible things are possible in the case of God is that there is a general agreement on their possibility. If the doing of any possible thing was incumbent upon God, the possible would be turned into a necessary thing, if they were hindered from Him, the possible would be turned into an impossible. But the turning of the possible attribute into a necessary or an impossible one is false.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give and expatiate on the Islamic theological aphorism which summarises Sunni stand on man's actions and fortune.

3.4 The Murjites and Consequences of Grave Sin

Out of the discussion of the nature of the Islamic community and fate of its members in the hereafter, another theological sect called the Murjites emerged. Their theological view was that whether a man will enter hell or Paradise could not be settled in this world. It should therefore be postponed to the Day of Judgement when God will decide everybody's fate. For postponing such a decision, the group earned their name Murjites.

They argued that the worldliness of the Ummayah caliphs and their lukewarm attitude towards Islam as compared with the orthodox caliphs were not sufficient for anyone to refuse them recognition as leaders of Islamic community. The question of whether they are religiously qualified to rule the Islamic empire and whether the majority of the citizens were sinners who should be ostracised (banished or shut out from society) should be left in the hands of God.

This is not to say that criminals should not be punished but the fate of individual citizens who are considered sinners should be left to God, the Supreme authority. They often quoted Qur'ān chapter 4 verse 48 and chapter 4 verse 116 which say that God will not forgive the association of anything with Himself, and that apart from that He could forgive any other form of sins. The Murjites therefore consider as Muslims anyone who did not oppose the Unity of God and denounce Muhammad as His final messenger. This theological belief of leaving the matters of sinners in the hands of God puts the Murjites in a separate arm from the Kharijites who held the view that a grave sinner should be killed as you will see later.

In sum, grave sins are: the association of partners with God (shirk), deliberate killing of human beings without any justification (qatlu nafs min ghayr haqq), adultery (zina) and wrong accusation of a married woman of adultery (qadhfu 'l-muhsanāt), apostasy (riddah), running away from Jihad (firār min al-Jihād), magic (sihr), unlawful misappropriation of the wealth of the orphans (aklu māl al-yatīm), persistence in unlawful things (iṣrār alā dhamb) etc.

The Murjites were not only tolerant to sinners but also hesitant to declare anyone a good or bad Muslim simply because he committed sins. Their argument is that anyone who believes in One God and professes the Kalimat al-Shahadah i.e. formula by which a person attests to the unity of God - could not be easily declared a non-Muslim simply because he committed a sin.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Enumerate sins that are considered grave in Islam; then discuss the attitude of the Murjiites towards grave-sinners.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The Ahlu 'l-Suffah were engaged in theological pursuits during the time of the Prophet Muhammad. Where needed, they tried to work out religious doctrines in the light of reason.

The Jabariyyah and Qadariyyah were two other groups that argued the problem of predestination and free-will before 105 A.H./732 C.E. using reason and supporting their views with passages from the Qur'ān and Hadīth thus constituting another nucleus of Islamic theological movements during the Prophet's life-time.

In the opinion of the (Ahlu `s-Sunnah) the Muslim Majority, it is incumbent upon every Mukallaf, to believe that the good and the bad of things are by act of Destiny (qadā') and act of - - ١Decree (qadar). To them also كل نعمة منه فضل، وكل نقمة منه عدل (God's rewarding the obedient is a grace from Him, and His punishing the rebellious is justice by Him).

Another pre-Mutazilite era theological sect was the Murjites. Their theological view was that whether a man will enter hell or Paradise could not be settled in this world. It should therefore be postponed to the Day of Judgement when God will decide everybody's fate.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit suggests that the Ahlu `s-Suffah, the Jabariyyah and the Qadariyyah were theological groups found discussing the problem of predestination and free - will during the time of the Prophet Muhammad or before the appearance of the Mutazilah. Where needed, they did try to work out religious doctrines in the light of Qur'ān, Hadīth and reason. They could be regarded as people who prepared the ground for the school of Mu'tazilism. The unit also highlights the Muslim Majority's view on Qadā' and Qadar and discusses the Murjiites and their views on grave sin and its consequences.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. The Jabarites and the Qadarites were two precursors of theological movements in Islam. Introduce them and their views.
2. Give a highlight of the views of the Muslim Majority on the issue of man's destiny and free-will.
3. Discuss the Murjiites and their theological ideology.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In this unit we shall trace the origin of a political cum theological movement known as the Kharijite in early Islam. We will identify the Azraqites and the Najdites as its two main sub-divisions. There after you will be presented a highlight of the doctrines propounded by the political cum religious sect who has serious theological implications on the course of developments in early Islam.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- trace the origin of the Kharijites
- discuss its division into sub-sects
- highlight its political cum theological doctrines.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Emergence of the Kharijites

Subsequent to the murder of Uthman b. Affan, the third caliph in Islam on June 17, 656 AD, Ali b. Abi Talib was proclaimed the 4th caliph at the Prophet's Mosque in Medina on June 24, 566 AD. Practically, the whole Muslim states acknowledged this succession. (The new caliph was the first cousin of Muhammad and first Muslim youth.

He offered himself to be assassinated in place of the prophet by the Makkan idolaters and was later renowned as a fearless combatant in the struggle of Muslims against the polytheists. He was above all a scribe of the Holy Qur'ān, a Hafiz, exegete and a great Sahabi). The new caliph was in addition the first cousin of the Prophet, a husband of his favourite daughter Fatimah, the father of his surviving male descendants, Hasan and Husayn. Yet, however, the succession met opposition from certain circles.

Among the opponents was Mu'awiyah, the governor of his predecessor in charge of Syria. He determined as a relation of the assassinated caliph to take revenge and suspected that if the new caliph was not the assassin, he was a party to the assassination. He thus mobilised supporters from among the people of the territory where he governed and presented the new caliph with a task designed to engender crisis. He boldly asked him to produce the assassins of late Uthman or otherwise he would be held as an accomplice who thereby was not qualified to rule in Islamic territory.

At this point, war became imminent between supporters of Ali and Mu'awiyah and at a place called Siffin, on the West bank of river Euphrates soldiers of the two parties clashed. When it was becoming clear that victory was swinging to Ali's side, Mu'awiyah's supporters thought of a trick to avert defeat. They fastened copies of the Holy Qur'ān to their lances, which they held upright for everybody to see. The gesture meant that they wanted Qur'ān, rather than the sword to settle the dispute between them. They shouted: 'Judgement belongs to Allah'. Thus, Ali the caliph accordingly ordered the use of weapon to stop.

However, Ali's agreement to a peace talk wounded the feeling of a large section of his supporters. These supporters angrily broke away from his party. They seceded and were called Khawarij - Kharijites meaning seceders. (Singular: hariji). There were people who however tenaciously attached themselves to Ali and sworn never to part with him. They were the Shi'ah whose identity and doctrines will be studied in the next unit.

The Kharijites later developed certain theological doctrines, under the leadership of Abdullah b. Wahab al-Rasibi. They considered Ali and his descendants as fallible as any other human being. To them, anybody who committed a sin should be brought to book according to Qur'ānic teachings.

They thought Ali had such qualities, called charisma or supernatural powers; and that was why they followed him in the first instance. But when he went off the track and did not live up to expectation, they abandoned him. For, they could not get a fulfillment of such high quality they anticipated from a charismatic leader.

Muhammad's community was considered to have got that charisma and was regarded charismatic, a member of which was entitled to Salvation and Paradise.

Anyone who committed a great sin, the Kharijites argued would go to hell in the hereafter and should therefore be expelled from Muslim community in this world otherwise he would pollute the community and thereby prevent the law-abiding members from getting Salvation.

Their ambition to have a puritanical society made the Kharijites condemned the Shiites in their impression that both Ali and his sons were infallible leaders.

The Kharijites also opposed the prerogative leadership conferred on the Quraysh i.e. that rulers should come from the Quraysh. The Kharijites condemned this. According to them, any Muslim could be the head of an Islamic state provided that he was morally and religiously irreproachable. This standard of righteousness made the Kharijites to hold to the slogan..."La hukmah illa lillah" (Govenance belong to Allah alone).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

- i. State the genesis of the Kharijites.
- ii. Identify their few political cum theological doctrines.

3.2 Division into Sects

Later on, many sub-sects emerged within the rank and file of the Kharijites. The most important among them were the Azraqites and the Najdites.

- (i) The Azariqah, an Arabic sectarian name whose English equivalent is Azraqites, were the most militant among them all under their leader called Nafiu b. Azraq. They often found fault with the government of the day because according to them, many members of the ruling class were sinners who should be fought. They often invited other Muslims who were not Kharijites to join forces with them in order to attack the government. To avoid being arrested, they often withdrew from the society and lived in camps called Dar-al-Islam (House of Islam). In other words, they often alienated themselves from the society because they thought the society was infested. They lived in their camps so that they could maintain purity. More often than not, they encouraged other Muslims to dissent their sinful community and migrate to their camp. Those who refused to do so were called sinners and unbelievers who deserved to be killed and whose wives and children should also be killed. They constituted themselves into a terrorist gang because of their extreme puritanical theology.

- (ii) The Najdites: The other sub-sect, known in Arabic as Al-Najdat, took their name from their leader Najdat ibn Amir. This sub-sect did not only oppose the government of the day but they also succeeded between 686 AD and 692 AD in establishing an autonomous government. Their tentacles spread over a large area in central Arabia i.e. Bahrayn, Umman, Yemen and the Hadramawt.

Like the Azraqites, the Najdites views were harsh, but their experience of government in large area made them introduce some innovation e.g. Muslims who did not migrate to them and live among them were not called unbelievers (kufar) but hypocrites (munafiqun). They also told their members who as of necessity have to live under a non-Kharijite government to conceal their religious view so as to avoid persecution and victimisation. This is called Taqiyyah.

It was not without reason that the Najdites were softer than the Azraqites. They realised that the harsh theological views of the Azraqites could only be put into practice in camp with small population. In a large community, it will be difficult to identify a righteous Muslim from unrighteous ones.

They classified sins under two headings - fundamental and non-fundamental.

According to them, it is only Muslims who committed fundamental sins that should be expelled from the community while those who committed non-fundamental sins could be punished only. They also believed that Allah will punish all sinners in the hereafter but He will not allow them to remain permanently in punishment. He will grant respite to all and sundry.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Write short notes on the two most important Kharijites sub-sects highlighting the differences in their doctrines among other things.

3.3 Summary of their Political cum Theological Doctrines

1. The Kharijites opposed the Shiites who believed that the head of state was infallible. According to the Kharijites, anyone could make a mistake and once a leader does this, he should be deposed.
2. The head of state should not come from Quraysh tribe alone. Any Muslim, whether coloured or white could rule provided he was morally and religiously irreproachable.
3. None of the leaders of the Kharijites was from the Quraysh and each of them rather than being referred to as Caliph was called Amir-al-Mūmin in – the Commander of the Faithful.
4. Abu-Bakr and Umar were recognised as caliphs. Uthman was also recognised up to the first six years of his reign and Ali was recognised as a caliph up to the battle of Siffin.
5. According to them, any Muslim who commits a grave sin was an apostate. According to the Azraqite faction, such a Muslim, his wife and his children should be fought.
6. All non-Kharijite Muslims were, in the view of the Kharijites, apostates. They upheld that the conscience of the Kharijite was the only pure conscience and they regarded pure conscience as indispensable complement to purity of the body with which the act of worship could be valid.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give a list of the main political cum theological doctrines of the Kharijites

4.0 CONCLUSION

The Kharijites were a group of supporters of Ali who broke away as a result of his agreement to a peace talk at the Battle of Siffin. They further broke into sub-sects two of which were known as Azraqites and Najdites.

To them the Prophet Muhammad's community was considered charismatic, a member of which was entitled to Salvation and Paradise. Anyone who committed a grave sin, the Kharijites argued would go to hell in the hereafter and should therefore be expelled from the Muslim community.

The Kharijites condemned the Shiites in their impression that both Ali and his sons were infallible leaders.

The Kharijites also opposed the prerogative leadership conferred on the Quraysh. According to them, any morally and irreproachable Muslim could be the head of an Islamic state. The Kharijites used the title Amir for their leader; and adopted “La hukmah illa lillah” as their slogan.

5.0 SUMMARY

The Kharijites were early Muslim theological groups. Their two major sub-divisions were the Azraqites and the Najdites. They opposed the Shites in their infallible Imam doctrine as well as the Sunnis who conferred prerogative leadership on the Quraysh alone. They recognised the caliphate of Abubakr and Umar; and those of Uthman and Ali to a large extent. They regarded kharijism as the only pure conscience complementary to purity of the body required for validity of worship. To them non-Kharijites were apostates and grave sinners should be ostracized.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Give an account of the emergence of the Kharijites.
2. Write short notes on the Azraqites and the Najdites.
3. Discuss the main politico-theological doctrines of the Kharijites.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

The word Shī‘ah in the Arabic tongue connotes followers, allies, party or factions. As an Islamic theological term, the Shī‘ah are those who swore allegiance with ‘Alī ibn Abī Tālib, (the son-in-law of the Prophet Muhammad) in particular and believe that his Imamate, Caliphate or Muslim leadership is testamentary; who consider him the only rightful successor of the Prophet in the temporal and spiritual matters, and deny this right to all who did not belong to his House. It applies also to his loyalists during his struggles with Mu‘āwiyyah and supporters of the members of his household after him.<sup>2</sup>

The Shī‘ah did not surface as a conspicuous entity during the lifetime of ‘Alī ibn Abī Tālib; nor did they adopt the nomenclature. It was his murder and the murder of his son Husain at Karbala that made them politico - religious entity supporting his descendants and working towards establishing a state in their name by regarding them the rightful Caliph and formulating principles and doctrines peculiar to them.<sup>3</sup>

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define shiism and identify its main creeds
- discuss the Ithna'ashariyyah, Sab-'iyyah and Zaydiyyah Shiite sub-sects
- distinguish between the creeds of the various sub-sects.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Main Doctrines of the Shī'ah

The Main Shī'ah Creeds:

The creeds general to all Shī'ah groups are in connection with five issues; viz:

- (i) the Imamate (ii) Relationship between Ali, the Sahabah and the rest of Muslims. (iii) 'Ismah of the Imams (iv) Taqiyyah and (v) Raj' 'ah or Mahdism.

(i) Imāmah (Imamate): To them, as belief in God is an Article of Faith, so also is the belief that Imamah (the temporal and spiritual leadership of the Muslim Ummah) after Prophet Muhammad is hereditary in the House-hold of Ali. This, they argue is because Ali as a nephew to the Prophet Muhammad (S) and husband of Fatimah his daughter must have inherited the rights to rule the Ummah and interpret the hariah from the Prophet. Their children too should have been bequeathed such divine rights by their parents. Such powers could only be found in the descendants of Fatima and Ali.<sup>4</sup>

The Shī'ah even hold that the Prophet appointed 'Alī as his vicegerent in his Sermon delivered before thousands of his disciples at Ghadīru `l-Khum on the outskirts of Madina in 10 A.H. (632 C.E.) when he said: fa man kuntu mawlāhu, fa 'Aliyyun mawlāhu, meaning "hence whoever recognises me as his Master, for him 'Alī (too) is Master," With that statement the appointment (naṣṣ) of 'Alī as his vicegerent was completed and never revoked. In fact, later incidents mentioned by Shī'ī authors show that the Prophet confirmed and acted on the assumption that 'Alī was the heir apparent of the spiritual kingdom.<sup>5</sup> The salvation of man is in the love and devotion to the Imam. This is known as 'walāyah.'<sup>6</sup>

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

- i. Explain the Imamate Creed of the Shī'ah
- ii. Relationship between Ali, the Ṣahābah and the rest of Muslims.
The moderate Shiites are of the view that all the adversaries and opponents of Ali are sinners and will be perpetual in the hell fire like the infidels unless their repentance is established and they die on love and devotion to Ali.

As for the Muhājirs, the Ansārs, and the Righteous Caliphs before him, since Ali acknowledged them, related well with them and did not raise sword against them or invite anybody to do so, they cannot condemn them. Since Alī accepted their leadership and observed Salāt behind them, he has to be emulated and none can go beyond reports about his attitude to them.

Since it was established that ‘Alī did not curse the Sahabis the moderate Shiites will also treat them in likewise manner. To the moderate Shiah also, the rank of Prophethood was higher than the rank of the Imam.<sup>7</sup>

But there are Shiites who called the Chosen Sahabis infidels; and call the Caliphs before him usurpers of his right. They claim that when the Prophet was aware his death was imminent, he sent Abu Bakr and ‘Umar away in Usamah ibn Zayd’s expedition, in order to clear the city of all possible opposition and paving the way of securing bay‘ah (pledge of allegiance) for him from the remaining people. Usamah;s troops however dilly dallied for days against the wish of the Prophet and the aim was not achieved.<sup>8</sup>

In their attempts to defend their doctrines, some Shiites formulated dangerous ideas, raising doubts about the authenticity of the Qur ‘ān and Hadīth in the hands of the generality of Muslims; and claiming that only their scholars are in custody of the authentic ones.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain the Shiite creeds relating to the relationship between Ali, the Ṣahābah and the rest of Muslims.

iii. ‘Ismah (Infallibility of the Imāms):

The Shī‘ah believe that the Imām was infallible (ma‘ṣūm); he can never commit minor nor major sins because he is the link between God and humanity like the Prophets and Apostles of God. He receives revelations though of an invisible nature.<sup>10</sup>

It however seems the early Imām did not conceive the ‘Ismah doctrine and that the extremist Shī‘ah developed the idea later; a situation which led the Imām to be going into hiding and obscurity as a result of which people were denied access to evaluate their actions.

Meanwhile, the Shī‘ah claims the Imāms do things through divine inspiration and commandment. They see the Imām as the lawgiver and law enforcer who cannot be censored. He is the proof of God (Hujjatullah) and sign of God (Ayatullah).

iv. Taqiyyah:

The Shī'ah believe in the expediency of Taqiyyah, ( i.e. dissimulation or concealment of proper religious identity and theological feeling by a Shī'ī) when dwelling in a non Shī'ah State or under threat of injury to his life or property.<sup>13</sup> This also means pretension, deceit and saying something contrary to what one harbours in mind. The Shī'ah theologians find basis for this belief. They quote Q.3:28 & Q.16:106 to buttress the doctrine. They regard 'Ali's silence on the Caliphate of Abu Bakr and 'Umar, his prayer behind them and association with them as acts of Taqiyyah.<sup>14</sup>

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain the Ismah and Taqiyah doctrines of the Shi 'ah.

(v) Raj'ah or Mahdism.

The Shī'ah believe their Imām is deathless; has miraculously remained alive since his ghaybah (absence), and is an Expected Messiah who will return to fill the earth with justice, equity and prosperity.<sup>15</sup> Perhaps the first to innovate this doctrine was Abdullah b. Sabai, when he claimed that 'Ali was not killed; he was a Mahdi, an Expected Messiah who is coming back to the world to avenge his enemies. This idea then passed from his group (the Saba'iyyah) to the Kīsāniyyah who made Muhammad ibn al-Hanafiyyah their Mahdī; despite the fact that he has died, Abban ibn 'Uthmān the then Governor of Madina said the funeral prayer on him; and was buried at Baqī' near the Prophet's Mosque in Madina

The Ithnā 'Asharīs (Twelvers) believe in ghaybah, that is, the disappearance of the Imām from the world; not so the Ismā'īlīs. They believe there can be no ghaybah in this world. The Imām cannot completely disappear, even if to the profane eyes of the people he is invisible (mastūr), hidden from the sight of those whose vision does not possess the penetration of the true adept. If the Imām were to disappear from the world even for a moment, "verily, the earth would perish with all their in." This Mahdism is sometimes termed 'Raj'ah Doctrine,' meaning the returning of the Imām. Some Shī'ah have however interpreted it to mean return of States and not return of deceased Imams.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss Raj'ah or Mahdism as a doctrine of the various Shī'ah denominations.

