

One of these early ethologists began the study of behaviour of a new species through ethogram
Oskar Heinroth

The study of human communication is referred to as Anthroposemiotics

Maslow separated self-actualization into the following needs except
All of the options

Emotion is a state of feeling that have the following components except Psychological

The study of sign or animal communication is known as Zoosemiotics

The following are forms of communication in animals except
All of the options

The motivation theory which implies that behaviours are caused by a corresponding lacking in the internal environment is the
Hull's Drive-Reduction

The animal that do not develop long-term depression but manage to find a way to handle any unpleasant situation in spite of their past experience is
Dog

Learning which occurs by ignoring persistent or useless stimuli is referred to as Habituation

The need described by the appreciation of symmetry and beauty is called Aesthetic