

7/10

There are three major branches in the study of _____.
phonetics

The variants of a morpheme whose occurrence is conditioned by phonological rules are called _____.
allomorphs

The phonological _____ in the occurrence of consonants and vowels is known as phonotactics.
phonological processes

Manner of articulation refers to _____.
how airstream is expelled from the lungs

Auditory phonetics is also sometimes said to be _____.
perceptual

A scholar that studies phonetics is a _____, while a scholar that studies phonology is _____.
phonetician/phonologist

Phonetics studies the production of sounds in _____ languages.
general

The interface between phonetics and phonology lies in the fact that they both study_____.
human language

Acoustic phonetics uses instruments such as the _____ to measure the frequency of sound waves.
spectrograph

Phonetics is concerned with the study of the sounds of _____ languages.
natural

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net