

must be satisfied by the grammar of all languages. The core of the two parts of the condition is -----.
the Aspect of the Knowledge of Language

[ENG222] The capacity for acquiring and using a language, is a property that distinguishes human beings from -----.
all other species

[ENG222] The two fundamental issues that underscore the assessment of English sentences are whether they are -----.
grammatical and acceptable

[ENG222] It is often felt, by both philosophers and linguists, that reliance on native-speakers intuitions is an extremely suspect part of -----.
Chomskyan theory

[ENG222] One good way of investigating linguistic knowledge is to ask the native speaker for judgments about the sentences of his language: not directly but indirectly. These judgments are called -----.
intuitions

[ENG222] The study of linguistic performance is actually concerned with the principles which -----.
govern language use

[ENG222] It is a fact that native speakers of English have at their disposal a vast amount of fairly -----.
uncontroversially linguistic knowledge

[ENG222] The innate linguistic knowledge that a native speaker has that enables him/her to produce and understand utterances in his/her language is called ----- Linguistic competence

[ENG222] Most linguistic theorists attempt to explain the ----- in terms of whatever general learning theory they espouse.
acquisition of language

[ENG222] Linguistic competence refers to the speaker's ----- knowledge of language

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net