3.2 Ithnā ‘Ashariyyah (The Twelvers)

Meanwhile the Shī‘ah are divided into several schools of theological thought and the principal case for the division was the succession after ‘Alī Zaynu ‘l-‘Ābidīn, the fourth Imām.

The majority of the Shī‘ah followed Muhammad al-Bāqir and after him Ja‘far alṢādiq. After the death of Ja‘far, another split took place, the majority followed Musā alKāzim and six Imāms after him, thus making twelve Imāms in all, hence, the name Ithnā ‘Ashariyyah (“Twelvers”). The Ithnā ‘Ashariyyah school, sometimes called the Ja‘fariyyah, deriving from the name of the sixth Imām, Ja‘far, spread widely in Persia especially during the Safawid rulers era (908-1148 A.H. when every ruler claimed to be descendant of Musa Kāzim, the seventh Imām.

And its spirit permeates a large number of articles in the Iranian Constitution till today.

Shah Ismā‘īl, on ascending the throne in 909 A.H. ordered the inclusion of the names of their Imāms in Friday sermons and ash-hadu anna Aliyyan waliyyullah in the Adhān (call to Ṣalāt-prayer); and the Ithnā ‘Ashariyyah doctrine has so widely dominated the Iranian society and governance that it has become the Official religious school in Iran' and the constitution stipulates that the Shah was ruling on behalf of the Expected Mahdi. That was the status quo until the Iranian revolution of 198. The Ithnā 'Ashariyyah also constitute the majority of the Shī'ah and are also to be found in Iraq and in smaller groups in India.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Examine the Ithna 'ashariyyah/ Jafariyyah as having majority of the shi 'ah follower-ship.

3.3 Ismā'iliyyah(the Seveners)

The minority of the Shī'ah, after the death of Ja'far, did not acknowledge Mūsā al-Kāzim but followed his elder brother, Ismā'īl, as the seventh Imām and have since then been known as Ismā'īlīs or “Sab'iyyah, Seveners.” The basis of the Ismā'iliyyah creed as crystallised under Fatimids of Egypt is the belief that there are two aspects of knowledge, namely the exoteric (zāhir) and the esoteric (bātin), hence the Ismā'īlīs name, bāṭiniyyah). The zāhir of the Qur'ān is tanzīl while the bātin is tawīl known to the Prophet who imparted it to his Imāms. They are mostly to be found in India, but small groups of them live in Central Asia, Iran, Syria, and the Persian gulf mirates.<sup>22</sup> The Ismailiyyah were operating underground under the leadership of propagandists listed below until they founded the Fatimid State in Egypt (297 - 567 / 909-1171).

Ismā'īl (d.145 A.H.)

Imām recognised by them)

The Ismā'īlis dominated the history of Islam for a long period; adopting neoplatonic philosophy as presented by the Ikhwānu 'l-Safā (Brethren of Purity) in their Rasā'il (Epistles) and applying it to their Shiite theology.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Expound Isma'ilism and state their impact on the history of Islam

3.4 Zaydiyyah --- (the Zaydites)

After the death of 'Ali Zaynu 'l-Ābidīn, his son Zayd (d.122 A.H /742 C.E.), who was living in Madina was invited to Kufa to become the Imām. He accepted the invitation and his group were called the Zaydiyyah (Zaydis).

On his arrival at Kufah in 120 A.H. / 740 C.E., over 15,000 people pledged loyalty to him. He and his supporters thus revolted and made a realistic attempt to make an alternative government to that of the Umayyads in Damascus. Their first attack was made upon the Umayyad governor in Iraq - Yusuf ibn 'Umar al-Thaqafi. When the war broke out, Zayd was deserted by a large number of his soldiers who had previously given him assurance on the ground that he gave concession to Abubakr and Umar. He therefore suffered utter defeat from the hands of his opponent and as a result of the wound he sustained during the war, Zayd eventually died in 123 A.H./743 C.E. He was succeeded in the Shiite Imamate by his son, Yahya, who was also killed during the battle against the Umayyad forces in 126 A.H./746 C.E.<sup>25</sup> A few doctrines and ideologies of the Zaydiyyah are as follows:

They recognised the principle of election as basis for succession. This must however be from the erudite scholars among the offspring of Fatimah, daughter of the Prophet only.<sup>26</sup> Thus they did not recognise Imāmate of Muhammad, son of 'Ali from Khawlah of the al-Hanafiyah tribe.

- 1 They believed in the superiority of 'Ali's Imāmate over Abubakr and 'Umar's caliphate. To some of them, the Imāmate of the inferior (Imāmat al-Mafdūl) was permissible. It is this concession however that seemed to have alienated the more thorough going Shiites within the Zaydiyyah.<sup>27</sup>
2. It was conditioned to them that to become an Imām, a revolt must be staged. Thus they moved Imāmate from being a secret affair to an open one.<sup>28</sup>
3. The majority of the Zaydis disapprove the principles of Ismah, Taqiyyah and Raj'ah.

4. Some Zaydīs were Mu‘tazilites while some were salafīs.<sup>30</sup>
5. Most of them belong to the Hanafīs School of Islamic law while some are Shāfiītes.<sup>31</sup>

Within a thousand years, many Zaydis were killed in the battlefields and many succeeded in establishing Shiite states and died naturally. In 1322 A.H/1901 C.E. the Zaydis were able to re-establish a Zaydiyyah State in Yemen after a revolt against the Turkish Ottomans which Yemen revolution of 1962 terminated. Yemen however still remains the stronghold and center of the Zaydīs.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give a highlight of Zaydiyyah doctrines; and a brief statement on their history.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The Shi'ah is a politico-religious sect in Islam who believed among other things that leadership of the Muslims should be from Ali and his descendants. They are divided into several schools of theological thought and the principal cause for the division was the succession after ‘Alī Zaynu ‘l-‘Ābidīn, the fourth Imām. The three prominent groups among them are the Ithna ‘ashariyyah/Ja‘fariyyah, the Ismailiyyah, and the Zaydiyyah who all played and are still playing significant roles in the politics and history of the Muslim world.

5.0 SUMMARY

A summary of the fundamental politico-theological doctrines of the Shi‘ah could be given as follows:

- Imamate is a pillar of Islam. It is not a matter for public consideration. Thus it was an incumbent duty of Prophet Muhammad to appoint an infallible Imam for the Ummah.
- The Prophet (S) designated Ali as his Wasiyy. He was thus Imam by Testamentary Statement and not by election. The Imamate should be hereditary among his descendants.
- Ali is the best of the creatures in the two abodes after Prophet Muhammad. Whoever antagonises him or harbours hatred for him is an enemy of God.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Discuss the fundamental doctrines of the Shiites in detail.
2. Who are the Twelver and Sevener Shi 'ah? Provide their beliefs among other things.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In unit two, shi'ism was defined and its major doctrines discussed. The fundamental doctrines of the Ithnā-`Ashariyyah (Twelvers) popularly known as Ja'fariyyah, the Ismā`iliyyah, also called (the Seveners), and the Zaydiyyah and their history were presented in brief. These three are usually regarded as main Shī'ah groups and generally moderate. This unit aims at dealing with six groups that are regarded as extremists.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- expound on the seven extremist Shī'ah groups
- trace their origin and expose their extremism
- discuss their history and their location.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 The Saba'iyyah

The Saba'iyyah was one of the first extremist Shī'ah group who were heretical in ideology and perhaps harboured evil intentions against Islam. It was named after Abdullah b. Saba'i, a former Jew who came from Yemen. He was one of the first people to pay homage to `Alī when he was appointed to succeed `Uthmān, and soon afterwards, he started to weave doctrines that were completely strange to Islam around ‘Alī’s personality. He alleged that Muhammad will come back to the world and he had as his own slogan, the following statement:

‘It is amazing for people to believe that Jesus will come back and to disbelieve in the coming back of Muhammad, whereas God says in the Qur’ān chapter 28 verse 85 that - certainly the one who revealed the Qur’ān on you will return you back to your place’.

He also alleged that he saw in the Torah (Taorah) that every prophet usually had a successor and therefore ‘Alī was the successor to Muhammad and as Muhammad was the best of the prophets, ‘Alī was the best of the successors. He went to the extent of proclaiming ‘Alī as a prophet. Worst still, he called him Juz’u min Allah (divine part) or God incarnate.

When ‘Alī was assassinated another doctrine innovated by ibn Saba’i for his group was that ‘Alī was not killed. He claimed that it was the devil that appeared in ‘Alī’s shape and got killed in his place. As Jews and Christians lied in their claim that prophet Īsā (Jesus) was put to death on the cross whereas it was only made to appear to them as such, so also was the case with ‘Alī. ‘Alī was raised to the heaven and he is coming back to rule the world.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Examine the claim that the extinct Saba’iyyah was an extremist Shiite group.

3.2 The Kīsaniyyah or Mukhtāriyyah

This is another heretical sub-sect of the Shī‘ah, which called people to accept Muhammad uncle of ‘Alī, popularly known as al-Hanafīyyah (16 A.H. to 81 A.H.) as the Imām. The leader of this sub-sect was al Mukhtār b. Abī Abīd al-Thaqafī nicknamed Kisān, hence the appellation Kīsaniyyah. This sub-sect is sometimes called Mukhtāriyyah which is a title derived from Mukhtār, the proper name of its leader.

When Mukhtār has achieved his aims, he started talking like a soothsayer imitating the Qur’ān in form and contents in his utterances. Then he claimed that he was a prophet receiving revelations. When some of his followers realised that they had been misled, they decamped but al-Mukhtār was then still enjoying the support of the Saba’iyyah and many other Shiites.

Al-Mukhtār had an ancient chair expensively decorated, which he claimed to be part of ‘Alī’s heritage. Whenever he went for war, he carried the chair along with him as the Jews used to do with their arch. Al-Mukhtār however met his death in the battle against Abdullah b. Zubayr in 67 A.H. at Kufah.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who were the Kīṣāniyyah/Mukhtariyyah Shī‘ah? Expose their heretical beliefs.

3.3 The Agha Khāniyyah

The founder of this sect, Hasan a`ṣ-Sabah was born in Rayy in the 5th Century A.H. He emerged in India and was accused of working for the Fatimids by the vizier of Malik Shah. He thus fled to ‘Alamut in Qazwin where he founded a well-fortified location, training disciples and spreading Bāṭiniyyah doctrines. He succeeded in raising strong followership and became influential in the region. He established beautiful gardens to entice neighbouring people. He induced them to smoke weeds (Hashīsh) and his followers were notorious as Hashshāshīn. Sultan Malik Shah sent a large army to fight them when they became dangerous but they resisted and assassinated his vizier; and this act possibly led the Europeans to call them the Assassins. They remained a strong force in their location until the Mongol warriors under their Commander Holako massacred them. The sect’s followers in Shām also played prominent role in fighting the Crusaders. Ṣalāhu `d-Dīn, the Ayyubid had to fight them till they surrender when the Muslims also were not safe from their danger. Members scattered all over Syria, Persia, Oman, Zanzibar and India. They were called Khojas in India and they accepted Agha Khan of Bombay as their titular head because Agha Khan himself took Ismā‘il, the seventh Imām as his ancestor.

In the Bahrain the Bāṭiniyyah were known as al-Qarāmiṭah (the Qarmatians), a word derived from the name of their leader Hamdān Qarmat, an Iraqi national who claim to have got the ability to read the stars. In 890 C.E., he built a residence near Kufah which he called Daru `l-Muhājirūn i.e. abode of Emigrants. When his sub-sect grew large they became dangerous to the inhabitant of Hijāz, Shām and Irāq. In 930 C.E. the Qarmatians entered Makkah and carried away the Black Stone and kept it in their custody for twenty years. It was only returned at the order of the Fatimid Caliph Al- Mansūr. The Ismāīlīs of Persia, India, Zanzibar, Tanganyika, Oman and the ArabGulf now are bāṭinīs. The descendants of Agha Khān in India who regards himself a descendant of Hasan al-Ṣabah is their acknowledged leader. They are now in peaceful and cordial relations with Muslims.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Would you regard the Aghakhāniyyah a heterodox or orthodox Shiite Muslims? Trace their origins briefly and give reasons for your view.

3.4 The Durūz

The Durūz sect was named after Muhammad ibn Ismā'īl Durzī (d. 411 A.H.); but the adherents call themselves 'Muwahhidūn' (Unitarians). It is a sub-sect which emerged during the reign of al-Hākim bi Amrillah who claimed divinity, and whom Muhammad Durzī visited in 408 A.H. He later sojourned in Shām concentrating his propaganda on behalf of the ruler among the Jews and the Christians.

The major doctrine of the Durūz is divinity of their ruler and his second coming at the end of time. The sub-sect has recently published a book entitled Mas-hafu 'd-Durūz (The Durūz Scripture) in which attempt is made to imitate the Qur`ān as did Musaylimah in the past. It is a recent publication but the author attempt to ascribe it to some early Durūz Imams; he was however exposed by some modern words. The Durūz reside today in Lebanon, Baniyas and Mountains of the Hurān Hill usually called Durūz Mountains.

3.5 The Bhoras

The name Bhoras, an ancient Indian word meaning Traders, derives for this Ismā'īlī sub-sect because its early adherents were converts among the Hindu Traders. The sub-sect has its center in India, Pakistan and Southern Yemen. Their main doctrine is the divinity of their Imām. They maintain special places for their Ṣalāt, which they call "Jamiu Khānah". They pray for the Ismā'īyyah hidden Imām from among the descendants of Al-Tayyib b. al-Āmir and are thus like idolaters. They take Ka'bah to be symbol of their Imām. Two of their scriptures containing biographies of their Propagandists and some of their aphorisms are Da'ā'imu 'l-Islām and Al-Haqā'iq.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Trace the origins of the Durūz and the Bhoras. Would you regard them as heterodox or orthodox Shiite Muslims? Give reasons for your view.

3.6 Al-Nuṣayriyyah(the Nuṣayrīs)

The founder of Nuṣayriyyah was Muhammad ibn Nuṣayr al-Numayrī a follower of al-Hasan al-‘Askarī, the eleventh of the Ithnā ‘Ashariyyah Imāms. After the death of Hasan, he first claimed to be his Bāb (Representative of his son). He then claimed to be an apostle and a prophet sent by God. He later disapproved the Imāmate of al-Hasan and his son and claimed transfiguration and incarnation and made prohibited practices permissible for his followers. He died in 260 A.H. The real propagandist and author of the Nuṣayriyyah doctrines was al-Hasan ibn Hamdān al-Khusaybī (260-346 A.H.). He stayed in Baghdad and moved from one place to another until he settled finally in Syria in the city of Halab. Later, al-Ladhiqiyyah, on the mountain known by the name of the sub-sect became their main center.

The belief of the Nuṣayrīs:

1. The pivot of Nuṣayriyyah doctrine is the divinity of ‘Alī. They argue that this is not unreasonable. Good, represented by Jibril, appeared in form of man; while evil, represented by devil appeared in form of man; so also is Jin, it appeared in form of man and spoke in man’s tongue; hence their belief that God appeared in form of man and ‘Alī was God incarnate. No doubt, it is a faulty analogy and an absurdity that Allah, the Creator incarnated in His creature. He, the Almighty has said: laisa kamithlihi shay’un” (Nothing is like him).
2. The Nusairiyyah also believe that ‘Alī is higher in rank than the Prophet. They argue that Allah gave ‘Alī exclusive knowledge of the secret whereas the Prophet was only judging the apparent. They fabricated traditions and created events in support of this doctrine of theirs. God is exalted above their claim.
3. They created a Trinity of ‘Alī, the Meaning, as the Ultimate Secret (Allah?); Muhammad, the Name, as the Manifest Picture; and Salmān al-Farisī as the Bāb (Gate to the earning). ‘Ayin, Mīm and Sīn are made to symbolise this Code/Combination. This idea seems to be influence of Christian Trinity on the sub-sect or some ancient Syrian pagan belief which made the trio of Sun, Moon and Heaven divine and worshipped them.
4. They believe in Transfiguration or Transmigration of Souls from one body to another. If the soul is righteous it then goes to the Sun, Planet or God; but if it is devilish it enters the body of a woman or devilish person or dirty animals like pig or monkey. One of their theologians explains the idea as meaning that the Faithful transmigrates seven times before taking his place among the stars; and that if a man dies devilish; he is born again Christian or Muslim until he is purified and cleansed of his sins. Those who disbelieve in divinity of ‘Alī are re-born in the form of dogs, camels, donkeys or sheep. Thus, neither resurrection nor accountability will take place hereafter; punishment or reward, paradise or hell are in this world.

5. They reproach and curse the Ṣahābah, some Ṣūfīs and scholars of Jurisprudence and all their opponents. Such people benefit from ‘Alī’s providence and worship other than him. They praise Ibnu Maǧjam, the murderer of ‘Alī, for separating ‘Alī, the divine, from ‘Alī, the human.

They constitute ten percent of the Syrian population today and are also found in Southern Turkey and ‘Aka district in Lebanon.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who was the real propagandist of the Nuṣayriyyah? Discuss their beliefs.

4.0 CONCLUSION

From the foregoing it may be concluded that many obnoxious characters among converts to Islam and others who under the pretext of love for Ahl al-Bayt have exploited Shiism. They have introduced their former doctrines into it. Such characters include Christians, Jews, Zoroastrians and Indians; and those who wanted to carve independent Kingdom or State for themselves.

That fire will not burn a Shiite, for instance, was that of the Jews when they say: “lan tamassanā `l-nāru illā ayāman ma‘dudāt”. The doctrines of Raj‘ah (Expected Mahdi) and Second Coming of an Imām and Incarnation are Christians. Under the cover of Shiism, transfiguration of souls found among the Brahmas and the Magians found its way. Number Seven enjoys divine importance in the Ismā‘īlī system as it does among the old Pythagorians who divided natural phenomena into seven: viz; Allah, Intellect, Soul, Al-Hayula, Form, Time and Place.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit treats the Saba’iyyah, Mukhtariyyah, AghaKhaniyyah, Nuṣayriyyah and the Durūz as constituting heretical groups based on doctrines not only extraneous to Islam but also blasphemous and outrageous.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Enumerate the extremist Shiites. Give a detailed account of the Nuṣayrīs.
2. Discuss the doctrines that make Muslims to regard some Shiites as heretics and extremists.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

The Mu‘tazilah was a movement in Islam which placed the use of reason over revelation on religious matters. Although it was during the time of Hasan al-Baṣrī that Mu‘tazilism (thorough going rationalisation of Islamic beliefs came to the lime-light the origin of the use of reasoning in religious pursuits can be traced back to an earlier date.

The Ahlu ‘l-Suffah (People of the Platform in the Mosque of the Prophet in Madina), who had been earlier mentioned could be cited as an example. When needed, they tried to work out religious doctrines in the light of reason. Perhaps the report that the Prophet Muhammad (S) once met some Companions arguing on the issue of Qadar and discouraged them and refers to them. These were the people who prepared the ground for the school of Mu'tazilism. The Kharijites and the Shiites are other examples. Although these two sects came into prominence with marked political reasons, they also had theological beliefs. Meanwhile, what is Mu'tazilism and who were the Mu'tazilites? Come along for the answer.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define Mu'tazilism
- trace the origin of the Mu'tazilah movement
- enumerate the fundamental doctrines of the Mu'tazilites
- discuss the doctrines critically.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Origin of the Mu'tazilah and their Fundamental Principles

The school of the Qadarites discussed in Module 2 unit 1 could be regarded as the real founders of Mu'tazilism. Like the Kharijites and Shiites, it had its foundation in the political development of the day. The first man who dared proclaim doctrines of the Qadarites was Ma'bad al-Juhani. He lived in the early days of Umayyads' cruelty, relentless persecution of opponents and ruthless blood-shedding.

