

ethics in social research have many primary assumptions with the exception of _____?
Persuasiveness

_____ helps the prediction of the occurrence of phenomena and makes it possible for a researcher to discover new findings Theory

_____ are many ways of describing a set with the exception of _____?
By describing the elements of the set

In research, the perspectives presented by the head of a community on a given issue of interest are referred to as _____ Primary source

A major question or series of questions that could determine the direction of a research process is known as _____ Problem

_____ is anchored on the assumption that our senses, and through the use of instruments scholars could have definitive information about the universe
Science

Constant repetition of a false notion with the intention of making it true and valid is a major characteristic of _____ _____ statistics are primarily used in the social sciences for many reasons with the exception of _____ Understanding the behaviour of the subjects of research social science theories focusing on the enactment of laws are best described as _____ Homothetic
Science

the elements of an infinite set are _____ Uncountable (wrong)