

Which of the conditions listed below can make a problem impractical to research on? I. Ethical considerations II. Excessive data III. Fund I, II & III

The specific objectives or elements whose characteristics are to be described and about which data will be collected are referred to as _____
Unit of analysis

Which of the following terms serves as a key step in refining a research problem?
Concept development

Which of the following statements about research studies is TRUE?
A hypothesis must be judged on criterion of its usefulness

The elements of theories referred to as building blocks that forms the explanatory statements of a theory are _____
Concepts

What is the next step that follows clear definition of key concept in a research study?
Review of literature

Which of the following occurs as a part of formulating a research programme when there is existing theory to rely on?
Concept development

Which of the following requirements is expected of a researcher to effectively familiarize himself with the current state of knowledge in his chosen area of study?
Review of related literature

A conjecture or a guess at the solution to a research problem is called _____ Hypothesis

Which of the following statements is a major purpose of research in exploratory studies?
Identifying and defining concept