Historians report that Ma'bad al-Juhani with 'Ata ibn Yaseer, one of his companions came one day to the celebrated Hasan al-Basri and said: 'O Abu Sa'id, these rulers shed blood of the Muslims and commit grievous sins and say their work are by the decree of Allah'. To this Hasan replied: 'The enemies of God! They are liars.'

Thus the first doctrine laid down by the early Mu'tazilites was: 'Man is accountable for his own evil doings; these should not be ascribed to God.' You have come across this under discussion on the doctrine of qadar of the Qadarites. Hence the designation Qadarites given to the early Mu'tazilites who for the same reason were also called the Adalites, that is, the holders of the justice of God. For justice of God can be vouched safe only by holding man responsible for his actions. Mabad al-Juhani preached this doctrine publicly and was therefore put to death by Hajjāj in 80/699 under orders of Caliph Abdu'l-Malik.

After Ma‘bad al-Juhanī, it was a Copt named Ghaylān Dimashqī, who promulgated similar views. He further added that it was incumbent on every Muslim to urge people to do right actions and to check them from doing wrong. This addition by Ghaylān overtly interfered with and threatened the maintenance of the Umayyad rule. As a consequence he met his death at the hands of Hishām ibn Malik soon after his ascendancy to the Caliph seat in 105/723.

The deaths of Ma‘bad and Ghaylān put life into their cause. Their teachings became current and exerted an ever-growing influence. Thousands of people came to subscribe to the Mu‘tazilite views and outlook.

At this time two great personages born in the same year 80/699 appeared like two stars on the horizon of Mu‘tazilism. These two were Wāṣil bn ‘Atā and ‘Amr bn’ Ubayd. Both of them were the pupils of Hasan al-Baṣrī who used to give his lectures in the great mosque of Baṣrah.

One day when Hasan was busy discussing some problems with his pupils, someone came to him with a question regarding the conflicting standpoints of the Murji’ites and the Wa’idites. The first held that the perpetrator of a grave sin should be reckoned as a Muslim and not labeled a Kāfir (unbeliever) and that his case should be left to God. The second, laying more emphasis on the threats in the Qur’ān, maintained that the committer of a mortal sin, having ipso facto deviated from the right path, could not possibly be considered a Mūmin (believer). Before Hasan could give a reply, either Wāṣil or ‘Amr broke out with the assertion of a middle position, i.e. such a one was neither a believer nor an unbeliever. Hasan took it ill and said: i’tazala’annā (i.e. he has seceded from us). So Wāṣil and ‘Amr left the circle of the master, went to another corner of the mosque and began teaching their own views. Those who gathered round them came to be known as the Mu‘tazilah the Mutazilites.

Mu‘tazilism was essentially a movement to interpret the dogmas of religion in terms of reason. The Mu‘tazilites were mostly independent thinkers and had quite individualistic views with regard to various religious and philosophical problems. We shall consider here some of their fundamental doctrines. Abu al-Husayn al-Khayyat, a great Mu‘tazilite authority, gave five fundamental principles which one claiming to be a Mu‘tazilite must subscribe to in their entirety. These are:

- (1) Divine unity (a`-t-Tawhīd)
- (2) Divine justice (al-‘adl)
- (3) The promise of reward and the threat of punishment (al-wa‘d wa’l-wa’id)

- (4) The state between states of belief and unbelief (al-manzilah bayn al-manzilatayn)
- (5) To order the doing of right and to prohibit the doing of wrong (al-amr bi'l-ma'rūf wa 'n-nahy'an al-munkar).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Define Mu'tazilism and trace the origin of the movement.

3.2 The Mu'tazilah and the Principle of Divine Unity

The doctrines of Divine Unity and Divine Justice are more central to the Mu'tazilites than the rest of them; hence they preferred the ascription Ahlu 't-Tawhīd wa 'l-Adl (the people of unity and justice) for themselves'. Specifically, they raised the following four issues, each of which has important bearing on the problem of divine unity:

- (a) Relation of the attributes of God with His Essence.
- (b) Created-ness or Uncreated-ness of the Holy Qur'ān.
- (c) Possibility of Vision of God (the Beatific Vision)
- (d) Interpretation of the anthropomorphic verses of the Qur'ān.

(A) Relation of the attributes of God with His Essence

The Mu'tazilites explained the divine attributes such as the knowing, the powerful, the living and so on and so forth, as referring to His Being; and not that He possesses the qualities of knowledge, power, life, etc., apart from His essence. The fear to them was that should the qualities be considered as entities apart from the Divine Being that certainly would amount to polytheism because it will amount to plurality of eternals.

Thus the Mu'tazilites reduced God to an absolute unity divested of all qualities. The orthodox, on the other hand, look for nothing less than a personal God. This whole problem of the relation of God's attributes with His essence is entirely above human reason: revelation alone is to guide us.

(B) Created-ness and Uncreated-ness of the Qur'ān

To the generality of the Muslims the Qur'ān is the word of God revealed to the holy Prophet. Thus the Qur'ān is also called the divine speech or the speech of God (i.e. Kalam Allah). Pious Muslims further hold that the Qur'ān is uncreated and has existed from eternity with God; its revelation to the Prophet, of course, was piecemeal as occasions demanded.

The Mu'tazilites very strongly denied the eternity of the Qur'ān on the plea that God alone is eternal. According to them, those who believed in the uncreated-ness of the Qur'ān and make it co-eternal with God take unto themselves two gods and hence are polytheists.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Relate the implications of the Mu'tazilites principles of divine unity to the attributes of God and the concept of the eternity of the Qur'ān.

(C) *Possibility of the Beatific Vision of God

Abu 'l-Hudhayl and the majority of other Mu'tazilites maintained: 'We would see God only with our mind's eye, i.e. we would know Him only through the heart.' The proofs they provided in support of their view on the impossibility of vision of God may be summed up under the following heads:

Proof from the Qur'ān

- (i) Vision comprehendeth Him not but He comprehendeth all vision (Q.vi. 103)
The verse, according to them, is of general application and means that the physical eyes see God neither in this world nor in the next.
- (ii) In reply to Moses' supplication: My Lord, show me Thyself so that I may gaze upon Thee' (Q.vii. 143), God said with an emphatic negation: 'Thou wilt not see Me'.
- (iii) They asked a greater thing of Moses than that; for they said: 'Show us Allah manifestly'; a storm of lightning seized them for their wrongdoing (Q.iv. 153)

Had the people of Moses asked for a possible thing from God, they would not have been called wrongdoers and would not have been consequently overtaken by the storm of lightning.

Proof from the Optical Sciences

The Mu'tazilites maintained that the following conditions were necessary in order to see a thing:

- (i) One must possess sound sight
- (ii) The objects to be seen must be in front or opposite to the eye just as a thing to be reflected in a mirror must need to be opposite it
- (iii) It must not be too distant from the eye

- (iv) It must not be too near the eye either
- (v) It must not be too fine to be looked at, i.e. it must be a coloured object or one sufficiently coarse.

In the opinion of the Mu'tazilites, since God as an object of vision does not satisfy the relevant conditions mentioned above, He cannot be seen with bodily eyes.

Proof from the Hadīth

As for the saying ascribed to the holy Prophet: 'You will see your Lord as you see the full moon while you will not disagree amongst yourself in regard to His vision' (Tirmidhi), the Mu'tazilites hold that the tradition in question is of the category of ahādī and not that of Mutawātir, i.e. it comes only through a single channel of transmitters and as such is not acceptable when in conflict with an explicit verse of the Qur'ān such as: Vision comprehends Him not but He comprehends vision'. (Q.vi.103). They, on the other hand, alluded to a saying of Āishah according to which she questioned even the Prophet having seen God here in this world: "He who says the Prophet saw God in person tells a lie' (Bukhārī).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

As a corollary from their principle of divine unity the Mu'tazilites denied the Beatific Vision. State their arguments.

(D) Interpretation of the Anthropomorphic Verses of the Qur'ān

In the Holy Qur'ān we find many anthropomorphic expressions about God such as the following:

- (i) So glory be to Him in Whose hand is the kingdom of all things (Q.34:83)
- (ii) That which I have created with My hands (Q.38:75)
- (iii) Which swims forth under Our eyes (Q.54:14)
- (iv) And the countenance of thy Lord would abide full of majesty and glory (Q.55:27)
- (v) The Merciful God has seated himself on His throne (Q.20:5)
- (vi) Thou shall see the angels circling the throne uttering the praises of their Lord (Q.39:75).

As may be expected an inference may be gathered easily from their view of the beatific vision, the Mu'tazilites naturally interpreted the anthropomorphic statements in the Holy Qur'ān such as the face, the hand and the eyes of God or His sitting upon the throne as merely metaphorical expressions. They repudiated literalism of all types in order to maintain the pure unity of God. The Mu'tazilites hence applied the principle of interpretation (ta'wīl) of the verses of the holy Qur'ān. The Mu'tazilites also denied the Prophets Ascension to the heavens in the physical sense.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

The Mu'tazilites attitude towards the Anthropomorphic Verses of the Qur'ān was negative. Expatriate on this statement.

3.3 Divine Justice (Free will and Predestination)

The orthodox maintain that there can be no necessity for God even to do justice. He is absolutely free in what He does. Good and evil have their nature by God's will and man can know them only through God's injunctions and commands.

The Mu'tazilites opposed this view by holding that good and evil can be known through reasoning.

Al-Nazzam, in particular, taught that God can do nothing to a creature either in this world or in the next that would not be for the creature's own good and as justice may demand. He does not even have power to do it. It is important to note that according to the Holy Qur'ān, God is essentially just and righteous.

Verses of the Holy Qur'ān quoted by the Mu'tazilites to support their views are as the following:

- (i) God is not unjust to His servants (Q.12:10; 40: 31)
- (ii) Lo, Allah is never unjust to mankind in anything (Q.10:44)
- (iii) God truly will not wrong anybody the weight of an atom and if there be any deed He will repay it (Q.21:47)
- (iv) They further maintained that "The Holy Qur'ān says: God does not impose (any task) on the soul but to the extent of its capacity. (Q.2:286).

Thus like the Qadarites, both man's freedom and God's justice must go together. Man should be considered responsible for his actions; otherwise God will not be justified in punishing the sinners.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Articulate the stands of the Mu'tazilites as against those of the Orthodox in regards to divine justice.

3.4 The Promise of Reward and the Threat of the Punishment

This doctrine is related to that of divine justice. Since God is just, He should punish the sinners and reward the virtuous in life after death. Has not God himself given the promise of reward and the threat of punishment in the holy Qur'ān?

- (1) Allah has promised the believers, men and women, Gardens (Q.9:72).
- (2) And lo! The wicked verily will be in hell (Q.82:14).
- (3) Whosoever does an atom's weight of good will see it and whosoever does an atom's weight of evil will see it (Q.99: 7-8).

The Mu'tazilites maintain that it is obligatory on God to reward the virtuous and punish the wicked and that He cannot do otherwise. Contrary to this, the Orthodox and particularly the Ash'arites believe that reward and punishment are entirely God's grace. He can reward whom He wills and punish whom He wills. It is certain, that He will favour the righteous and punish the wicked as He has promised to do so; but no consideration can bind His discretion and compel Him to do this or that. To impose compulsion on Him is to reduce Him to a dependent being or even to a machine, which must move and act without any choice of its own. There will be no difference between God and a courts magistrate whose decisions are guided by a penal code if He is compelled to reward the virtuous and punish the wicked.

On the other hand, according to the Mu'tazilites, the Qur'ānic promise of reward and threats of punishment cannot go unfulfilled; otherwise God's truthfulness becomes doubtful. God never changes His words and so it is given in the Holy Qur'ān: "There is no changing in the words of Allah" (Q.10:64).

The Orthodox agrees with the Mu'tazilites that the virtuous will go to paradise and the wicked to hell. But, according to the Mu'tazilites, the conclusion is necessary and irresistible. According to the Orthodox, it is only conditional and probable. God is absolutely free to do what He wills. The orthodox insists that, should He so will the virtuous might go to hell or, at least, the wicked to paradise. According to the Mu'tazilites, God's justice would in that case be unpredictable, and His justice would lose all meaning.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain Mu'tazilites view of divine promise of rewards and threats of punishment.

3.5 The State between the States of Belief and Unbelief

This doctrine, the acceptance of which gave the very name to the Mu'tazilites, was more political than theological in nature. The Mu'tazilites formulated it to express their perception of the Umayyads who were then rulers of the Muslim nation. They submitted that as soon as a Man commits a mortal sin he neither remains a believer nor becomes an unbeliever; but occupies a middle position (manzilah baynamanzilatayn). Should he die without repentance, he would be condemned to hell-fire, with the only difference that the punishment inflicted upon him would be less severe than that inflicted on an unbeliever. They based this doctrine also on the authority of the Qur'ān and the Hadīth. Is he who is a believer like him who is an evildoer? They are not alike' (Q.32:18). Again the holy Prophet is reported to have said: 'He who is not against a mortal sin has no faith, nor is he an unbeliever,'

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

The doctrine of manzilah bayna manzilatayn gave birth to Mu'tazilism. Explain the doctrine briefly.

3.6 To Order the doing of Right and forbid the doing of Wrong

This doctrine belongs to the practical theology of the Mu'tazilites. The orthodox also admit the need to urge people to do good and to check them from doing wrong. But the Mu'tazilites considered this incumbent upon every Muslim (fard 'ayn, i.e. a duty obligatory on the individual. The orthodox on the other hand, holds that it is only a fard kifayah, i.e. it would suffice if someone carried out this injunction on behalf of the community.

Because of this doctrine the Mu'tazilites deemed it necessary to spread their creed not only by words but also (though this was quite contrary to the spirit of Islam) by force of state authority, under the glorious patronage of al-Ma'mūn, this doctrine of the Mu'tazilites led to the institution of inquisition mihnah against all those who did not subscribe to their religious view, particularly that of the created-ness of the Qur'ān.

Al-Mamūn issued a letter of authority to all the Qādīs of the State to test the beliefs of officials with regard to the created-ness of the Qur'ān. The Caliph ordered that the penalty of death should be inflicted upon those who even refused to take the test. This naturally led to very strong feeling against Mu'tazilism and was consequently one of the reasons for its downfall.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the extent to which 'to order the doing of right and forbid the doing of evil' is fundamental in Mu'tazilism.

4.0 CONCLUSION

According to the Mu'tazilites, both reason and revelation are the criteria of knowledge; and therefore they must be in proper harmony. In the event of any inconsistency, revelation should be tested by reason. Thus the Mu'tazilites lay emphasis upon reason than revelation. Religion in their opinion should be based on logical truth so as to become universally acceptable.

5.0 SUMMARY

The Mu'tazilites believed that God's attributes are identical with His essence. The face, hands and eyes of God; and His settling on His Throne should be taken in metaphorical senses. Man has free-will and he is the author of his actions. He will be rewarded according to the merits of his deeds; and punished according to their demerits.

They denied the possibility of the Beatific Vision of God. They agree with the idea of intercession of the Prophet on behalf of the guilty Muslims on the Day of Judgement.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Specify the four issues raised by the Mu'tazilites, each of which has important bearing on the problem of divine unity; then present the issue of Beatific Vision in detail.
2. Below are two theological issues in the Qur'ān; Write notes on the position of the Mu'tazilites on them.
  - The promise of reward and the threat of the punishment
  - To order the doing of right and forbid the doing of wrong.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

The renowned Mu’tazilites were Wāṣil ibn al-‘Aṭā (d. 753 A.D.), Abu ‘l-Hudhayl al -‘Allāf (d. 857 A.D), A `n-Nazzām (d. c. 835-845 A.D.), al-Jāhiz (d. c. 868 or 877 A.D), Bishr-Ibn-Mutamir (d. 848 A.D.), Mu‘ammar ibn ‘Abbād, A `s-Sulamī, Thumāmah ibn al-Ashras, Abu ‘Alī Al-Jubbā’ī (b. 235/849). The details of their views are discussed in this unit.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- identify the renowned Mu’tazilites
- state the theological views of each of them
- appraise the validity of such view-points.

3.1 Wāṣil ibn al-‘Aṭā (d. 753 A.D.)

Wāṣil ibn ‘Aṭā was a Persian disciple of al-Hasan al-Baṣrī. He differed from his teacher as to the question whether a believer, after he had committed a kabīrah (major sin), still deserved to be called a believer. Wāṣil held that such a person could neither be called a believer nor an unbeliever but should be regarded as occupying a middle position between the two, (manzilah bayna manzilatayn). He withdrew to a corner of the mosque to expound his own views to his fellow students. His teacher, al-Hasan al-Baṣrī remarked, 'i'tazala 'anā. (He has decamped or seceded from us). Consequent of this remark he is called Mu'tazilite and his school Mu'tazilism. His other views are that:

1. The attributes of God cannot be considered to be separate from His essence
2. Prophet Muhammad was the author of the Qur'ān under divine influences
3. Reason is the criterion of knowledge and it is higher than tradition and revelation
4. Man has free will; so he is responsible for his actions
5. God is just and cannot act arbitrarily
6. The Muslim who commits a grave sin occupies a position between that of infidel and a Muslim
7. Right and wrong cannot be referred to the will of God
8. The Muslims who fought on the side of 'Alī and those who stood against him cannot both be right as was suggested by some theologians. One party must be wrong and the other must be right.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who was Wāṣil ibn al-'atā? Enumerate his theological views.

3.2 Abu 'l-Hudhayl al -`Allāf (d. 857 A.D)

He lived about a hundred years. He is considered as one of the greatest scholars of the earliest Mu'tazilite thinkers. He was gifted with art of delivering speech through which he converted many non-Muslims to Islam. He wrote many works but most of them are lost. He differed from other Mu'tazillites including his teacher Wāṣil ibn 'Aṭā in a number of disputed points. His views in brief are:

1. He recognises Divine Attributes as not in the essence of God but as identical with His essence.
2. God's will to create is creation. His will is not external to Him as He is absolute Unity. His will to create is quite distinct and different from the will of created objects.
3. Man has free will but only in this world. He has no activities either in hell or heaven in the hereafter. Everything there shall be done by the divine decree. Thus man is not free in the next world to come.
4. The world has a beginning and must have an end. All motions

- must come to a close of everlasting rest.
5. Man is mortal, he must die in definite hour; he cannot avoid death.
  6. Man is rational, it is his duty to reflect and know God, Those who fail to do so deserve punishment.
  7. Divine mercy protects men and women from committing sins.
  8. Man's knowledge comes to him from God; partly through revelation and partly through the light of Nature.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

3.3 Ibrahim ibn Sayyar An-Nazzām (d. c. 835-845 A.D.)

Abu Ishāq Ibrahim ibn Sayyār called al-Nazzām was a renowned theologian, philosopher, and prolific author. He was brought up at Baṣra but spent the latter part of his life at Baghdad where he died. He was one of the most interesting figures in the culture of the Abbasid period. He studied under Abu `l-Hudhyl al-`Allāf and afterwards established his own independent school. God cannot be compared to anything; He is above everything. The office of the Prophet is not restricted to any nation but open to all. His views, in brief, are:

1. God cannot do evil because He Himself is not evil. Evil is repugnant with His nature. He can do only that which He knows to be best for His creatures. He can do only good things in this world as well as in the next world.
2. By the act of mental reflection and self-study man can know God and distinguish between what is right and what is wrong without seeking help from revelation.
3. Creation is an act performed once and for all but various specimens are being manifested in time. Thus everything to be in future exists hidden in nature.
4. Reason helps us to attain the knowledge of God and morality.
5. The miracle of the Qur'ān lies in its teaching and not in its beauty of style.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Write what you know about Ibrahim ibn Sayyār A`n-Nazzām and his theological views.

