

The main objective of _____ is to assuage the likelihood of vengeance with adequate punishment restorative justice

In restorative justice, crime is understood as harm to _____ individuals and communities

The modern usage of the term Restorative Justice was introduced by _____ in 1977
Albert Eglash

In 1996 and 1997, scholars in North America and Europe met in _____ and _____ to discuss emerging restorative practice theory
United States, Belgium

The _____ endorsed the concept of restorative justice through victim-offender mediation in 1999
Council of Europe

A retributive system punishes severe crimes harsher than _____ minor crimes

Elements of innovative restorative justice practice include the following except _____ Mala phobia

One of the challenges to evaluation of the effectiveness of restorative justice processes is _____ variability of restorative programme

One of the following is possible in restorative justice Reconciliation

Restorative justice as different from criminal justice measures how much harm is _____ repaired or prevented