

growing self behaviour

[PED422] ----- is concerned with how parents influence children to develop socially appropriate modes of thoughts, feeling, and behaviour
Socialisation

[PED422] Behaviour is any activity that can be ----- all of the above

[PED422] ----- proposed that once the phallic stage is over, at about five, there is a long, quiet period of psychological development
Freud

[PED422] Learning theorists' belief is that ----- behaviour has to be acquired social

[PED422] According to psychoanalysts, the development process consists of a series of fixed stages which every child passed in sequential order. Personality progresses from the ----- stage to the anal oral

[PED422] The concept of fixation was ----- way of explaining how important psychological characteristics Freuds

[PED422] a process which necessitates contact with other people is refer to ----- socialisation

[PED422] The position of the psychoanalysts is that much of the adults behaviour owes its form and intensity to certain ----- drives instinctive

[PED422] behaviour ----- is behaviour that digresses from what the majority approves of all of the above

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net