3.4 Amr ibn Bahr (called al-Jāhiz (d. c. 868 or 877 A.D))

Jāhiz real name was ‘Amr ibn Bahr. He was one of the leading pupils of alNazzām. His teacher described him as the encyclopedic Jāhiz of al-Basra. He was a great littérateur, philosopher, theologian and a writer of repute. The orthodox Muslims regarded him a freethinker.

He did not believe in speculative deduction. His system was empirical and it was mainly based on experiment and historical facts. His views in brief, are:

1. He believed matter to be eternal. (i.e. World has no beginning)
2. God has no form. So His knowledge is impossible to attain by man.
3. God is good and just. He cannot be the cause of evils.
4. Good and evil are connected with the man. Man is responsible for good and evil.
5. A Muslim who is not intellectually developed to reflect on God and His creation and yet believes God as his creator and follows His prophet is not to blame.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who was al-Jāhiz? Highlight his Mu’tazilite doctrines.

3.5 Bishr-Ibn-Mu’tamir (d. 848 A.D.)

Bishr ibn Mu’tamir discussed mainly the problem of free will. Man has free will and he is responsible for his action. But if he is forced to act in a certain way against his own will how he is going to be held responsible was a grave question with Bishr. He gave a good deal of thought over the question determining the moral value of action. The world is a place of soul-making. The presence of evils and suffering does not imply God inability in the making of a better world. God could have made a better world but he did not. Freedom of will necessitated a world like this. God created the universe with a definite purpose. So, He has given man free will and revelation. There are two ways open to man: good and evil. He can choose either of the two by exercise of his free will. Thus, the presence of evil provides man with a chance of self-development and soul-making.

His views are:

1. The infant should not be punished, as they cannot make use of free will.
2. The infidel should be held responsible for their activities as they are endowed with the faculty of reason.
3. There are laws of nature and man should discover them by exercising reason.
4. Man who could not meet a Prophet or did not get any chance to have any knowledge of revelation is not unfit to lead a peaceful life provided that he follows the light of nature.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Elaborate the statement ‘Bishr ibn Mu‘tamir discussed mainly the problem of free will’.

3.6 Abū ‘Alī Al-Jubbā’ī (b. 235/849)

Abū ‘Alī al-Jubbā’ī was born in 235/849 at Jubba, a town in Khuzistan. He belonged to the later Mu‘tazilites. He was the teacher of Abu ‘l-Hasan al-Ash‘arī with whom he had discussion in respect of the Theory of the Salutory; that the wise will always do what is salutary (al-ṣalāh wa ‘l-aṣḥ) and good, and that God’s wisdom always keeps in view what is salutary for His servant; therefore He cannot be cruel to them. He cannot bring to effect evil deeds. He cannot renounce that which is salutary. He cannot ask His servants to do that which is impossible.

Another report says that al-Jubbā’ī asked Imām al-Ash‘arī about the meaning of obedience to which the Imām replied that obedience is assent to a command and then asked for al-Jubbā’ī’s own opinion in the matter. Al-Jubbā’ī said: the essence of obedience is agreement to the will, and whoever fulfills the will of another, obeys him.” The Imām answered; “according to this, one must conclude that God is obedient to His servant if He fulfils his will. Holding this view is blasphemous. For if God is obedient to His servant, then He must be subject to him, but God is above this.

Further, al-Jubbā’ī was of the opinion that the names of God are subject to the regular rules of grammar. He therefore considered it possible to derive a name for Him from every deed which He performs contrary to the view of the majority that the attributes of God are tawqīfī (i.e. restricted to the testamentary ones). On this, Imam al-Ash‘arī said: “according to this view, God should be named the producer of pregnancies in women; because he creates pregnancy. This heresy of yours is worse than that of the Christians in calling God the father of Jesus, even though they do not hold that He produced pregnancy in Mary.”

The following are other notable views of al-Jubbāī:

1. Like other Mu'tazilites, he denies the Divine Attributes which subsists besides his essence. Neither does he believe in “states” as proposed by his son, i.e. to say that God is all-hearing and all-seeing, really means that God is alive nor there is no defect of any kind in Him. The attributes of hearing and seeing in God originate at the time of the origination of what is seen and what is heard.
2. He regards the world as originated and the will of God as the cause of its being originated. Like other Mu'tazilites he also thought that the will of God too is something originated.
3. The speech of God is composed of letters and sounds and God creates it in somebody. The speaker is He Himself and not the body in which it subsists. The Speech is necessarily something originated. Therefore the speech of God is a thing originated and not eternal.
4. He denies the beatific vision; for that is impossible because whatever is not physical cannot fulfill the condition of vision.
5. He equally agrees with other Mu'tazilites regarding the knowledge of good and evil, and the destiny of those who commit grave sins. With them, he holds that man is the author of his own actions and that it lies in his power to produce good or evil or commit sins and wrong and that it is compulsory for God to punish the sinner and reward the obedient.
6. In the matter of Imamate, al-Jubbāī supports the belief of the Sunnīs viz: the appointment of an Imām is to be founded on the consensus.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Where does al-Jubbāī agree or differ from other Mu'tazillāh?

3.7 More of Beliefs of the Mu'tazilāh

The following is the summary of some more beliefs of the Mu'tazilites:

- (i) Denial of punishment and reward to be meted out to the dead in the grave and the questioning by Angel Munkar and Nakīr.
- (ii) Denial of the indication of the Day of Judgement; Gog and

- Magog (Yājūj and Mājūj) and of the appearance of the anti-christ (al-Masīh al Dajjāh).
- (iii) Some Mu'tazilites believe in the concrete reality of balance (al-Mīzān) for weighing actions on the Day of Judgement. Some say that it is impossible for it to be a reality and think that mention made in the Qur'ān of the Mīzān means 'only that full justice will be done on the day of judgement.
  - (iv) The Mu'tazilites also deny the existence of the recording angels called kirāman kātibīn in the Holy Qur'ān. The reason they gave for this is that God is well aware of all the deeds of His servants. Thus the recording Angels are dispensable.
  - (v) The Mu'tazilites also denied the physical existence of (al-hawāḍ) the pond and (aṣ-ṣirāt) the bridge. Further, they will not admit that paradise and hell exist now but they will exist on the Judgement Day.
  - (vi) They deny the miracles of saints; for if admitted, they would be mixed up with those of the prophets and cause confusion.
  - (vii) The Mu'tazilites also denied the ascension (al-mīrāj) of the Prophet of Islam because its proof is based on a testimony of individual traditions which cannot necessitate any act or belief; but they do not deny the Holy Prophet's night journey from Mecca to Jerusalem (al-Isrā').
  - (viii) As Divine decree cannot be altered, supplications served no purpose for one gains nothing by them because if the objects for which prayers are offered is in conformity with destiny it is needless to ask for it. And if the object conflicts with destiny it is impossible to secure.
  - (ix) They recognised, the possibility of resurrection of the body, as well as paradise and its sensuous pleasure, and Hell and its bodily torments.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

List some theological views of the Mu'tazillah which appear to be at variance with general Islamic creeds.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The Mu'tazilites were a group of rationalists who judged all Islamic beliefs by reason. They hardly realised the fact that reason like any other faculty with which man is endowed has its limitations and cannot be expected to comprehend reality in all its details.

Meanwhile the Mu'tazilites deemed it necessary to spread their creed by force of state authority, under the glorious patronage of al-Ma'mūn. This led to the institution of inquisition mihnah by Al-Mamūn issued a letter of authority to all the Qādīs of the state to test the beliefs of officials with regard to the created-ness of the Qur'ān. The Caliph commanded that the penalty of death should be inflicted upon those who even refused to take the test. This naturally led to very strong feeling against Mu'tazilism and was consequently one of the reasons for its downfall.

5.0 SUMMARY

By the middle of the 3rd hijrah century corresponding to middle of the 9th in the Christian era many Mu'tazilites had become prominent. Their inquiries in which they gave preference to reason over revelation cut across theological issues such as God and His Attributes, predestination and freewill, Eternity and Created-ness of the world and the Qur'ān, consequence of grave sin and miracle. They also touched on doctrines relating to belief in the unseen and what happens in life after death.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Write short notes on the following two Mu'tazilites and their roles in the development of Islamic theology.
  - (a) Wāṣil ibn al-'Aṭā (d. 753 A.D.)
  - (b) Abu Ali Al-Jubbā'ī (b. 235/849)
2. Give a profile of the following Mu'tazilah
  - (a) Abu 'l-Hudhayl al-'Allāf (d. 857 A.D.)
  - (b) Ibrahim ibn Sayyār An-Nazzām (d. c. 835-845 A.D.)
  - (c) 'Amr ibn Bahr (called al-Jāhiz (d. c. 868 or 877 A.D)
3. Enumerate with brief explanations some creedal issues upheld by orthodox Muslims but denied by the Mu'tazilah

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Ash'arism is the name of a theological school of thought in Islam that surfaced during the 4th - 5th/10th - 11th centuries. It was “an effort not only to purge Islam of all non-Islamic elements which had quietly crept into it but also to harmonise the theological teachings of the religion. “It laid the foundation of Sunnism (Orthodoxy) putting divine revelation above reason. Its origin and fundamental doctrines are presented for you in this unit.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define Ash'arism
- trace origin of the Ash 'arites movement
- enumerate the fundamental doctrines of the Ash 'arites
- discuss the doctrines critically.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Origin and Fundamental Principles of al-Ash'ariyyah (Ash'arism)

A'sharism is a departure from a system of purely rationalistic theology to reliance upon the word of God (Qur'ān), the Tradition (Hadīth) and the usage (Sunnah) of the practice of the Holy Prophet and the pattern of life of early Muslim Ummah (salaf).

At first, it was only a gradual and unconscious shifting of attitude. Afterwards the tendency of human mind to ascribe broad movements to single men asserted itself and the whole was attributed to the name of Abu `l-Hasan `Alī bn Ismā`īl al-Ash`arī (d. c. 330/945). It is true that with his efforts the change became generally felt, but it had already been long in progress. As a matter of fact, many schools of theology, similar to that of al-Ash`arī, arose simultaneously in different countries, e.g. the Zahirites' school in Spain, the Tahāwī's school in Egypt, and al-Māturidīs school in Samarqanda.

Al-Ash`arī's School superseded them all and flourished because it had among its adherents and exponents such able thinkers as al-Bāqilānī, Imām al-Haramayn, AlGhazzālī, Fakhru `d-Dīn a`r-Rāzī, etc.

The fundamental doctrines in which the Ash`arites vehemently refuted the Mu'tazilites may be summed up as follows:

1. God's attributes are real and separate entities from Him
2. The Glorious Qur`ān is uncreated; i.e. eternal
3. Possibility of the Beatific Vision
4. God's seating Himself on the Throne
5. Freedom of will
6. Divine law/Revelation is the way to acquisition of compulsory knowledge
7. The world is originated not eternal
8. Faith is conviction; work is only complimentary to faith
9. God is not compelled to do anything
10. Reward and punishment, sending of Messengers and Beatific vision of Divine Being are in the category of possible matters
11. God wills good and evil
12. Non - voluntary deeds of man are in accordance with qadā` and qadar
13. God creates man's voluntary deeds
14. Only Prophets are infallible
15. The questioning, joy and punishment in the grave are real
16. Resurrection will be both in body and soul
17. Intercession for the grave sinners is real
18. Paradise and Hell exist perpetually
19. Imamate is not an essential pillar of Religion.

We hereby give the Ash'arites' arguments on some of the principles in some details.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give a brief account of the origin of Ash'arism and enumerate its fundamental doctrines.

3.2 Attributes of God and their Relation with His Essence

- (i) The Ash'arites admitted that God has qualities but with the qualifications of mukhālafah lil-hawādith and bilā kayfa walā tashbih, i.e. the qualities and attributes ascribed to God must be understood to be inapplicable to human beings and so we should 'not ask how and draw comparisons'. Terms used for human beings must have quite different meaning when applied to God. God's attributes not only defer to those of mankind in degree but they defer in their whole nature. Expressions or ideas regarding God should be divested of all human elements, according to the Ash'arite principle of tanzīh.
- (ii) Al-Ash'arī is reported to have refuted Abu 'l-Hudhayl 'Allāf's identification of God's attributes with His essence in the following manner: Abu 'l-Hudhayl 'Allāf says that God's knowledge is God, and so he makes God knowledge. He must be asked to invoke knowledge instead of God, both being identical, and say in his prayers: "O knowledge, forgive me". He made this remark in all seriousness.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the Ash'arites' view on the relation between the attributes of God and His essence.

3.3 Created-ness or Uncreated-ness of the Holy Qur'ān

- (i) The Orthodox Ash'arites very strongly upheld the eternity and the uncreated-ness of the Qur'ān. They based their view, not on Jewish or Christian doctrine of the Logos, as some of the Orientalists and even the Mu'tazilites have alleged, but on the verses of the holy Qur'ān such as:
  - (a) The command is God's first and last' (Q.30:4), that is the command which indeed is through God's word (Kalām Allah) is eternal and uncreated.
  - (b) Are not the creation and the command His?' (Q.5:5). They say: Here God speaks of the command as something other than the act of creation which, according to the Ash'arites, implies that God's command does not belong to the category of created things. Further, God's command, by its very nature, is through His word or His speech; hence kalām Allah or the Qur'ān is uncreated.

- (c) God says: 'Our word to a thing when we intend it is only that We say to it, "Be" and it is (kun fayakūn). Al-Ash'arī argued, if the Qur'ān were supposed to be created, 'the word 'Be' must have been uttered to it before it could have come to existence. If God should say 'Be" to the Qur'ān which is itself, the 'word of God' a word will be said to another word. From the very logic of this position it would become necessary that a word should be uttered to another word for the latter to come into being. Thus one word would depend on another and the other upon next and so on and so forth to an infinite regression which, according to the Ash'arites, is unthinkable and impossible. Thus by reducing supposition to an absurdity, they claimed to have proved that the Qur'ān is uncreated.
- (ii) The Mu'tazilites made the allegation that the Ash'arites, by preaching the doctrine of the uncreated-ness of the Qur'ān, were advocating the Christian idea of Logos and tripping into shirk, i.e. polytheism. They argued that, should Ash'arites insist upon the uncreated-ness of the Qur'ān they would make it co-eternal with God and thus teach that He has His partner co-existent with Him from eternity.

Interestingly enough, the Ash'arites made a similar charge against the Mu'tazilites and called them 'the polytheists of the first order". They argued that whosoever insists on the created-ness of the Qur'ān comes very close to favouring the view of the infidels that the Qur'ān was a product of Prophet's own mind. The Ash'arites alluded to a verse of the holy Qur'ān in which God has spoken of the polytheists' belief about the Qur'ān that 'it is merely the word of a mortal' (Q.74: 25).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Examine the polemics between the Ash'arites and the Mu'tazilites on the problem of the eternity of the Qur'ān.

3.4 Possibility of the Beatific Vision

The Ash'arites advanced the following proofs in support of their view about the possibility of Beatific Vision even in the physical sense.

- (A) Proof from the Qur'ān. References were made to the following verses of the Qur'ān in support of their position:
  - (i) That day will faces be splendid, looking towards their Lord (Q.75: 22, 23). The possibility of Beatific Vision is clearly indicated herein, according to the Ash'arites, as a gift which would be granted by God to the people of Paradise on the Day of Resurrection.
  - (ii) He Moses said: O my Lord, show me thyself so that I may gaze upon Thee (Q. 7:143) Al-Ash'arī contended that had the vision of God been impossible of realisation, Moses would not have asked for it. Moses was an Apostle of God and thus free from sin or gross error. How could he ask for an absurd and impossible thing?
- (B) Proof from the Hadīth. The Ash'arites called the attention of the Mu'tazilites to the following saying of the Prophet in which, in reply to a question about the possibility of seeing God on the Day of Resurrection, he is reported to have said: "You will see your Lord as you see the full moon while you will not disagree among yourselves"
- (C) Proof from Logic. The logical arguments in favour of Beatific Vision are listed below:
  - (i) God can show us everything that exists. Therefore He can show Himself to us.
  - (ii) He who sees things sees Himself. God sees things. Therefore God sees Himself.
  - (iii) He who sees Himself can make Himself seen. God sees Himself. Therefore He can make Himself seen.
  - (iv) The Highest good is realisable in the highest world. The Beatific Vision is the highest good. Therefore Beatific Vision is realisable in the highest world.

Al-Ash'arī asserted that those who denied the Beatific Vision of God reduced God to a mere philosophical abstraction and even to a nonentity.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain the views of the Ash'arites on the Beatific Vision.

3.5 God's Seating Himself upon the Throne

From the following verses of the Qur'ān it was quite clear to the Ash'arites that God is seated on His throne high up in the heavens:

- (i) The Merciful is seated on the throne (Q.20:4)
- (ii) The good word rises up to Him (Q.35:11)
- (iii) God took him (Jesus) up to Him (Q.4:156)
- (iv) Hereafter shall they come up to Him (Q.19:95)
- (v) What! Are you sure that He who is in the heaven will not cleave the earth beneath you? (Q.67:16)
- (vi) And thou shall see the Angels circling around the throne uttering the praises of their Lord (Q.30:74-75).

These verses of the Qur'ān were further corroborated by a tradition of the Prophet in which he is reported to have said that God descends every night to the lower heavens and asks: Is there anyone who is to make a request? I am here to grant it to him. Is there anyone who asks for forgiveness? I am here to forgive him. This goes until dawn.

In addition to the above evidence from the Qur'ān and the Hadīth for God's seating Himself upon the throne al-Ash 'arī advanced the following argument: If God is at all places as the Mu'tazilites have maintained, this would compel one to admit that God is under the depths and the created beings are below Him. If this is true, He must be under that above which He is and above that under which He is. Since this is a complete absurdity, one cannot say that God is at all places.

Al-Ash'arī attacked the Mu'tazilites and others who made use of allegorical interpretations and asserted that God is at all places, by saying that if this interpretation were true then it might be logically concluded that God is also in the womb of Mary.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

What are the doctrines of the Ash'arites on the Qur'ānic verse "The Merciful (God) is seated on His throne high up in the Heaven".

3.6 Free - Will

On the issue of free - will the old orthodox position was absolutely fatalistic (jabarism). The Mu'tazilites, following the principle of divine justice, made out a case for man's free - will. Al-Ash'arī struck a middle course. 'Man cannot create any thing; God is the only Creator; nor does man's power produce any effect on his actions at all.

God creates in His creature power (qudrah) and choice (ikhtiyār). Then He creates in him his actions corresponding to the power and choice thus created.' According to al-Ash'arī, though the action of the creature is created by God both as to its initiative and as to its production yet it is acquired by the creature. Acquisition (kasb) corresponds to the creature's power and choice previously created in him; he is only the locus (mahall) or subject of his action. In this way al-Ash'arī is supposed to have accounted for free - will and made man responsible for his actions. For example he says, a man writes with a pen on a piece of paper. God creates in his mind the will to write and at the same time He grants him the power to write thus bringing about the apparent motion of the hand and the pen and the appearance of the words on the paper. Thus the whole theory of acquisition amounts to al-Ash'arī saying that the significance of man's freedom lies in his consciousness of freedom in himself. Man gives assent to the works, which are accomplished in him by God, and claims this as his own.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Summarise the discussion on man's power and free - will as taught by al-Ash'arī.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The whole of the third hijrah century was the era of powerful reaction to Mu'tazilites' rationalist teachings. The Traditionalists adhered strictly to literal interpretation of the Qur'ān and refused to allow reasoning in-road to religious doctrines. They even regarded any theological discussion as (bid'ah); their reaction against the Mu'tazilites went to such an extent that even the anthropomorphic verses of the Qur'ān were interpreted by them in a purely literal sense. For instance "Gods seating Himself upon His Throne" is understood literally; the how of it is unknown, belief in it is obligatory and questioning about it is an innovation. Every dogma was to be believed in without raising question 'how' or 'why'.

