

the structure of the individual. Such outward expression of inherited traits is known as _____.
Genotype

[PED121] The timing and the sequence of the unfolding of _____ are pre-wired genetically.
Development

[PED121] Which of the alternatives describes brain interpretation of sensory experiences.
Perception

[PED121] Human growth does not describe increases in the magnitude of _____.
body parts

[PED121] Pattern of human growth is not characterised by _____.
Directions

[PED121] One of the alternatives direct the neural and hormonal activities that propel ngrowth.
Chromosome

[PED121] The father of cognitive developmental theory is _____.
Piaget

[PED121] Groups of cells organise to form different structures excluded the _____.
chromosomes

[PED121] A dominant trait is only dominant when in a _____ condition.
heterozygous

[PED121] Which one of the following methods is more natural in scope?
observation