QUESTION 1

Lady Jasmine Abiola holds Master of Business Administration from the National Open University of Nigeria. Desirous of putting to practical use the learning and skills she acquired from the postgraduate programme, she decided to incorporate and register sole trading business (Lady Jasmine Fashions Ventures) as a company. Luckily, it is now possible to form and register a one-person company in Nigeria. Thus, she registered "The Jasmine Fashions Nigeria Company Limited." The company has minimum share capital of ₦1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 ordinary shares of ₦1.00 per share. Lady Jasmine is the only shareholder and director of the company. She was employed by the company as Chief Designer and was paid salary for the position. While running the business as a company the following issues and your advice has been sought for their resolution:

- The business of the company experienced a downturn. The creditors of the company are SME Bank Ltd (₦2.250 million), fabric suppliers (₦500,000) and sundry creditors (₦280,000). Records showed that Lady Jasmine has only paid for 30% of her shares. The value of company's assets was assessed at ₦550,000.00. Since the loan was not secured, the bank has threatened to sue her if she fails to repay the loan to the full amount, because, according to the bank, "there is really no difference between her and the so-called company." Lady Jasmine is worried and confused. She does not want to sell her personal property, which was a gift from her father. With reference to the debts of the company, advise Lady Jasmine. (10 marks)
- Lady Jasmine consulted a senior advocate of Nigeria over the issues she is facing. The senior lawyer advised to keep her cool because as a married woman she lacked a contractual right and disqualified from joining in the formation of the company. Do you have any contrary view? (5 marks)
- List at least five subject matters of a company's articles of association. (5 marks)
- Lady Jasmine believes that the best way out for her is to convene a statutory meeting of the company. What do you think of this proposition? (5 marks)
