

_____ is called the examination of the abdomen of the pregnant women to determine lie and presentation Leopold's Manoever

_____ is the process by which the cervical canal becomes short and thin.
Effacement

Fetal health is evaluated by counting fetal heart sounds with a _____ Foetoscope

_____ refers to the relationship between the spine of the baby and the spine of the mother.
Lie

A transverse lie can result from _____ Prematurity

_____ contractions are usually irregular and painless in uterus contraction Braxton-Hicks

_____ refers to the part of the body that lies nearest to the cervix during a vaginal examination.
Presentation

Fetal heart sounds can usually be heard by foetoscope between _____ weeks of the pregnancy.
18th-20th

Abdominal _____ can also be used to assess the period of gestation.
Land marks

_____ is used to assess the viability of the baby.
Fetal movement