

All the following terms represents the same thing except subcutaneous tissue

Fibres from the dermis usually anchors the skin directly to the subcutaneous layer

The presence of villi and microvilli is usually associated with the mucosa of small intestine

The cranial bone that houses the external ear can be described as temporal bone

The only freely moveable joint in the head is formed by maxilla and zygomatic bone

Keratohyalin the precursor of keratin, is produced in the epithelic layer known as _____ Stratum granulosum

The axial skeleton consists of _____ number of cranial bones 8

The presence of ptyalin in the salivary is usually associated with digestion of carbohydrate

The most abundant cells in the epidermis are keratinocytes

The presence of villi and microvilli is usually associated with the mucosa of
small intestine

Whatsapp: 08089722160 or click here for TMA assistance

Practice E-exams & Chat with course mates on noungeeks.net