

1. The marine environment is rich in all of the following except ____.
acidity (ANS)
2. ____ is the tissue for transport in mammals.
blood (ANS)
3. The excretory organs of Crustaceans are located in the ____ region.
head (ANS)
4. The following are true of polyploids except ____.
Meiosis is not regular in polyploids (ANS)
5. Which of the following can convert glucose to polysaccharide glycogen? I. Muscle, II. liver, III. adipose cells
I and II (ANS)
6. ____ made up the excretory system of earthworms.
nephridia (ANS)
7. A selectively permeable membrane allows ____ to pass through it.
water (ANS)
8. Animals whose body fluid concentration is exactly the same as that of their immediate environment are referred to as ____.
osmoconformers (ANS)
9. The excretory organs of the annelids is known as
nephridia (ANS)
10. The ____ is/are the earliest group of animals that colonized the terrestrial environment. I. ctenophores, II. arthropods, III. vertebrates.
II and III (ANS)

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net