But such an attitude of blind faith could not be maintained for any length of time. Islam, which is meant to be a Universal religion and a force, had to adapt itself to new thoughts and new environments. So, there arose gradually a party from among the Ahlu 's-Sunnah wa 'l-Jama 'ah, the Traditionalists and the majority opinion (i.e. the orthodox section of the Ummah) who realised the necessity of putting Islam on a solid ground by advancing reasons for the traditional beliefs and defending beliefs against all sorts of attacks, internal and external; and thus purging the Islamic faith of all the non-Islamic elements that has crept into it. They founded the orthodox theology of Islam by using kalām-the philosophical method, in order to meet the dialectical reasoning of the Mu'tazilites. These theologians who employed Kalām for the defense of their faith were therefore known as Mutakallimun.

5.0 SUMMARY

Ash'arism was the school of Ahlu 's- Sunnah wa 'l-Jamā 'ah. It was begun almost at the same time in different places of Muslim World; in Mesopotamia, by 'Alī bn Ismā'īl al-Ash'arī (d. circa 941-945 A.D.); in Egypt, by al-Fahāwī (d. 942 A.D.); and in Muslim East i.e. Iraq, Iran, Sind and Hind, by Mansūr al-Māturidī. Among these three al-Ash'arī was the most popular hero before whom Mu'tazilite system crumbled; and he came to be known as the founder of the orthodox theology. The school founded by him was known after him as al-Ash'ariyyah (Ash'arism).

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

- 1 Highlight the events that led to the emergence of Ash'arism.
- 2 Enumerate the fundamental doctrines of the theological school.
3. Compare the views of the Mu'tazilites and the Ash'arites on Divine Unity or Divine Justice.
4. Write notes on
  - (a) Attributes of God and their Relation with His Essence
  - (b) God's seating Himself on the Throne

1.0 INTRODUCTION

As you have been told in the previous unit, Ash'arism was attributed to the name of Abu `l-Hasan Alī ibn Ismā`īl al-Ash'arī (d. c. 330/945). As it has also been indicated alMātūrīdī and a't-Tahāwī's schools of theology similar to that of al-Ash'arī arose at the same time in Samarqanda and Egypt respectively. All the three produced treatises which were been used as text books in schools. This unit gives a biographical account of Imām Abu `l-Hasan 'Alī al-Ash'arī and a translation of his catechism as a sample of the treatises of the Ahlu Sunnah wa `l-Jamā'ah movement.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- identify three representatives of orthodox school of Islamic theology
- give a biographical account of al-Ash'arī and sum up his treatise on the Sunni creed.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Abu `l- Hasan 'Alī al-Ash'arī:

His full name is Abu `l-Hasan 'Alībn Ismā`īl al-Ash'arī a seventh generation descendant of Abu Mūsā al-Ash'arī the reputable Companion of the Prophet Muhammad. He was born in Başrah in 260 a.h. In his early youth he was attending the sittings of Traditionalists and Jurists but always with his tutor Abu 'Alī al-Jubbāī taking lessons in the Science of Islamic Creed ('ilmu al-Aqā'id). As a disciple of al-Jubbāī, he became a member of the Mu'tazilite's school and champion of Mu'tazilism. Because he was an eloquent speaker while his mentor was only a good author, he represented him at discussion and debate forums on many occasions until he was forty.

Al-Ash'arī then disagreed with his teacher on some issues such as the question of a`ṣ-ṣalāh wa`l-aṣlah, which implies that it is incumbent on God to do what is in the best interest of man and for which his tutor could not provide him with a convincing answer. Al-Ash'arī came to al-Jubbāī and presented the case of three brothers; one being God fearing, another godless and a third having died as a child, and asked him as to what would be their positions on the Resurrection. Al-Ash'arī thus boycotted the Mu'tazilites' camp as his teacher was unable to give a satisfactory answer.

He secluded in his house for some time comparing the proofs of Mu'tazilism with other existing views. He then came out on a Friday and mounted the pulpit in the Central Mosque of Basrah and declared: He who knows me knows who I am, and he who does not know me let him know that I am Abu al-Ḥasan 'Alī al-Ash'arī; I used to maintain that the Qur'ān is created, that eyes of men shall not see God and that the creatures create their actions. Lo! I repent that I have been a Mu'tazilī. I renounce these opinions and I take the engagement to refute the Mu'tazilah and expose their infamy and turpitude." O men: I have been away from you all these days because I compared notes and the proofs were seen as balance and none carried weight above the other. Then I sought for guidance from Allah and he guided me to what I have preserved in these my books. I have divested myself of all the creeds I was holding as I am divesting myself from this cloth. He then presented what he authored from the point of view of the Majority of Jurists and Traditionalists. Whatever might be the cause of al-Ash'arī's change, he became terribly in earnest for the task set before himself when he changed.

Al-Ash'arī pursued his adversaries, the Mu'tazilah and all men of selfish interest wherever they were found; spread the tentacles of his supporters to nooks and corners. Most scholars called him the Imām Ahlu `s-Sunnah wa `l-Jamā'ah (Leader of the Sunnis and Muslim Majority) because he accepted all the creeds contained in the Qur'ān and the Sunnah and approves apparent meaning of the seemingly ambiguous verses not necessarily comparing God's Attributes and qualities with those of men.

The various groups of the people, who read his books took him to be their leader, ascribed themselves to his system. The followers of his system are popularly known by the name al-Ashā'irah. He died in 230 a.h. Al-Ash'arī was reported to be a prolific writer being ascribed the authorship of about three hundred books; but one of his biographers, Ibn Asakir, mentions only ninety-three of his works. Brockelmann, in his Gazetteer Arabischan Littérateur, enumerates a few of these. Three that are in print and may be found on some Muslim websites are: Al-Ibānah 'an Uṣūl a`d-Diyānah; A`r-Risālah fī Istihṣān al-Khawḍ fī 'l-Kalām and Maqālāt al-Islāmiyyīn. The Maqālāt has been said to be the most authentic book on the views of different schools about religious dogmas and doctrines.

SELF- ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Write a biography of al-Ash'arī; mention some of his contribution to Islamic theology among other things.

3.2 Al-Ash‘arī’s Muslim Catechism

Below is a complete translation our doctrine which we teach and our religion (diyāna) which we follow consists in holding fast to the Book of God and the Usage (sunna) of His Prophet and to that which is handed down from the Companions, their immediate followers (tābi’s) and from the leaders (imāms) in tradition, with that we take refuge; and we teach that which Ahmad ibn Hanbal - may God illumine his face, exalt his rank and make great his reward-followed; and we shun that which is opposed to his doctrine. For he is the excellent leader, the perfect chief, through whom God made plain the truth, when error was made manifest, and showed the path and smote down the innovations of the innovators, the deviations of the deviators and the doubts of the doubters. So, the mercy of God be upon him for an appointed leader and an instructed chief, and upon all the leaders of the Muslims.

The sum of our doctrine is this that we believe in God, His Angels, His Books, His Apostles, in all that has come from God, and what trustworthy men (thiqah) have reported from the Apostles of God; we oppose nothing thereof.

That God is One God, Single, One, Eternal; beside Him no God exists; He has taken to Himself no wife (ṣāhibah), nor child (walad); and that Muhammad is His Servant (abd) and His Apostle. That Paradise and Hell are Verity and that the Hour (as-sā‘ah) will come without doubt, and God will resurrect those that are in the graves.

That God has seated Himself (istawā) upon His throne, as He has said, (Qur. 20, 4); "the Rahmān has settled Himself upon His throne."

That God has a countenance, as He has said, (Qur. 55, 27); "and the countenance of thy Lord will abide, full of majesty and glory;" and two hands, as He has said, (Qur. 5, 69); "much more! Both His hands are spread out," and (Qur. 38, 75); "that which I have created with both My hands;" and two eyes, without asking how (bila kayfa), as He has said, (Qur. 54, 14); "which swims forth under Our eyes."

That whoever thinks that God's name is other than He is in error. That God has Knowledge (ilm), as He has said, (Qur. 35, 12); "Not one woman becomes pregnant and brings forth, except by His knowledge."

We maintain that God has Power (qudrah), as He has said, (Qur. 41, 14); "and have they not seen that God who created them is stronger than they?" We maintain that God has Hearing (sam'u) and Seeing (baṣar) and do not deny it, as do the Mu'tazilites, Jahmites and Kharijites.

We teach that God's Word (kalām) is uncreated, and that He has never created anything except by saying to it, "Be!" and it forthwith became, as He has said, (Qur. 16, 42); "Our speech to anything when We willed it was, 'Be' and it was." Nothing exists upon earth, be it good or bad, but that which, God wills; but all things are by God's Will (mashī'ah). No one is able to do anything before God does it, neither is anyone independent of God, nor can he withdraw himself from God's Knowledge.

There is no Creator but God. The works (a' māl) of creatures are created and predestined by God, as He said, (Qur. 37, 94); "and God has created you and what ye do."

Man is able to create nothing; but they are created, as He has said, (Qur. 35, 31); "Is there any Creator except God?" and (Qur. 16, 17) "and is He who created like him who created not?" and (Qur. 52, 35); "were they created out of nothing, or are they the creators?" and such passages are many in the Qur'ān.

And God maintains the believers in obedience to Him, is gracious unto them, cares for them, reforms them, and guides them aright; but the unbelievers He leads astray, guides them not aright, vouchsafes them not Faith (īmān), by His Grace, as the People of error and pride maintain. For should He be gracious unto them and help them aright, then would they be pious, and should He guide them aright, then would they allow themselves to be guided aright, as He has said, (Qur. 7, 177); "whom God guideth aright, he allows himself to be guided aright, and whom He leads astray, they are the losers." God is able to help the unbelieving aright and to be gracious unto them, so that they shall become believing, but He wills that they shall be unbelieving as is known; for He has made them unyielding to all help and sealed their hearts.

Good and evil happen according to the Destiny (qadā) and Decree (qadar) of God for good and evil, for the sweet and the bitter. We know that the misfortune that befalls us is not in order that we may go astray, and that the good fortune which befalls us is not in order that we may go aright. We have no control over that which is good or hurtful to us, except so far as God wills. We flee from our anxieties to God and commit at all times our distress and poverty to Him.

We teach that the Qur'ān is God's Word, and that it is uncreated, and that whosoever says that it is created is an unbeliever (kāfir).

We believe that God at the Day of Resurrection (yawm al-qiyyamah) will be visible to the eyes, as the moon is seen upon the night of the full moon; the believers will see Him, according to Traditions, which have come down from the Prophet.

We teach that while the believers will see Him, the unbelievers will be separated from Him by a wall of division, as God has said, (Qur. 83, 15); "Surely not! They will be separated from their Lord, upon that Day." We teach that Moses besought God that he might see Him in this world; then God revealed Himself to the mountain and turned it into dust and taught Moses thereby that he could not see Him in this world (Qur. 7, 139). We are of the opinion that we may not accuse anyone of unbelief (kufir), who prays towards Mecca, on account of sin committed by him, such as unchastely, theft, wine drinking, as the Kharijites believe, who judge that these thereby become unbelievers.

We teach that whoever commits a great sin (kabīrah), or anything like it, holding it to be allowed, is an unbeliever, since he does not believe in its prohibition.

We teach that Islam is a wider idea than Faith (īmān), so that not every Islam is Faith.

We believe that God turns the hearts upside down, and holds them between two of His fingers, that He lays the heavens upon a finger and the earth upon a finger, according to the tradition from the Prophet.

We believe that God will not leave in Hell any of those who confess His Unity (muwahhid) and hold fast to the Faith, and that there is no

Hell for him whom the Prophet has by his witness appointed to Paradise.

We hope for Paradise for sinners and fear on their account, that they will be punished in Hell.

We teach that God will release a few out of Hell, on account of Muhammad's intercession (shafa'ah) after they have been scorched there.

We believe in the punishment of the grave.

We believe that the Tank (ḥawḍ) and the Weight (Mīzān) are Verities: that the Bridge (aṣ-Ṣirāt) is a Verity; that Resurrection (ba'th) after death is a Verity; that God will set up His creatures in a place (mawqif) and will hold a reckoning with the Believers.

We believe that Faith (īmān) consists in word (qawl) and in work (amal) and that it increases and diminishes.

We trust in the sound Traditions handed down from the Apostle of God, transmitted by trustworthy people (thiqah), man of integrity from man of integrity, up to the Apostle.

We hold by the love of the early Believers (salaf), whom God chose to be Companions to the Prophet, and we praise them with the praise with which God praised them, and we carry on their succession. We assert that the Imām succeeding the Apostle of God was Abu Bakr; that God made Religion (dīn) great by him, and caused him to conquer the Apostates (murtadds). The Muslims made him their Imām, just as Muhammad had made him Imām at prayers.

Then followed [as recognised Imām] 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb; then 'Uthmān ibn 'Affān; his murderers killed him out of wickedness and enmity; then 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib. These are the Imāms after the Apostle, and their caliphate is that of the Prophetic office [i.e., they are, though not prophets, successors of the Prophet].

We bear witness of Paradise for the Ten (al-asharatu-l-mubashsharah), to whom the Apostle bore witness of it, and we carry on the succession of the other Companions of the Prophet and hold ourselves far from that which was in dispute between them. We hold that the four Imāms were in the true way, were rightly guided and excellent, so that no one equals them in excellence.

We hold as true the traditions, which the People of Tradition (naql) have established, concerning the descent of God to the lowest heaven (samā ad-dunyā), and that the Lord will say, "Is there a suppliant? Is there a seeker for forgiveness?" and the rest of that which they have handed down and established, contrary to that which the mistaken and misled opined.

We ground ourselves in our opposition on the Qur'ān, the Sunnah of the Prophet, the agreement of the Muslims and what is in accordance therewith, but put forth no novelty (bid'a) not sanctioned by God, and we opine of God nothing that we have not been taught.

We teach that God will come on the Day of Resurrection, as He has said, (Qur. 89, 23); "When the earth shall be turned to dust, and the Lord shall appear and the Angels, rank on rank," and that God is near to His servants, in what way (kayfa) He wills, as He has said, (Qur. 50, 15); "and We are nearer to him than the artery in his neck;" and (Qur. 53, 8); "Then He approached and came near and was two bows' length distant or even nearer."

To our Religion (dīn) belongs further, that we on Fridays and on festival days pray behind every person, pious and profane - so are the conditions for congregational prayers, as it is handed down from Abd Allah ibn 'Umar that he prayed behind al-Hajjāj.

To our Religion belongs the wiping (mash) of the inner boots (khuffs) upon a journey and at home, in contradiction to the deniers of this.

We uphold the prayer for peace for the Imāms of the Muslims, submission to their office, and maintain the error of those who hold it right to rise against them whenever there may be apparent in them a falling away from right. We are against armed rebellion against them and civil war.

We believe in the appearance of anti-Christ (al-Masīhad-Dajjal) according to the tradition handed down from the Prophet; in the punishment of the grave, and in Munkar and Nakīr and in their questions to be buried in their graves.

We hold the tradition of the journey to heaven (mi'rāj, Qur. 17) of Muhammad as true, and declare many of the visions in sleep to be true, and we say that there is an explanation for them.

We uphold the alms for the dead of the Muslims and prayer for them, and believe that God will help them therewith.

We hold as true that there are enchanters in the world, and that enchantment is and exists.

We hold as a religious duty the prayer which is held over the dead of those who have prayed toward Mecca, whether they have been believers or godless; we uphold also that it is their right to inherit them.

We acknowledge that Paradise and Hell are created, and that whoever dies or is killed, dies or is killed at his appointed time (ajal); that articles of sustenance (rizq) from God, with which He sustains His creatures, consist of the lawful (ḥalāl) and the forbidden (ḥarām); that Satan makes evil suggestions to men, and puts them in doubt, and causes them to be possessed, contrary to that which the Muʿtazilites and the Jahmites maintain, as God said, (Qur. 2, 276); "Those who take usury will [at the Resurrection] stand there like one whom Satan causes to be possessed by madness," and (Qur. 114, 4 ff.); "I take my refuge in God, from the evil suggestion, from the stealthy one who makes suggestions in the hearts of men, by means of men and Jinn."

We affirm that God may distinguish the pious by signs, which He manifests through them.

Our teaching concerning the little children of the polytheists (mushriks) is this, that God will kindle a fire in the other world for them, and will say, "Run in there;" - as the tradition says.

We believe that God knows what men do and what they will to do, what happens and how that which does not happen, if it should happen, would happen.

We believe in the obedience of the Imāms and in their counsel of the Muslims. We consider right the separation from every inciter to innovation (bidʿah) and the turning aside from the People of wandering desires (ahl al-ahwāʾ).

- Translated from the Arabic text in Spitta's Zur Geschichte al-Asʿari's, pp. 133 ff.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

- i. Identify the first twenty articles of belief in al-Ashʿarī's catechism.
- ii. Highlight the last twenty five articles of faith in the Muslim creed by al-Ashʿarī.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The above English translation of al-Ash'arī's Muslim catechism has been downloaded and adapted from <http://www.sacred-texts.com/cdshop/index.htm.inal>. The translation of similar catechisms authored by al-Ghazzālī (d. 1111 c.e.) an-Nasafī (d.) and al-Fudālī (d.) can also be downloaded from the same website. Their original Arabic texts are in print in various forms and in wide circulation with commentaries and glossaries added to some of them. So also are the catechisms of a't-Tahāwī ((229 - 321 (844 - 933)); a's-Sanūsī (c. 1430 - 1490), al-Wāsiṭiyyah of the celebrated theologian, ibn Taymiyyah. Kitabu 't-Tawhid, the catechism written by al-Māturidī (238 - 332/853 - 949) is also in print and in various forms, with or without commentaries, and as prescribed text-books in Muslim religious Institutions of Al-Azhar University in Cairo, Zaytunah Institute in Tunis etc.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit presents the biography of al-Ash'arī, one of the celebrated Muslim theologian after whom Islamic orthodox movement is named. The unit also provides a complete translation of his catechism. Published catechisms, similar to that of al-Ash'arī, with translation and commentaries are enumerated as concluding remarks.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Enumerate twenty Articles of faith giving their Qur'ānic references as contained in the Ash'arī's Muslim catechism.
2. Mention the names of prominent Muslim theologians whose book of Islamic creed are extant and in use in our contemporary times.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

This module deals exclusively with the Ghaybiyyāt, the theological terms for belief in the unseen. It involves issues we only conceived through information reaching us from Messengers of God and holy books. They are doctrines pertaining to Angels, Jinn, Soul, Death and Eschatology, i.e. life after death. We shall start with those issues listed above in sections 3.1. - 3.6 in this unit.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define Angels of God and describe their nature
- substantiate the infallibility of the Angels
- discuss superiority between Angels and Prophets according to

- different school of Islamic theology
- highlight the functions of the Scribes and Protectors among the Angels
- describe the identity of Jinn and Satan
- explain the nature of Spirit/Soul.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Angels, Their Nature and Functions

Angels are bodies created from light, which can transform into various pictures so as to be seen. Their duties are to worship (Allah). This description is supported by the appearance of Jibril while revealing the Qur'ān to Prophet Muhammad (SAW). It is reported that its appearance is in a horrible picture and many other forms.

The Angels are neither male nor female nor hermaphrodites. They cannot give birth. To ascribe sex to them is considered in Islam as transgression and disbelief.

Allah says: “They called the Angels who are servants of the Beneficent females, do they witness their creation?” (Q.43:19)

Some Angels dwell in heavens while some live on earth. The Qur'ān, Hadīth and consensus opinion of scholars support their existence. Therefore it is compulsory to believe generally in all of them and particularly in Jibril, Mikail and those who are mentioned in the Scriptures, such as those carrying or surrounding the ‘Arsh (Allah’s Throne) and those keeping records of deeds of men.

