

Fasciola is an example of _____ Liver fluke

The process through which segments of cestodes continually keep increasing in size away from the cephalic region is known as _____ Strobilization

Arthropods that carry out _____ are mostly parasites.
Incomplete metamorphosis

The study of the pattern of disease and its distribution within a population is known as _____ Epidemiology

Hirudo medicinalis is known for its use in _____ Medicine for removing blood from patients

Which of these is important in public health management and utilizes statistical tools?
Population density

Common symptoms of an individual suffering from Acantocephala infection include all these except:
Diarrhoea

Another name for trematodes are _____ Flukes

The key determinants of parasite transmission in causing diseases are the host, environment and _____ Agent

The acronym DALY means _____
Disability adjusted life years