An _____ is just a signal sent to the CPU indicating that an event 'hat occurred.
Interrupt

A_____ is the flowchart that outlines the general flow and major segments of a program.
Modular programming flowchart

The _____ should consist of all written descriptions and explanations of the program and other materials associated with the development.
documentation

_____ is a scientific-oriented and problem-oriented language.
Fortran

The advantages of Machine Language (ML) can be summarised as follows except Totally machine-dependent _____ represents the information requirements of users of the program.

Output

The aims that guide the design of a good computer program include the following except Exportability

_____are those that perform specific computational tasks or data processing to solve user's problems Application program

A _____ is a logical representation of an algorithm using third generation language (3 GL) style Pseudocode

In using a _____ language, you have to specify how to solve a problem by indicating the procedures the computer will follow step by step.
procedure-oriented