Allah created the Angels as His soldiers to implement His laws and orders among His creatures. The most honoured among them are the dwellers of heavens that uphold or surround the ‘Arsh to illuminate it (Q.29:75). Those in charge of hell are giants with Angel Malik as their leader (Q.43:77). Angel Jibrīl is Allah’s Ambassador to His Prophets. The Angel in charge of rain is called Mikail. He is also in charge of rizq i.e. sustenance and (means of livelihood). The Angel to blow the trumpets to usher in Resurrection is Isrāfīl. The one that takes the souls of human beings to terminate their lives is Azrāīl. Allah alone knows the number of His warriors.

Angels never disobey Allah’s command; they promptly do His orders. (Q.66:6)

“They worship Him, glorify Him and prostrate to Him, i.e. their duties and purpose of their creation is to bow in humility, perform functions assigned to them as can be further deduced from the following verses. “When your Lord told the Angels I am creating on the earth a vicegerent. They said would You put on it those who would do evil and shed blood, when we have for so long sung Your praise and sanctified Your name (Q.2:30)? In this question, the Angels did not intend to discredit Adam and honour themselves, but their intention was to ask about the purpose of his creation a fact they have known from guarded tablet. This is evidenced in the fact that:

- (i) When God commanded the Angels to prostrate for Adam, they all prostrated. Satan refused, was obstinate; and was among the disbelievers. The disobedience of Satan, who was among the Angels who were infallible, shows that he was not Angel, but Jin. Allah says: He is among the Jinn and disobeys the commandment of His Lord.
- (ii) The story of Ārūt and Mārūt discussed after next few paragraphs is also evidence of infallibility of Angels.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Explain the Angels, their nature and explain their functions.

3.2 Superiority between Angels and Prophets

Actually knowledge of most honoured and superior belongs to Allah. However,

- (a) In the Muslims’ beliefs, our leader Prophet Muhammad (SAW) is the best of all the heavenly or earthly creatures; including Angels, Jinn and Mankind;

This position is based on the prophetic Tradition:

“I am most honoured among the first and the last in the sight of Allah; and this is neither pride nor boasting; it is confirmation of the injunction of Allah.” But proclaim the bounty of your Lord.”

The contrary opinion of Zamakhsharī that raises Jibrīl above the Prophet (ﷺ) should be disregarded. He supports his view with the verse “Surely, this is the word of the Gracious Messenger, held in honour by the Lord of the thrown, obeyed and faithful. No, your Companion is not mad.” Truly, the qualities of Jibrīl are many in this verse; and that of the Prophet is only one, which is negation of his madness. It is not evident that Jibrīl is higher in honour than the Prophet. The circumstance surrounding the revelation of the verse refutes the allegation made by the unbelievers when they said: “Verily, he (the Prophet) was taught by a man,” and their saying that “he lies on Allah or there is madness in him” The message is not to establish the superiority of anyone of them above the other.

Also, the teaching of the Prophet by Jibrīl does not indicate that he (Jibrīl) is superior to the Prophet (ﷺ), because the Teacher of the Prophet Muhammad is Allah.” Jibrīl is only a Messenger to the Prophet (ﷺ).

Zamakhsharī however maintains that the Prophet discouraged people from elevating him over others quoting the tradition, which says:

“Do not elevate me over other Prophets” and do not praise me above Yunus bn Mattī; and his saying ‘Do not choose me above Mūsā’

The Prophet said these to discourage them from dis-honouring other Prophets. Or he said it before he knew of his honorific position among all other Prophets; or he said these because of his humble nature and prophetic qualities.

This honour of the Prophet is based on the divine wisdom granted him by Allah, which is not found in others, Allah says:

“Those are Messengers; of them We have exalted some above others. To some Allah spoke directly; others He raised to a lofty status”.

Also on the issue of who is more superior between the Angels and other Prophets, there are differences of opinion among the Sunnīs (Orthodox Muslims).

The Ash‘ariyyah maintain that the Prophets generally are superior to the Angels; and that among them; Prophet Ibrahim is next to Prophet Muhammad in superiority. Musa, Isa, Nuhu and other Messengers in that order follow him. The rest of the Prophets follows them. Among the Angels; the Ash‘ariyyah maintain that Jibrīl and Mikail are most superior; and neither of them is more superior to the other. They are followed by Israfil, then ‘Azarail; then the others.

In the doctrine of the Matūridiyyah, the Prophets are superior to Jubril, Mikāil and the rest of the leaders among the Angels. They are also of the opinion that the leaders among the Angels are superior to the generality of the believers, and that the pious awliyaullah (saints) such as Abubakr ‘Umar and the rest of the believers are superior to all other Angels most especially the upholders of ‘Arsh.

The Sunnis base their opinion on the following:

- (1) Allah's commandment of the Angels to prostrate for Adam was to show respect for him. That was an indication that Adam was more superior to the Angels.
- (2) Knowledge imparted to Adam placed humanity over Angels. "They are not the same those who have knowledge and those who have not."
- (3) Obedience to God from mankind is burdensome. It requires self-efforts to overcome Satan and suppress worldly passions or obstacles and therefore leads to huge rewards, which make man superior to Angels. The Prophet said: The most virtuous work is the most burdensome.
- (4) Allah (SWT) says: "Verily Allah has chosen Adam and Noah and the house-hold of Abraham and the household of Imrān above all the creation."

The Opinions of the Mu'tazilites and their Supporters

The Mu'tazilites believe that Angels are superior to Prophets supporting their views with the following points.

- (1) Allah says: "Al-Masīh Īsā do not deny servant-hood of Allah nor the Angels who are very close to Allah." They argue that proximity of Angels to Allah is a clear indication of their superiority over Angels.
- (2) The Angels are teachers of the Prophets; and teachers are superior to their students.
- (3) The Angels are of clean souls. They are infallible and have no selfish desire. Therefore they should be more honoured.

The Ash'arites debunked all the arguments of the Mu'tazilites seeing the first as irrelevant, or saying Allah was the tutor of Muhammad, Jibrīl was only the bearer of messages etc.

However, superiority of Prophet Muhammad (SAW) above all other creatures is the only conclusive issue for which there is consensus. Superiority between Angels, Prophets and Mankind is not a fundamental theological issue.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Highlight the differences of opinions among the Ash'arites, the Māturidites and the Mu'tazilites on the issue of superiority between the Angels and the Prophets.

3.3 The Scribes and the Protectors

It is compulsory to believe that there are Protectors and Scribes among the Angels.

The Protectors: These are Angels Allah has created to protect man from harmful or dangerous things. “For every man there is Protector” (Q. 78:4). It is reported that ‘Uthmān asked the Prophet (ﷺ) about the Protector (Angels). The Prophet (ﷺ) said: “Every mankind is with ten angels in the night and ten in the day; an Angel stays by his right and another by the left; two in the front and back, two by both sides, one holding his furlong; he raises it if he is humble and humiliates it if he is arrogant. Two are between his lips, recording his invocation of blessing on the Prophet (ﷺ), the tenth preventing snake from entering his mouth.” This is blessing of Allah. They (Angels) stay by man at all times.

The Scribes: They are Angels recording all that emanates from mankind in words, actions and intentions. Angels of blessing and mercy boycott places where there are dogs and pictures. The two Scribes attached to man are called Raqīb and ‘Atīd. They do not depart him as long as he lies and would stand by his grave after his death, seeking forgiveness for him, if he is a believer; and invoking curse on him if he is an infidel.

It is obvious that for every one are four Scribes, two in the night and two in the daytime, shifting with each other at subh and ‘asr times. The Scribe of good deeds stands by his right side while the Scribe of evil deeds is by the left side. Not until when forgiveness is not sought after six hours that it will be recorded.

Allah says: “Raqīb and ‘Atīd are present at all his utterances.” He (SWT) also says: Actually on you are watchers, respected recorders, who know what you are doing.” (Q.82:11)

It is compulsory to believe that, there are Recorders and Keepers for each person; and there are Scribes among the Angels known to Allah alone. Anyone who rejects anything about this is an infidel.

This belief teaches self examination and not to wait till the approach of the last day; to continue with good deeds and desist from his evil deeds. A Prophetic tradition advises “Assess yourself before you are assessed”.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Who are the Protectors and the Scribes among the Angels?

3.4 Spirit (Soul)

Soul is substance attached to the body to control it according to the opinion of the philosophers and their supporters among the Mu‘tazilites. Many Sunnīs, Jurist and Sūfī theologians maintain that soul is an invisible body created from light existing and controlling parts of the body. It is not in need of food and does not grow nor degenerate. Soul’s shape can be likened to the shape of the body according to the Maliki Jurists who permits discussion of it. However, majority of authorities of Muslim theology are against dabbling into discussing soul, while some prohibit it. They based their opinion on Allah’s word: “They will ask you about soul/spirit say it is an affair of your Lord, and only little knowledge about it is given to you”.

Created-ness of the Soul: The consensus is that soul is originated; not eternal. There are differences however, on whether its creation is before that of the body or after it. Those who believe that it existed before the body based their opinion on the saying of the Prophet that souls are large armies. Those who know each other (among them) leave together and those who do not know each other do not” Aishah reported the Hadīth.

Meanwhile, Al-Ghazzālī and his followers maintain that it is created after the body. They based their stand on the authentic Hadīth that says “the creation of men is made in the womb of his mother as sperm for forty days, then he became a clot of blood, then flesh like that, then an Angel will be sent to it to breathe spirit into it.” Its place is either in the stomach or in the heart or in the totally of the body; but Allah knows best.

Is soul/spirit single or multiple? ‘Izzu `d-Dīn ibn Abdu `s-Salām asserts that there are two souls in the body, one of them is the awakening soul. God so made it that if it is in the body man will be awake when it departs the body he falls asleep and be dreaming.

The other is ‘life soul’. It’s presence in the body gives life to it; and when it leaves the body it dies. No one knows there exact place in the body except Allah. “Allah takes soul at death; the one that does not die while asleep; and withholds the one that has been destined to die and release others until their appointed time.

Thus the soul, taken and withheld is 'life soul'; while the one that is taking and releasing is the 'awakening and distinction soul'

As for supporters of the first opinion, they compared sleep with death because of unconsciousness in each of them; and they compare its release with being in a waking state. Thus it is a single soul which is removed while in the state of death and returned while waking up until it is finally taken at its appointed time.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the characteristics of soul, its functions and various doctrines attached to it.

3.5 Jinn and Satan

Who are the Jinn? Was Satan an Angel?

The Qur'ān describes the Jinn as a body created from fire. And according to some theologians they are flexible and capable of assuming different shapes and performing invisible actions. There are among them Believers and Unbelievers. On the other hand, Satan is a body from fire. Its duty is to put people in problem and lead them astray. Another opinion says: Jinn and Satan are the same. They are body made of fire having intelligence and able to change to pleasant and ugly shapes. They are like mankind in the act of eating, drinking, reproducing and talking. There are among them righteous and devilish sinners. Pointer to these facts is the Qur'ānic passages:

“As for the Jinn, We created them initially from smoke of fire.” (Q.55:15) “Say it is revealed on to me that a group among the Jinn listen to the Qur'ān, They said: We have listened to a wonderful Qur'ān, which guides to the straight path. We believe in it and we will not associate anything with our Lord forever.” (Q.72:1-2)

The Prophet (S) praised them when he said: “the Jinn are better than you people, whenever I recited to them “which of the favour of your Lord will you belie?” They would say “We do not belie any of your favours. To you is the Praise. As their existence has been authenticated by the above Qur'ānic statements and those of the Prophet and the consensus of the scholars, absolute belief in them becomes necessary and whoever denies it is a Kāfir.”

Further on Satan Allah says:

“When We told the Angels to prostrate for

Adam, they all prostrated except shaytān, he refused, was obstinate, and He is among the disbelievers.

And He says: ‘He is among the Jinn and disobeys the commandment of his Lord.’

This disobedience shows that though shaytān was among the Angels, he is not Angel.

The story about Hārūt and Mārūt who were said to be both Angels needs to be clarified. It was said they descended to teach people magic and they were tempted with a woman. This story was fabricated; it has no base (in Islam) due to the fact that the nature of Angels did not allow them to commit any sin.

The truth about the story is that magicians were many at that period. They were doing strange things naturally with their act of magic and were claiming them to be prophecy from Allah. Then Allah sent down two Angels as a blessing for His worshipers in order to teach people magic so that they could be able to differentiate between magic and divine miracle. “And they did not teach anyone magic until after they have said verily we are temptations do not be an unbeliever in God. It is important to uphold this Qur’ānic version and leave or reject any other things besides this.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Define Jinn and Satan and explain their nature. State the significance of the story of Harut and Marut.

4.0 CONCLUSION

In the Muslim creed, Allah created the Angels from light as His obedient servants. Duties of some of them are specified and it is a requirement to have faith in their existence and their functions. The Ash‘ariyyah including the Māturidiyyah are of the opinion that Prophets are more superior to Angels with minor differences while the Mu’tazilites maintain that the Angels are more superior to Mankind. Little knowledge is granted to man concerning soul and its function. Jinn and Satan share certain things in common with men and others with the Angels. Satan was never an Angel as could be derived from the Holy Qur’ān, particularly the story of Hārūt and Mārūt.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit describes Angels, their nature and their functions. The opinions of the Ash‘ariyyah, Māturidiyyah and the Mu‘tazilites on the issue of superiority between the Angels and the Prophets are also stated in the unit. Notable among the Angels are Jibril, Azrāil, Mikāil, Mālik, Raqib, Atid, Hamalat al-‘Arsh, Protectors and Scribes. Soul, its characteristics, functions and doctrines related to it are also treated in a section of the unit. A brief description of nature of Jinn and Satan and the truth of the story of Hārut and Mārut concludes the unit.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1.0    INTRODUCTION

What is death? Is there life after death? How would such life look like? Religious teachings relating to life after death is called eschatology. As would be seen in the following units Islamic theology contains a lot of issues relating to life after death. These will be discussed in three parts and the first part will be presented in this unit.

2.0    OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- discuss death and matters relating to ajal, martyrdom and sustenance
- explain questioning of the dead in the grave
- describe the sufferings that unbelievers will encounter in the grave
- give a brief account of enjoyment of the righteous in the grave.

3.1    Death and Ajal (Life Span), Martyrdom and Sustenance

Death is the opposite of life. It is the separation of soul from the body and transition from one place to another. Allah created death and made it a destiny for mankind.

That life will expire, there is appointed time for it and it will occur to every living thing He (SWT) says: 'You will die and they too will die.' (Q.39:30) 'Every soul will taste death.' (Q.3:185)

Azarāil is the Angel that takes the souls of Mankind, Jinn and other Angels. Say: 'The Angel of Death assigned to you will terminate your life.' (Q.32:11). He is merciful when terminating the life of the believers and merciless in respect of unbelievers. He has helpers' equivalent to the numbers of those to die. Allah (SWT) says: 'Our Messenger takes his life.' Allah (SWT) ascribes taking of life to Himself. (Q.39:42). This is because He (SWT) is the original doer of everything from the point of view of Islam. The Soul may be removed through the navels, bones or the flesh.

Ajal* (Appointed Time)

May "Appointed Time" of death (Ajal) be more than one? Does one who is killed die at his appointed time?

In Sunnism (the Islamic Orthodoxy), Man has only one appointed time. 'When the Appointed Time comes, it will not be delayed for one hour nor will it be hastened'. (Q.16:61; 63:11) 'Every one that dies had completed his life-span'; so says a Hadīth related to the Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ). Thus one who is killed dies at his appointed time. Even if he was not killed he will still die at that time.

Any additional year is extra known to Allah since things may be unspecified in the records of the Angels and the guarded Tablet (al-lawh al-mahfūz) and would be specific in the knowledge of Allah. On the other hand changes do occur to what is in the knowledge of Allah. 'Allah rubs off what He wishes and confirms what He wishes. With Him is the Mother of the Books. (Q.13:39).

The rubbing of and confirmation is in the record of the Angels or in the Tablet; but in the Mother of the Books is the knowledge of Allah, which cannot be rubbed off. Therefore, the killer should be punished based on the crime.

The majority of the Mu'tazilites (Muslim rationalists) are of the opinion that man has only one life span; and the killer has denied the killed part of it. If he was not killed he would have lived longer. Killing by human being is not supposed to be taken as Death caused by Allah.

An Hadīth in point referred to is 'Righteousness extends the life-span' Conversely, one killed as a result of punishment might have exhausted his life-span. Such punishment could have been ransomed and the life-span extended. The termination of his life-span could have thus been regarded as his own making.

Ka'bi, in a minority opinion maintains that the killed is not dead because killing is act of man and death is act of God. Allah says: 'And if you die or you are killed' (Q.3:144) thus showing there is difference between the two. The killed has two appointed times; the period of death and the period of killing. If he were not killed he would live till the time of death. This is rejected because the meaning of the verse is that if you die without any cause or you are killed which means with cause, there is no difference in the two. Allah has rejected the opinion of those who said 'Had it been they were with us they would not have died nor killed' by saying "say even if you are in your homes those against whom death has been written will come to the place of the death". (Q.3:156)

Sustenance

From the opinion of Ahlu `s-Sunnah: It is what Allah bestows on living thing from which it benefits. Allah says: 'There is no moving (living) creature on the earth unless its provision is due to Allah. (Q.11:6). It is of two types: That which is apparent such as food and attires for the body. And that which is hidden meant for the hearts, such as knowledge and education. The useless one, even with ability to utilise it, is not means of sustenance, because the essence of it is the usage. Ibn Masud reports the Prophet as sayings:

The Holy Spirit inspired in my heart that no soul will die unless its means of livelihood has been exhausted. So, fear Allah and be judicious in demanding.

Delay in the sustenance of one of you should not push him to look for it through disobedience of Allah. Because verily what is with Allah should not be obtained except through obeying his commandment.

From the point of view of the Mu'tazilites, the meaning of sustenance is its possession. Thus the essence is possession not the benefit. This opinion is rejected because it is fallacious. Man can take possession of another man's sustenance, as he may not have the ability to exhaust his own sustenance.

There is nothing to be taken against the Sunnis view of sustenance being lawful, unlawful; there is no abomination in this opinion as in the opinion of the Mu'tazilites.

Martyrdom

Those who died in the Cause of Allah or in the cause of Truth, while fighting rebellions or highway robbers or while commanding good and forbidding evil are alive enjoying in Paradise in a manner known to their Lord alone.

“You must not think that those who were slain in the Cause of Allah are dead. They are alive and well provided for by their Lord.” (Q.3:169)

However only God knows the kind of life they will be living. But the perfect Barzakh life is that of Prophets, followed by those of Righteous people depending on the degree of their righteousness. This is different from worldly life but it is also likely to be physical. Also, it is in regard to those who die in the cause of Allah alone. They are known as martyrs of this world and the hereafter. The name is given to them because Allah and the Angels witness them.....

Anyone that is killed in the cause of war is called martyrs of the hereafter. He would not be washed nor would prayer be said upon him. But he that dies due to sickness, drowning in water or burnt in fire incident is martyr of the hereafter who should be adjudged as ordinary dead person by washing and offering prayer over him.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss death and ajal. Give opinions of various schools on the latter. Highlight Islamic teachings on (i) sustenance (ii) martyrdom.

3.2 Questioning in the Grave

It is reported that after the departure of men from the buried corpse, two Angels who are called Munkar and Nakir would come to him and sit him down, then life would be restored to him so that he can live averagely again between death and worldly life. Allah would also restore the sense organ and the intellect to him so that he can understand the conversation and adequately respond to questions.

