

population at risk for a limited time period, usually expressed as a percentage is called Attack rate

[EHS505] The following are concerned with epidemiology except Position

[EHS505] The following terminologies are used for the determination of level and type of exposure assessment except
All of the options

[EHS505] One of the causative agents of soil pollution are:
Discharge of industrial waste into the soil

[EHS505] Organic wastes contain the following except Zinc

[EHS505] Typical ionizing subatomic particles found in radioactive decay include
All of the options

[EHS505] Examples of ionizing radiation include
Gamma or X-rays

[EHS505] The amount of a chemical that is absorbed or deposited in the body of an exposed organism is called Applied dose

[EHS505] The most common chemicals involved in causing soil pollution are:
All of the options

[EHS505] One of the effects of soil pollution in agriculture is Reduced soil fertility

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net