

records are normally stored in ascending order of key field

[CIT213] The following are components of telecommunication systems except _____ Internet

[CIT213] A disk drive is an example of _____ Sequential access device

[CIT213] _____ is a collection of records that are relatively permanent records that are updated periodically.
Master File

[CIT213] In telecommunication _____ component controls input and output activities and manages other functions of the communication network.
Communication Software

[CIT213] Another name for Direct File Organization is _____ Random File Organization

[CIT213] Storage devices can be classified generally as _____ Sequential or Random access

[CIT213] _____ is the method of data processing in which data are processed after being collected in groups after a period of time.
Batch Processing

[CIT213] _____ refers to a collection of compatible hardware and software required to exchange information from one location to another.
Telecommunication

[CIT213] Seat Reservation in flight operations is an example of _____ Real Time Systems