At that moment, the two Angels would ask him, who is your Lord? What is your religion? And what do you have to say about the man who was raised among you {and sent to you}? The believers would say; My Lord is Allah, my religion is Islam and the man sent among and to us was Muhammad (S.A.W.). The Angels would then say to him:

"Look at your place in the hell fire which Allah has replaced with another place in the Paradise". And he will definitely see the two together. Then they would order him to sleep well. But as for a hypocrite or an unbeliever, he would not know what to give in answer! Then the torment of the grave as decreed for him will hit him. Almighty Allah said: "Allah will affirm the believers with strong statement in the worldly life and life after, and He will unguide the wrongdoer unbelievers and Allah will do whatever He wishes." (Q.14:27)

In respect of a deceased just buried, Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) was reported to have said: Seek forgiveness for your brother because he is now being interrogated. This questioning will happen to the dead even if the parts of his body get torn or have been eaten by the animals or burnt, pounded, ground and scattered in the air and Allah is capable of everything.

The question of the two angels is the affliction of the grave. It is also said that it is the stammering and hesitation in the answering.

The question is either for the mankind or jinn, but the conditions of the questions vary. There are among them whom the two Angels will mutually ask and among them whom only one of the two angels will ask; and he may be asked once or thrice. It is even said that the believer will be asked for seven days while the unbelievers will be asked for forty days. Also the questioned will be in his body and soul and not with only one without the other. The questioned also differ on the nature of their question and answer. Among them are those who would be asked about some of their belief and creeds, and among them are those who will be asked about all of them.

Ibn Abass said: They will be asked about Shahādatayn {bearing witness to the oneness of Allah and the truthfulness of the message of Prophet Muhammad}. Ikrimah also said it is about the belief in Muhammad and such questioning is particular with this ummah or every Prophet with his ummah.

Those who are exempted from questioning are those affirmed by the tradition like prophets, veracious men, martyrs, stationed armies in defence of Muslim frontiers, those who persist in reciting Sūratu 'l-Ikhlāṣ (Qur'ān: 112) during their sickness, those who die from disease of plague or pestilence, the dullard, the madman and children.

The wisdom behind the grave questioning: is to expose what the servants of Allah kept hidden in the world like faith and disbelief or obedience and disobedience. Allah will boast by the obedient servants to the angels but he will disgrace the disobedient in the presence of the angels.

The Angels of the grave questioning: it is said that they are two angels for everybody and in other opinion everybody has his own two angels called Munkar and Nakīr.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Expatiate upon the creed that the dead will be questioned by Munkar and Nakīr.

3.3 Torments/Punishment in the Grave

Both of them are attributed to the grave only because it is mostly the place of the dead. But Allah can punish or show mercy to whomever He wishes irrespective of whether he is buried or not even if he is crucified, sunk, eaten by the wild animal or burnt to ashes and scattered in the wind. Separation of parts of his body can never even prevent the two. Either the punished or the blessed will feel their conditions with both body and soul together.

The Punishment of the Grave

It is for the unbelievers and unrepentant hypocrites and sinful believers; it may be relaxed for one whose sins are hidden. Likewise, it may be erased through prayer or charity; and everyone {of such category of the believers} that are asked in their graves will not be punished {on the Day of Judgement}.

Example of the punishment in the grave: squeezing in which no one can escape except whom Allah wishes to save like the Prophets. Another example of this punishment is what was reported from Abu Sa ‘īd al-Khudrī who said: I heard the Messenger of Allah saying: Allah will empower on the unbeliever in his grave, ninety-nine dragons that will be drinking him {i.e. from his blood} and stinging him until the Day of Resurrection comes up. If such dragon blows on the earth, it will never grow green vegetables. A Dragon is like a Snake but bigger in shape.

A proof to the punishment of the grave is the saying of Almighty Allah: “get them sink and put them in hell fire” (Q.69: 30-31); and the Traditions of the Prophet (S) where he said: “be careful of urine, because the general punishment of the grave is through it”. The Prophet even passed through two grave yards and said: “Verily, two of them are being punished, and they are not punished because of a major sin; one of them did not use to cover up when urinating, but the second used to spread calumny and slander”.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

What are the bases of the doctrine that punishment awaits unbelievers in the grave? Give examples of the punishments from the Qur’ān and Hadīth.

3.4 Enjoyment/Beneficence of the Grave

It is for the believers of this Ummah, other ummahs {before it}, adults and minor. Among the favours that will accrue to the dead in the grave is the expansion of the grave, opening of a window into it from Paradise filling the grave with aromatic plants or sweet scents, and turning it to a garden among the gardens of Paradise. It is reported that Allah inspired Prophet Mūsā (AS): “Learn good things and teach it to people because I will illuminate the graves of the teachers and the learners until they will not fear because of their position”. And from ‘Umar it was reported that the Prophet (S) said: “Whoever provides light in the mosque of Allah, Allah will provide light for him in his grave”. The Messenger of Allah also said: “And the grave is either the garden among the gardens of paradise or among the pitches of the hell”. Allah says: “Do not think those who are martyred in the cause of Allah are dead but they are living. They are being given sustenance from their Lord.” (Q3:169) This is the belief of Ahlul-Sunnah (Orthodox Muslims) and majority of the Mu’tazilites (Rationalists).

The Atheists (Mulhidun) reject all these three beliefs. What is ambiguous to them is that enjoyment and pain, question and answer and anything of that nature cannot be imagined without life and feeling. There is no life after decay of the body and its end. How can one imagine that the dead will be seated upon the grave! How can there be resuscitation of life in flesh eaten by wicked animals or burnt by fire and turned into ashes that are blown off by air. This as regards the question in the grave, its punishment and enjoyment is irrational. So argue the atheists.

The reply to this ambiguity is that man is made up of body and spirit, it is not necessary that in the life after death that soul will join every part of the body. However it is enough to know its reality that spirit can turn to any of the part, it is there after that the dead will be punished or given enjoyment. Our inability to see this does not mean that it does not exist. We too may be sitting by the side of a sleeper and that sleeper may be having a great enjoyment, which we will not be feeling. When revelation came to the Prophet Muhammad, those sitting by his side did not usually know unless he gave them information about it. These illustrations thus clear the ambiguity about punishment and enjoyment in the graves.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

“Enjoyment awaits the righteous in the grave”. Elaborate on this statement removing what seems to be ambiguous to the atheists.

4.0 CONCLUSION

Life will expire, there is appointed time for it. Azarāil is the Angel that takes the souls of Mankind, Jinn and other Angels. The Sunnīs and the Mu’tazilites agree that Man has only one appointed time. They disagree on death by killing. The Sunnīs say it is still death at appointed time while the Mu’tazilites say the killer has denied the killed part of his ajal. If he were not killed he would have lived longer. Man dies only after exhausting his sustenance. Martyrs are alive and well provided for by their Lord but only God knows their kind of life. Munkar and Nakīr would subject the dead to questioning in the grave. The grave shall be like Paradise for the righteous and like pit of fire for the devilish.

5.0 SUMMARY

The theological issue relating to death, ajal (life span), martyrdom and sustenance have been with at the beginning of this unit. This is followed by detailed discussion of the doctrine of questioning of the dead in the grave. An account of the torments to be suffered by the unbeliever and the beneficence to be enjoyed by the righteous, with examples from the Qur’ān and Hadīth are given at the end of the unit.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Write notes on death, ajal, sustenance and martyrdom.
2. Give details of the questioning in the grave as taught in Islamic theology.
3. The Messenger of Allah said: “And the grave is either a garden among the gardens of paradise or a pit among the pits of hell-fire”. Discuss this statement.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

What is Resurrection? Will it be in spirit alone or in body and spirit? In what order will it be? What follows after rising up? What is Hashr and what is Hisāb? How will the Last Day look like? These eschatological issues and others like sins and consequences of dying without repentance and divergent opinions of theological schools in some of them are the issues raised and discussed with you in this unit.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- define resurrection and explain its nature
- highlight the order resurrection will take particularly in regard to Prophets
- describe the Last Day and its horror
- discuss hashr, hisāb and their significance on resurrection
- expatiate sin, repentance and consequence of dying without repentance.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Nature of Resurrection and its Definition

All the Revealed Books are agreed that there will be Resurrection; and so, it is essential to believe in it. Anyone who denies it should be adjudged an infidel (kāfir). The purpose of Resurrection is to obtain the reward for obeying the commandments of Allah and punishment for the disobedience of Him.

Meanwhile, there are three schools of thought on the nature of Resurrection.

1. The philosophers who believe in it maintain that the Resurrection will be in spirit only i.e. the return of souls to its original nature before entering the body. They reject the resurrection of the body as believed by the Muslims, the Jews and the Christians; and as the verses of the Qur'ān indicate. Allah (SWT) says: “Does man think we shall never put his bones together again? Indeed, we can remold even his fingers” (Q.75:3-1). He (the atheist) asks: “Who will give life to rotten bones! Say: “He will give them life again Who created them at first.” (Q.78:39-40).
2. Some tender - hearted philosophers assert that it will be in body and spirit. They assert that some disjointed parts of the body will be gathered together and restored to life after death and that spirit will return to the body after its separation.
3. The Islamic scholars maintain that Resurrection is in spirit and body.

In the opinion of the majority, Resurrection is the return to life after its extinction i.e. when there is no more existence of the body, nor trace nor seeing of it by the eyes. Pointer to this is Allah’s statement: “All those that live on earth are doomed to die”; and “All things shall perish except Him (His face). (Q.55:26-27).

And He Allah (SWT) says: “As We created you initially we will return you.” (Q.18:48). “As We started the first creation We will return it.” (Q.21:104).

The Sunnīs are of the opinion that the return of the body to life will be after its complete separation from life, when none of its parts will exist to be seen. As illustration they refer to divine account of Prophet Ibrahim’s practical experiment.

“Take four birds, said He; draw them to you and cut their bodies to pieces. Scatter them over the mountaintops then call them. They will come swiftly to you”. (Q.2:260).

Sometimes it does happen that the earth will not devour the bodies of people such as the prophets, the martyrs the callers to prayer, muadhdhin, the ṣūfī saints, scholars of high integrity and upholders of Qur'ānic teachings and injunctions.

Will Resurrection be with the original parts of the body? Or will the original parts of the body be replaced with another that will continue to exist from the initial life till the end of it?

There are two views. One is that body will be resurrected in the same face but with different appearance. The followers of the school of al-Ash‘arī hold on to the belief that there is resurrection but with a different body. The authentic statement is that the same body and face will be resurrected. To prove this, we can use the ability of human beings to produce video recorder showing the body, actions and utterances of man.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Define Resurrection in Islam. Give the differences of opinion regarding its nature.

3.2 Order of Resurrection among some Prophets and Hashr (the Gathering)

The first to come out of grave (i.e. which the earth will put forth) is our Prophet Muhammad (S) He is the first to be resurrected; the first to be at the Gathering place and the first to enter Paradise (al-Jannah). After him, among other Prophets is Prophet Nuh.

(A). The first person to enter Paradise after the Prophets is Abubaker (R). This has been confirmed either by the Qur'ān or the Hadīth and has been the consensus of the ‘Ulamā’ (Muslim Scholars). Allah (SWT) says:

‘The Day Allah will resurrect them generally.
And He will inform them of all their deeds
Allah recorded it and they forget’ (Q.58:96)
Allah (SWT) also says:

The Kāfirun assumed they will not be resurrected! Say; No! by my Lord you will be resurrected; and you will be informed of your deeds.

And that to Allah is very easy. (Q.64:7). He (SWT) also says:

‘And that verily Allah will resurrect all that is in the graves.’ (Q.22:7) and says: ‘He (Man) said: who will resurrect the bone after it has been decayed! Say: He who has created it in the first instance will resurrect it. He has the knowledge of every creation. (Q.36:79).’

Hashr: implies the driving together into gathering place after Resurrection from graves. This includes those that will be rewarded for their deeds like Man and Jin and those that will not be rewarded like animals and birds.

Some opinions say that it will be those who will be rewarded that will be resurrected. The aborted pregnancy, if it was after the presence of soul in it will be returned with the soul like inmate of the Paradise. If it was aborted before the presence of soul in it, it will be like other body, it will be resurrected and turned to sand.

The categories of people in the gathering place will be varied. The pious will ride while those with little good deed will walk on their foot and kāfirs will be crawling. The gathering; is authenticated by the Qur’ān, Hadīth and consensus of Muslim theologians. It is a truth; anybody who denies it is a kāfir. Allah (SWT) says:

“The Day we will gather the pious before the Lord of Mercy in group. We will drive the evil doers to the hell fire as their return.” (Q.19:86) And: “Gather together those who are wrong doers and their wives and what they were worshipping besides Allah; and guide them to the road to hell fire (Jahīm); and keep them standing; they will be asked”. (Q.37:23-24).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Write notes on order of resurrection and hashr.

3.3 Last Day and Its Horror

The Last Day is from the period of gathering to eternity or till when the inmate of Paradise will enter their abode and those whose abode will be hell will enter it. It is called the Last Day because it is connected with the last days of existence.

It is called the Day of Qiyāmah because of the Resurrection of the people from their graves and their standing before their Creator. The period is to provide proof either in favour or against.

The horror of Qiyāmah: The suckling mother shall forsake her infant; and (on that day) each man will forsake his brother and his mother and his father. For each one of them will on that day have much enough concern of his own. On that day there shall be beaming faces, smiling and joyful; and on that day there shall be faces covered with dust and veiled with darkness. (Q.80:34-32).

Bodies will produce sweats whose odour will be worse than the dead animal. This will be according to the deeds of Man, the questionings of the Angel of the people about their deeds and their short comings, and the witnessing of tongues, hands, feet, hear, eyes and the skin; and the heavens and earth and the night and day and the pronouncement of the protector (Angels); and the receiving of the result; and the scale and Şirāt. The Glorious Qur'ān contains abundance of references to these.

On the length of standing there, nobody knows the actual period. Some say one thousand years. Others say fifty thousand years. “On a day whose length is one thousand years on your calculation”: says Qur'ān 32:5. Allah (SWT) also says: “The Angels and Jibril will go to him in a Day whose calculation will be equal to fifty thousand years”. (Q.70:4).

There will be differences based on the differences in the deeds of the people. It will be extended for the Kāfirs and in between for the obstinate. It will lessen for the pious. Nothing of this will happen to the Prophets and Saints and the Righteous. This is based on the saying of Allah (SWT): “The great horror will not affect them; the Angels will welcome them. This is your Day that you have been promised.”

It's Time. The knowledge of the time is with Allah. However, the Last Day has many minor signs, such as multitude of sins and evil.

Among its major signs are the coming out of anti-Christ and the descending of Prophet Isa; the coming out of Gog and Magog and the coming out of a Beast; and the rising of the sun from its West. The taking off of the Qur'ān from the hearts, and so on to all what the trustworthy people reported in the Ḥadīth.

All these about the Last Day and its horror and signs are truth confirmed by the Qur'ān and the Ḥadīth and the consensus of the scholars. It is compulsory to have faith in them. Anyone who denies them is a kāfir Allah says:

On that day when the spirit and the Angels stand up in their ranks; They shall not speak except him who shall receive the sanction of the Merciful and declare what is right. (Q. 78:38).

He (SWT) says: And every soul comes with its driver and witness (Q.50:21). The day when some faces will be brightened and others will be darkened.

The sun will be closed to the creatures on the Day of Resurrection up to a mile. The people will be soaked in their sweats according to their deeds. Among them are those who will be soaked to their ankles, some to their knees and some to their mouth, some among them will drown completely. So says a Tradition related to the Prophet Muhammad.

Allah says:

Men, fear your Lord and fear the day when no parent shall avail his child; nor any child his parents. Allah's promise is surely true. Let the life of this world not deceive you; nor let the deceiver trick you concerning Allah.

The Last Day and the Horror of the gathering is true. May the Merciful God makes it easy for us. Among the means of relief from it is the obedience of Allah; fulfillment of responsibility; assisting those in hardship, feeding the hungry people and accommodating the travelers.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give a vivid portray of the Last Day and its horror.

3.4 Al-Hisāb (Accountability)

Literarily al-Hisāb is to make account. Technically it is the summoning by Allah His creature on the Day of Resurrection to render account of his deeds, good or bad, words or actions after receiving the records.

He will question them on their deeds by talking to them naturally without letter or sound, in a manner which will allow them to hear it or with sound and letters as He may wish. The accountability can be by the Angels only; and it can be by Allah and the Angels at the same time.

The infallible Men (Prophets, Saints and Holy Men) will not render any account. So also are a 70.000 people that will enter paradise without rendering any account as contained in a Prophetic Hadīth.

Allah will give the accounts of all at once. The accounts of one will not disturb Him from the other. It will be easy for one and hard for another. For some it will be open or public while for others it will be through the mercy of Allah or through his justice; these will depend on the nature of deeds. The easiest account is the one between Allah and His worshipper secretly that no other person knows (anything about him).

The wisdom behind this belief in accountability is to show the degree of honour of the pious and the extent of decrease of the wrong doers and to encourage people to do good. It also aims at serving as strong warning against evils.

There are references to this creed in the Qur'ān, Hadīth and the consensus of scholars. Allah (SWT) says: "As for him who will be given his book in his right hand, he shall receive easy reckoning; and he that is given his book to his back, he will invoke for his destruction (Q.84:7-11). He (SWT) says: Those are the recipients of the share of what they have done. Swift is the reckoning of Allah Q.3:199).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the Islamic eschatological tenet of al-Hisāb.

3.6 Sins, Repentance and Consequence of Dying Without Repentance

According to the best of the opinions, Sins are divided into two, minor and major. This is the opinion of Ahlu's-Sunnah (Orthodox Majority) and Mu'tazilites (Rationalist Minority). The major sins are not exhaustible. Among the signs to know them are:

- (a) Attraction of capital punishment
- (b) Incurring of fixed punishment
- (c) Cursing of perpetrator of such sin

(d) Describing it as wrong doing.

The most grievous sin is associating of partner with Allah, murder, magic, eating of wealth of the orphan, devouring of usury, running away from battle front, slandering of a faithful woman. Others among the major sins are lying about the Prophet (SAW), committing of adultery, disobeying of one's parents and false witness. Others are arrogance or haughtiness in the disobedience of Allah; it is a destructive quality even if the person is religious. All other sins outside these are minor sins without limiting its number. Minor sin turns major on the following basis:

1. Persistence on it (2) Underrating of it, deriving joy in committing it and being proud of it. (3) Encouraging people to emulate it.

Seeking Forgiveness from Allah can only be by repentance. "Allah will not forgive any association with Him. He can forgive any sin besides that for whom He likes.

The minor sins are atoned for by:

1. Moving away from major sins. Allah says: if you avoid the grave sins you are forbidden we shall pardon your evil deeds and admit you to an honourable place (paradise). Every act of worship attracts atonement for sins.

Repentance: Literarily, it means to turn or to come back. Technically, it means the following conditions: (1) To avoid sins (2) To show remorse (3) Having intention not to commit such sin again in life. (4) To return property to its owner or to seek forgiveness from him. If this is not possible, he should increase good deeds for the pleasure of Allah possibly Allah may have mercy on him in the Day of Resurrection. (5) It must be done before death. (6) It is compulsory for the sinner to repent as early as possible without delaying it. Delay of repentance is also a sin in itself.

Pointer to this is Allah's word: "Repent for your sin before Allah generally O you believers. And "O you believers turn to Allah in true repentance" (Q.66:8). "Tell the disbelievers if you avoid sins you are to be forgiven all what you have done in the past" (Q.8:28).

For the minor sins there is acceptance of tawbah-repentance for Allah says.

He is the one accepting the repentance from His servants (Q.9:104).

If the sinner repeats the sin, will his tawbah be accepted? The Sunnīs assert that this has not violated his repentance, but needs to renew his tawbah for committing another sin. But from the point of view of Mu'tazilites (Rationalists) they maintain that his tawbah has been violated, because among the conditions of tawbah is determination not to return to sin again.

