

stomodaeum

[BIO407] The mandibulate mouth type of an insect is used for biting and chewing

[BIO407] The maxilla of an insect has a single articulation with the head and this is by means of a based Cardo with a flat plate known as Stipe

[BIO407] The hindgut of an insect is called protodaeum

[BIO407] The haustellate mouth type of an insect is used for sucking

[BIO407] Which of these is not true of the functions of the maxilla of an insect?
non of these options

[BIO407] Which of these is also called the second maxilla in insects?
Labium

[BIO407] The labium forms the _____ laterl limb

[BIO407] Which of these is true of the mandibles of an insect?
All of the options

[BIO407] The midgut of an insect is called mesenteron

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net