1. Each client-server transaction consists of all of the following mentioned main parts EXCEPT?

End information

2. A network-layer Internet protocol that provides message packets to report errors and other information regarding IP packet processing back to the source is called

ICMP

3. All of the following are Advantages of bridges over routers except

Bridges need customized software to be operated

4. What are the two main types of bridges?

Transparent and Source-route bridges

5. Which of the following options is NOT a hardware requirement for connection sharing using Microsoft ICS with two computers?

None of the options

6. All of the following options are levels of ISPS EXCEPT?

Continental Internet Service Providers

7. Which of the following communication protocol is used by Internet?

TCP

8. There are two types of routing techniques

Static and Dynamic

9. _____ filters traffic between ports on the switch by using the MAC address of computers transmitting through them.

Switches

10. Frame relay is a connection to the internet using _____ that is owned by a telephone company

None of the options