Dying without repentance from grave sins: The Sunnīs say that the affairs of anyone who committed grave sins without repentance before his death, his affair depends on the decision of Allah-his Lord. If Allah wishes He forgives him and admits him into Paradise. If He wishes he punishes him without admitting him everlasting in the hell. Allah says: “Allah will not forgive those who associate other gods with Him, but He will forgive who He wills for other sins”; (Q. 4: 48; 116) “and whoever does an atom’s weight of good shall see it and whoever does an atom’s weight of evil shall see it also” (Q.99:7-8).

The rationalist Mu'tazilites say such person who committed grave sin without repentance till he died will be perpetual in Hell. On the other hand, the Sunnīs are of the opinion that anyone who died with no repentance from his sins the decision of his affairs depends on Allah (his Lord).

It is not compulsory to punish believers for committing some sins among the major sins because punishment for such leads to Kufr as can be seen from the view of the Ash'arite group, which is contrary to the Ma'turidite group, who say that it is compulsory to punish some believers who commit sin.

It is not compulsory to punish some believers who committed major sins though avoidance of it is very important. But in the case of reward in the Day of Resurrection the evil will be rewarded in the same measure.

Allah says: “One who comes with evil to him will not be rewarded unless with equal measure. But the good deed is accepted for the servant in manifold. Or in another case the reward will be multiplied by Allah till He is pleased. Allah says: He that does good deeds shall be repaid in tenfold (Q.6:160); He says: “He Allah multiplies for whom He likes” (Q.2:261).

4.0 CONCLUSION

Belief in Resurrection is an essential article of faith in Islam. Its purpose is to obtain reward for obeying commandment of God or punishment for the disobedience of Him. While the rationalists maintain that the Resurrection will be in spirit only, the majority opinion in Islam teaches that it will be in spirit and body.

There will be hashr on resurrection, which implies the driving together of men, jinn, animals and birds into gathering place after Resurrection from graves. Ba'th and Qiyāmah are two technical terms interchangeably used in the Islamic eschatology implying Resurrection and Raising up.

Qiyāmah will be horrible for the unbelievers while nothing of the horror will happen to the Prophets and Saints and the Righteous.

It is also a requirement to believe in the ashrātu `s-Sa'ah i.e. indications that the Hour is imminent and that there will be accountability (hisāb).

Sins are divided into major and minor. They are both pardonable by repentance. The rationalist Mu'tazilites say such person who committed grave sin without repentance till he died will be perpetual in Hell. On the other hand, the Sunnis are of the opinion that anyone who died with no repentance from his sins the decision of his affairs depends on Allah (his Lord).

5.0 SUMMARY

At the onset, this unit explains the meaning of Resurrection gives the opinion of three schools of thought on its nature and states its purpose. It then gives a hint of the order it would follow and presents the Hashr event in detail. It enumerates ashratu `s-Sa'ah and gives a vivid picture of the horror Qiyāmah would be for the unbelievers. It mentions accountability and describes it. It concludes with a discussion of sin, repentance and consequences of the unrepentant sinner.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. What is the Islamic concept of Resurrection? Give the various forms it will take from the point of view of the various schools of thought.
2. Paint a vivid picture of the horror of al-Qiyamah. Buttress your points with Quotations from the Holy Qur'ān.

3. Discuss the polemics on sin, repentance and consequences of grave sin.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

You would have one time or the other read or listen to Muslim scholars discussing events that will take place after death. Some of such issues are those presented to you in the first and second units of this module. In this unit we are going to present the remaining issues providing their bases from Islamic sacred sources where available.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- explain Islamic concept of what will happen to Record of Deeds in the Here-after
- discuss the nature and significance of Weight and Measurement
- explain the concept of Aş- Şirāt (the Bridge), al-Hawd (the Tank) and ash-Shafā'ah (Intercession)
- describe Al-Jannat wa `n-Nār (Paradise and Hell).

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Record of Deeds

This record refers to the book in which the Angels have written the deeds of a servant, speeches, intentions and actions of various parts of his body in this world. Every believer will receive this record in al-Qiyāmah (the Day of Resurrection) as explained in the sacred sources of the Muslim creed, the Qur'ān and Hadīth.

According to a Prophetic Tradition:

Every servant of God has a daily record of his deeds. If a believer's record is devoid of Istighfār (seeking forgiveness), it will be folded dark black. When it contains Istighfār it will be folded in pure light.

Furthermore, it is clear from the Qur'ān and Hadīth that all people in general will receive their record of deeds physically except the Prophets, the Angels and those who will enter Paradise without reckoning.

It is reported that each person will be called upon to receive the record which will be flown from Allah's treasure and stick to his neck. Then the Angels will collect them from their necks and give them in their hands. Those who obey the commandment of Allah will have their records with their right hands. The disbelievers will have theirs with their left hands. The wrong doers will collect theirs through different modes.

“He who is given his book in his right hand will say Ah here! Read my book” (Q.69:19) He who is given his book in his left hand will say: “Would that my book was not given me! Would that I know nothing of my account!” (Q.69:25-26) “ but he that is given his book in his right hand shall have a lenient reckoning and go back to his people rejoicing. But he that is given his book from behind his back shall call down destruction on himself and burn in the fire of Hell” (Q.84:7-13).

“The works of each man we have bound on his neck on the Day of Resurrection, we shall confront him with a book spread wide open (saying); Read your book” (Q.17:13).

The reading of the books of records is also confirmed. Everyone will read his book even if he is unlettered. When the Mūmin reads his Record his face will be bright out of joy. When the Kāfir reads his Record his face will be blackened out of sadness.

Since this record of deed is confirmed by the Qur'ān and Hadīth and consensus opinions of scholars; it is compulsory to believe it and anyone who denies is a kāfir. Even though, the whole affairs and its workability are with Allah.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the concept of Record of Deeds from the point of view of Muslim eschatology.

3.2 Weight and Measurement

That concrete weight (al-Wazn) will be used to measure the deeds of mankind on the Day of Resurrection is real contrary to the views of Mu'tazilites (Rationalists), which say it only means Justice of Allah. It is compulsory to have faith in it because it is confirmed by the Holy Qur'ān, the Hadīth and the consensus of the opinion of the scholars.

“And weight on that Day is real”. “And the weight of Justice will be placed forth on the Day of Resurrection” (Q.41:28).

“Those whose (good) deeds are weighty on that Day will be successful; and those whose (good) deeds are not weighty will be the losers” (Q.7:8-9).

For the Prophets, the Angels and those who will enter Paradise without reckoning there will be no weight for them.

The deeds of the kāfirs will be weighed; and they will receive punishment. On the other hand Allah says: “On the Day of Resurrection, we shall not give any weight to them” (Q.18:105). This is referring purposely to measuring the deeds of kāfirs, such as goodness to the family or kinship which will be weighed to compensate for their evil deeds.

Belief in the measurement is put in place so that every servant of Allah will be mindful of what is for him and what is against him in goodness and evil.

On resurrection, the Measurement will also make the servant see his deeds clearly from himself. It is also a sort of examination for the servant to see whether he will have faith in it even without seeing it in the present world. The similarity of the worldly events is enough for us to believe in it. We leave the truth about it to Almighty Allah. Anyone who denies it is a kāfir.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Discuss the significance of Measurement of Man's Record (Wazn) that will take place on Resurrection.

3.3 Aş-Şirāt (Crossing the Bridge)

The literal meaning of aş- Şirāt is path. In the Islamic eschatology it is a bridge placed on Hell. Everybody first and last will pass over it. As for the unbelievers (Kufār), they will not be able to cross and there will be nothing for them other than to fall into its pit. Based on a report, those that will pass over it will include the Prophets, the Truthful and those who will enter paradise with no rendering of any account; all of them will experience no hardship.

The Şirāt has been described as thinner than a single hair and sharper than sword. Angels are standing by its two sides. It is like a magnet and barbed-wire more dreaded than those in this world from the beginning to the end. It is flexible; could be narrow and wide depending on the person's deeds.

While the Sunnīs (Orthodox Muslim) confirm it, the Mu'tazilites maintains that it is only figurative. Some interpreted it to mean the Barzakh stage (the period between death and Resurrection). Obviously the existence of it as it was described will not make it possible for anyone to crossover it easily. It may be the path or a road leading to Paradise or Hell. The Sunni Muslims say its existence as described is not unacceptable to the intellect. It is compulsory to have faith in it and work in preparation for crossing over it. Allah says: "Move forward over the Şirāt." The Prophet said: "The Şirāt Bridge will be placed over the Hell fire; I and my Ummah will be the first to cross it." It is compulsory to believe in the existence of Şirāt as mentioned in the Holy Qur'ān leaving the best knowledge about it to Almighty Allah.

The barbed-wire by the two sides of the Şirāt is long enough to hook any one crossing over it.

It is reported that among those who will pass safely on it are the righteous Mūmins; those that are going to be destroyed on it by falling into the abyss of fire and remaining there forever are the disbelievers and hypocrites; and those who will be living there for a while before and then being rescued are the sinners among the Mūmin. And those that will be salvaged from the hell are those whose books of righteous deed are weighty. Some will pass over it in the twinkling of an eye; some like lightening; some like wind, and others like a flying bird and others like grasshoppers. Others are those who will walk and those who will crawl. Pointer to this is the injunction of Allah:

“Everyone of you will pass over it; this is a concluded issue with your Lord. Then We will save those who are pious and leave the disobedient in it on their knees” (Q.19:71-72).

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Give details of the belief that crossing over aş-Şirāt is verity in the Muslim eschatology.

3.4 Al-Hawḍ (The Tank or the Basin)

It is reported in Hadīths of Bukhārī and Muslim that the Prophet said: “My tank is a month’s journey and its surrounding is also a month’s journey. The colour of it is whiter than milk. Its odour is more fragrant than aromatic-musk. Its cups are more than number of stars in the sky. Anyone who drinks from it will not feel thirsty forever.”

There are different reports on the wideness of the Tank, its quantity and number as there are different reports regarding its time of existence. The majority’s opinion is that it will be found before passing the Şirāt for people to drink from it after coming out from the grave. Others say that it will be after passing the Şirāt, because its water is from al-Kawthar for the people to drink from it when they will be stopped after Şirāt to revenge among themselves. The Tafsīr of Qurtubī states that the tanks are two. The point however, is that every Prophet will have a tank for his community from which those who fulfill their religious obligations and are righteous will drink.

Those who will be sent away and denied drinking from it are the Kāfirs, the disobedient and those who do not believe in its existence. The Mu’tazilites reject the view about the description of the Tank. They say it only implied something of the pleasure of Allah which He gives to whomever He wishes among his servants. This is contrary to the text of the Hadīth.

The truth is that the Tank or the Spring is real. To believe there is Tank of Spring for the best of the Prophets is compulsory as it is reported in the sacred texts.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Summarise belief in the existence of Hawḍ for the Prophet in the hereafter.

3.5 Al-Shafā'ah (Intercession)

Al-Shafā'ah literally means intercession or request for goodness from somebody for somebody. The intercession of the Almighty Allah connotes pardon. Verily he will pardon anyone that says Lā ilāha ilallah “There is no deity worthy of worship except Allah” and believe in the message of the Prophet that was sent to him even if he did not do any righteous deeds. Allah will shower His mercy on him by not putting him in the Hell fire without intercession of anybody. He Allah (SWT) says: ‘He punishes whoever He wishes and forgives whoever He wishes’ (Q. 2:284).

The Prophet (ﷺ) is the Intercessor to be accepted before any others among the Prophets, Messengers, Angels who are close to Allah as has been reported from the Bukhārī and Muslim in their collections of Hadīth: ‘I am the first intercessor whose intercession will be firstly accepted’.

There are five kinds of intercession:

1. The intercession during the judgement to relieve the entire creatures, believers and the disbelievers, for the length of standing on qiyāmah and its horror. This is especially for the Prophet (ﷺ). It is called major intercession. It is the first praise worthy position; the remaining ones will be in respect of those who will be inmates of Paradise and the inmates of the Hell. Allah (SWT) says: ‘Verily your Lord will soon put you in the praise - worthy position’ (Q.17:79).
It was reported that when the situation will be unbearable in the standing place and the people will be longing to be dispatched, even if to the hell fire. They will be inspired that the Prophets are intermediaries between men and the Creator. They will then go at this time to the Prophets from Adam to Isa. They will request them to intercede from the horrible situation. Every one of the Prophets will give excuse until when they will come to Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) and request for his intercession. He will say I am for it. He will then intercede and his intercession will be accepted. Then the door will be opened for other intercession.

2. Intercession for a group of people who will enter Paradise when they are rendering account of their deeds. This is especially for the Prophet (ﷺ) too.
3. Intercession for the elevated level.
No disagreement among the Scholars of Islamic Theology on those three types of Intercession.
4. The intercession for those who commit major sins that deserved to enter Hell before entering into it.
5. The intercession for the removal of those who commit major sins from hell fire.

These last two are rejected by the Mu'tazilites and the Kharijites who believe that anybody who commits major sins will live in hell fire perpetually. The Ash'ariyyah, the Maturidiyyah and some among the Rafidites confirmed this.

Opponents of the intercession buttress their stands with the saying of Allah. The intercession of the intercessors would not benefit them (Q.74:48); and 'the Day when no soul will be able to do anything for another soul. Allah will then reign supreme.' and 'Fear the day when no soul will benefit another soul; and Intercession will not be accepted from him. (Q.2:48). And 'We don't have any intercessor and not a closed friend' (Q.26:100-101). And 'Nor any ransom will be taken for it and Intercession will not benefit it. (Q.2:48,123).

The reply to these is that the general meaning of these verses refers to the specific intercessions, for increase in rewards. This will be specifically for the believers based on the Hadīth. 'My Intercession will be for those who commit major sins among my community'.

Meanwhile there are references in the Holy Qur'ān confirming Intercession.

Allah says: "On that day intercession will not benefit except from one who Allah has given permission and pleased with his word" (20:109). He (SWT) also says: "There is no any Intercessor except after this permission" (Q.2:255).

When the Qur'ān contains many verses on a particular topic, part of it negating it and part of it confirming it is not possible that what Qur'ān negates and what it affirms are the same, so that there will be no contradiction. This is not possible. It will therefore be clear that negated Intercession is not the affirmed one. The negated intercession is the intercession of the unbelievers while the affirmed intercession is the intercession of the sinners among the Ummah. The Prophet said:

“My Intercession will be for those who committed major sins among my Ummah”.

Allah (SWT) says: “Seek forgiveness for your sin and for the believers, males and females” (Q.47:19). The one who commits major sin is a believer. The seeking of Prophetic forgiveness for him will be accepted based on the word of Allah: ‘And later your Lord will give you what will please you’ (Q.93:5). And as for the Hadīth which says: ‘Those who committed major sins among my community will not have access to my Intercession’ it has been agreed upon that it was fabricated; and that if it is authentic it is in respect of those who renounced Islam among them.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Clarify the Muslim eschatological concept of shafā‘ah (Intercession).

3.6 Al-Jannat wa `n-Nār (Paradise and Hell)

Al-Jannah literally means garden. As a theological term, it connotes the abode of rewards, which Allah preserved for the believers.

Ibn Abbas and his group say that it is seven abodes of paradise. The highest of it and best is Firdaws, followed by Naim, Ma’wā, Khuld, ‘Adn, Dār ul-salām and the last one is Dāru `l-Ijlāl.

Majority agree that it is four. Naim and Ma’wā are for him who fears his Lord. They are below ‘Adn and Firdaws.

Others say there is only one Paradise. The names are just testifying to it to confirm its meaning and place above the seven heavens and under the ‘Arsh. The important thing however is to have faith that there is an abode which Allah preserved for the pious called Paradise. Therein are what eyes have not seen and what ears have not heard of and its thinking has not occurred in the heart. Therein are what will interest the souls, and what the eyes will enjoy. Whether it is only one or many the knowledge of it is with Allah.

An - Nār (Hell): An-Nār literally means a smooth body which burns. In the Muslim Eschatology, it means Hell, the Abode of Punishment preserved for the sinners which is called Jahannam. It has seven gates every one of which has its own portion. There is a gate in it for Muslim culprit, gate for the Jews, gate for the Christians, gate for the Sabians, gate for the Zoroastrians, one for the idol worshipers and one for the hypocrites. Hell is of seven grades or more or less. The knowledge of its nature and its place is left to Almighty Allah.

Existence of Paradise and Hell: The opinion of generality of Muslims is that Paradise and Hell exist and have been created (by Allah) with references to:

1. The story of Adam and Hawa. They were made to live in the Paradise and expelled from it, because they ate the fruit from the forbidden tree. The description of the Paradise where Adam lived is the description of Paradise of Daru'l-Akhirah. Allah says:

‘Here you shall not be hungry nor be naked;
You shall not thirst nor feel the scorching heat.’

He says: (reaching there) they shall feel neither the scorching heat nor the biting cold. As this has confirmed the existence of paradise then it points to the existence of hell too.

Allah says about Paradise “it is preserved for the pious.” He says about hell that: ‘It is preserved for the disbelievers’.

The Mu‘tazilites and Kharijites denied their existence. They said that both of them will exist in the Day of Reward (for the following reasons).

1. Because Allah says: it is larger than the heavens and earth. If it already exists, is it in the heavens or on the earth?
2. Their existence is for reward and punishment. Reward and punishment have not started now; therefore their existence now is frivolous.
3. Allah says: “Its food is forever” if it is already existing actually, it will be annihilated because Allah says: “Everything will perish except His mighty face. Since it is not possible for its food to be perished, then it will not exist unless on the Day of resurrection.

Response to the second assertion is that.

The rationale behind its existence is known to Almighty Allah. Not all the existing things are rationally understood. Since injunctions from the Qur’ān and Ḥadīth have pointed to their existence, it is a matter of compulsion to have faith in them.

Everlastingness of Paradise and Hell: There is consensus of opinion on the everlastingness of the two (Paradise and Hell) and all what are therein.

Some theologians however have contrary view saying that both of them will perish. The evidence put forward by them is Allah's word about the dwellers of Hell.

“They shall abide as long as the heavens and the earth endure unless your Lord ordained otherwise. Your Lord accomplishes what He wills.” And His sayings about dwellers of Paradise,
 “As for the blessed, they shall dwell in Paradise as long as the heavens and the earth endure, unless your Lord ordains otherwise; and (theirs) shall be an unfailing gift.”

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE

Clarify the belief that the existence of al-Jannah and an-Nar is verity. Give the vagrant views where they exist.

4.0 CONCLUSION

Since the concept of Record of Deed is confirmed by the Qur'ān and Hadīth and consensus opinions of scholars; it is compulsory to believe in it and anyone who denies is a kāfir. Because the Holy Qur'ān, and Hadīth mention it, the majority opinion except the Mu'tazilites, also maintains that concrete weight will be used to measure Deeds of Man on Resurrection. So also is crossing over aş-Şirāt, as mentioned in the Holy Qur'ān leaving the best knowledge about it to Almighty Allah, existence of Tank of Spring for the Prophet for which only his faithful adherents will have access and shafā'ah (the intercession that Allah will grant His chosen ones on the Last Day. It should also be believed that rewards of the righteous shall be in Paradise; and the punishments of the unbelievers shall be in the hell- fire.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit opened with an account of the concept of Record of Deeds in the Muslim eschatology. It then established that concrete weight will be used to measure the Records; and that crossing over aş-Şirāt is verity; the existence of Hawd (a tank of spring) for the Prophet Muhammad and that Allah will grant intercession for His chosen ones on the Last Day. A discussion of Paradise and Hell constitutes the last section of the unit.

6.0 TUTOR-MARKED ASSIGNMENT

1. Write notes on (i) Wazn (ii) Şirāṭ (iii) Hawḍ
2. Comment fully on the *Qur'ān*ic verse: "On that day intercession will not benefit except from one who Allah has given permission and pleased with his word" (20:109).
3. Examine the concept of Paradise and Hell in details. Point out the differences of opinions where they exist.
